Women Reveal 14-Point Dry Creed

Blonde Case Surprise Witnesses

Today

Memories Fade.
Smallpox Also Marches.
A Small Big Item.
Pulling British Chestnuts.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT, Chief Justice of the United States, President of the United States, Secretary of War, rode to his grave in Arlington Cemetery on a gun carriage, the first United States President to be buried there.

A military funeral was perhaps, not what he would have suggested, but he was entitled to it as former Secretary of War and Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy.

BEFORE burial, the body of the late Chief Justice lay in state for two hours, in the Capitol, on a catafalque, upon which had lain the coffins of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Harding.

How LINCOLN stands out in that, or any list. How soon men become unimportant and are forgotten.

Lincoln, never!

OMINOUS and threatening for India is the beginning of Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of "no violence, but refusal to obey" against the British.

Gandhi and his followers march in protest to make salt tax-free and smallpox marches with them.

Three are dead, twenty-two prostrated by the disease. The British have made a desperate fight against the various plagues in India, smallpox included, with the natives fighting against them.

IT HAS never been possible to prevent natives bathing in the filthy Ganges, occasionally swallowing water upon which dead corpses are set adrift.

Under British rule the population of India has increased by 100,000,000. It would soon diminish under native rule, with the aid of smallpox and other plagues.

THIS small item of news interests managers and stockholders of railroad and steamship lines:

An airplane driven by a Diesel engine flew from Detroit to Miami in 10 hours, 15 minutes, without stopping, with Chief Engineer Willson, of the Packard company, and Walter Lees, pilot.

And the trip cost for fuel $8.50.

When such flying is done on a big scale, airships with power enough to defy all storms will be able to take passengers from the Atlantic to the Pacific for $5 each.

You will be able to travel 3,000 miles for less than it costs to send your voice on the telephone wire today.

IT IS said that President Hoover is willing to listen, but not enthusiastic about that "guarantee by Uncle Sam suggestion." Welcome information regarding the "suggestion" is that in consideration of France obliging England as regards battleship building, the United States shall undertake to send men to be killed and money to be spent in Europe, in case another nation should attack France.

THE plain English is that we are to pull chestnuts out of the fire for our British friends and underwrite future war difficulties of France, an admirable nation, but one that has been at war pretty steadily for twelve centuries.

THERE is plenty of money in the country; the difficulty is to get it.

Secretary Mellon needs $450,000,000 for Uncle Sam.

The public offers to buy twelve hundred ninety-one million dollars worth of Treasury certificates. There is plenty of water in the oceans, lakes and rivers. The trouble is to get it on dry soil that needs it.

There is plenty of wealth in the United States. The trouble is to distribute it widely, evenly, consistently.

NEW YORK CITY, fighting the "Reds," proposes to deport all alien radicals. The police furnishes employers with lists of radicals on their payrolls and the radicals are dismissed by the hundreds.

While men fight men even with considerable odds on one side there is no great objection.

BUT it is suggested that New York expel children of "Red radicals" from public schools. That is like a suggestion to put all the sick people out of hospitals. What is the purpose of our public school system? Will its managers admit that it cannot cure a child of his radicalism and make him an admirer of what radicals call our "capitalistic system?"

MR. J. P. MORGAN'S new yacht, costing $2,500,000, is the largest private craft ever built.

The world might once have envied Mr Morgan. Now it is pleased to have him encourage the shipbuilding industry.

A modest cloak and suit buyer can travel to Europe on a boat free to anybody more comfortably than Mr Morgan can go on his big private yacht "Corsair."

MR. MORGAN'S $2,500,000 yacht is an inexpensive toy compared with such a ship as the Bremen, which would cost $50,000,000 in the United States.

We live in democratic, almost "socialistic," days without realizing it.

ATTACK RUM BUYERS AT INQUIRY

Notables' Wives Also Flay 'Drinking Drys'; Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Edison Defend Law

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—A "political creed" of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, outlining 14 points in support of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Constitution as a whole, was presented at the House Judiciary Committee prohibition hearing today by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass.

She presented the creed after a score of women representing national welfare organizations in rapid succession had taken the stand one after another and endorsed the prohibition laws. They had argued that the womanhood of America stood squarely behind the dry statute.

One of the last to testify this morning was Mrs. Lewis Jerome Johnson, of Cambridge, Mass. Applause greeted her statement that President Hoover was "as dry as the constitution."

ATTACKS RUM BUYERS

Mrs. Peabody, who was in charge of the witnesses, said the creed had been adopted only yesterday. The fifth point of the creed read:

"We believe that under the existing act the buyer is equally guilty with the seller in illicit transactions in liquor."

In addition the decree said the organization believed in law observance for the protection of life, property, homes and human rights, and that it did not believe authority or precedent existed for submission of the Constitution.

WINTER STAGES BELATED RALLY

With less than two weeks to go before closing its season, Winter decided to put over a belated rally today. A heavy snow, averaging an inch depth, blanketed the Pittsburgh district. As a result, trains had difficulty keeping to schedules, street cars were hampered in operations, and autos had to plow ahead cautiously.

In the streets, treacherous underfooting made the going dangerous for pedestrians.

Despite the heavy snow, the thermometer failed to fall below 30. It reached that mark at 5 a. m., but had climbed one degree to 30 by 10 a. m.

Out in the mountain districts the snowfall was heavier. Johnstown reported two inches and Confluence two inches.

More Strikers Join Move for Taxicab Peace

A second "back-to-work" committee of striking taxicab drivers took the field today following rejection by the Parmelee Transportation Company of the regular striker executive committee's basis for a settlement.

The new committee, headed by Ernest Boston, a Green cab driver, was to hold a meeting late today at the company's Melwood street garage, E. S. Higgins, vice president of the Parmelee company, announced.

Meanwhile, the first "back-to-work" group, announced yesterday, moved into offices at 800-801 Standard Life Building. These offices are under lease to the Yellow Cab Company until May 1, and formerly were occupied by George Ball Crawford, adjustor for the cab company.

OFFICE NAME OBSCURED

Before the bolting strikers' committee moved in, an attendant of the Yellow Cab Company obscured Crawford's name on the door of office 801 by placing over it a sign reading: "Taxi Drivers' Headquarters."

Crawford's name on the door of

On his death bed, Harry B. Jewkes, of Glen Osborne, investment broker, remembered affectionately the wife who had divorced him, and with trembling hand signed a will making her sole legatee.

The will was filed for probate today. The estate, valued at $15,000, is turned over to the Fidelity Title and Trust Company with instructions to pay Eugenie McKown Jewkes such sums "as seem just and necessary."

The will, dated February 23 last, was probated by Attorney Bradley McK. Burns. Eugenie McKown Burns was named as executrix.

Mrs. Jewkes divorced Jewkes two years ago. She said he had made her life intolerable by his infatuation for "a certain Miss Y," whose name, she said, she desired to keep out of the court record. "Miss Y," against Mrs. Jewkes' wishes, lived at the Jewkes home, she testified, from September, 1926, until March, 1928.

IRENE, JURY VISIT SCENE OF KILLING

First Degree Murder Verdict Demanded by State; Two Men, 10 Women Hold Fate

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 12.—Irene Schroeder today accompanied the jury which is to decide her fate to the scene of the killing of Corp. Brady Paul on the Butler-New Castle road last December 27.

Two women and 10 men comprising the jury, along with the blonde former waitress defendant, Judge R. L. Hildebrand, counsel and court attaches, left the Lawrence County Courthouse in automobiles shortly after District Attorney John S. Powers had concluded his opening address to the jury.

FIRST DEGREE ASKED

Powers demanded a first degree verdict against Irene. After reviewing the killing of Paul and the wounding of his fellow officer, Private Ernest Moorfe, of the State Highway Patrol, Powers declared.

"We will show," he said, "that Irene Schroeder wilfully fired the shot that killed Corp. Paul. We will produce voluminous testimony to prove our case. None of it is unimportant; all of it must be considered by you.

"All parties concerned are guilty of first degree murder and we ask such a verdict against Irene Schroeder in this case."

W. Glenn Dague, sweetheart of Irene, was with her during the gun battle that accompanied the killing of Paul, Powers declared.

PROSECUTION OUTLINED

Young Plan Passes Reichstag, 270-192

BERLIN, March 12.—(AP.)—The Reichstag today gave final approval to the Young plan by a vote of 270 to 192 and then, by a rising vote, also approved the German-American agreement by which Germany's reparations payments to the United States are regulated.

Under the Young plan, the payments which Germany must make to the allied powers for the next 59 years were fixed. It superseded the Dawes plan.

Later today the Reichstag approved the government's course, by a vote of 268 to 170, with 19 not voting, after a communist motion for "no confidence" had been easily defeated.

Judge Martin Leaves Estate to Widow

Judge Richard W. Martin's will was offered for probate today by his brother-in-law, Attorney W. B. McFall. Mrs. Jean McFall Martin, the widow, inherits the entire estate and is named executrix. No estimate of the value of the estate was given.

Flight With Wounded Dague Told by Irene

"Iron Irene" Schroeder, the two-gun girl of the steel country, has told of her escape with her lover, Glenn Dague, and Donnie, her baby son, through cordons of police, from Enon Valley, Pa., after a fatal gun encounter with Corp. Brady Paul, of the highway patrol, near Butler, Pa. Paul died and Irene is being tried for murder.)

CHAPTER II.

SO HERE we were in Wheeling, W. Va.,—home—while Donnie was safe with my sister across the Ohio River.

There is a part of Wheeling that is a maze of factory sheds and cranes and machinery and a few grimy homes and some deserted coal sheds. That's where we wanted to get to. I read a French book called Notre Dame and there's a part in it about a place in Paris where beggars got together and couldn't be found. I guess this place is something like that.

We sneaked over the Ohio by ferry after dark and got to The Island all right. Glenn put up the blue Chrysler in a shack where he had some other cars, two other Chryslers and a Pontiac.

Fell Over Shoulder

I SAW he moved stiffly and I helped lock up the car. Then he groaned and fell over my shoulder. He had been hit twice in the right leg in the fight with Corporal Paul and Ernest Moore and he hadn't said a word about it until now. The wounds were stiff and I had to carry him into the shack where we intended to hide for a few days.

I had to cut his trousers with a penknife to get them off, and then I cleaned up the wounds—one in the hip and one in the calf of the leg. Glenn got to sleep.

I watched him and thought over our position. It's funny, but I was perfectly happy, sitting there and

PROTECTION FUND PAID MYSTERY MAN

BULLETIN.

Nine counts against Al Forney, charging him with maintaining gambling devices, were ruled out by Judge F. P. Patterson today. Six counts were to be submitted to the jury.

The inside story of the slot machine ring, reputed to have reaped million of dollars in Pittsburgh, was revealed today by Alfred W. Forney, the man who is alleged to have organized it.

The story is contained in grand jury testimony introduced in court today as evidence in Forney's trial on charges of maintaining gambling devices.

Forney's testimony, revealed that the slot machines averaged $60 collections each week. On this basis, the 218 machines he admitting putting out would bring in $620,000 a year.

"We started in with 15 or 20 machines in May of 1926 . . . Later we had 218 machines on the North Side. . . . A man who said he was R. L. Phillips came to my house and said if I wanted to do business I would have to get through him if I did not want to be molested. . . . After I was indicted by the federal grand jury I sold my machines."

"MR. PHILLIPS—MANAGER"

These are excerpts from the grand jury testimony.

The statements were made to the grand jury in November, 1928, and introduced today after a bitter legal argument before Judge Frank D. Patterson.

"Did you have any dealings with the police?" Forney was asked by District Attorney S. H. Gardner in the grand jury room.

"No, sir," Forney answered. "Mr. Phillips took care of that."

"Could this man who said he

POLICE OXYGEN SAVES BABY

Carrick police turned agents of mercy today to save a 10-month-old child fighting for its life against pneumonia.

Since 3 o'clock this morning, doctors had been feeding oxygen every 15 minutes to the tiny patient, Jean Marie Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Clark, of 2332 Venetian avenue, Carrick. Once the supply of oxygen gave out. If the doctors did not get some more, and get it at once, little Jean would die.

Hurriedly them summoned Carrick police. Wagonmen John Shaughnessy and Philip Demmel, with an inhalator and two tanks of oxygen, made the trip to the sickroom in record time. Little Jean was saved for awhile and may win her fight for life, the doctors say.

Two brothers, Billie, 8 and George, 5, were sick before Jean was stricken. The father is an interior decorator.

saw," continued the prosecutor. "From this you can draw your own conclusions but to this we will add testimony that will prove beyond a question of doubt who fired the shots that killed Paul."

"The policeman who stood in the fugitives' path as they whisked through St. Louis will tell how he withstood their bullets, some of them tearing holes in his uniform. The story of the fugitives' last stand will be told by Sheriff Charles H. Wright, of Arizona."

EXTRA PANEL CALLED

Selection of the jury was completed shortly before noon today after two and a half days of bitter fighting, in which two panels of 60 veniremen each were exhausted, an extra panel of 40 summoned and one juror disqualified for having previously expressed an opinion favorable to the defendant.

Three jurors were chosen at this morning's session from the 40 emergency veniremen corraled in the streets of New Castle and surrounding districts by Sheriff Frank N. Johnston and his deputies at the conclusion of last night's session of Criminal Court.

They wefe Mrs. Glades O. Rosenthal, housewife, of New Castle, the second woman to be selected; Thomas Kennedy, moulder, also of New Castle, and John Fullerton, salesman, of Mahoningtown.

INDICTMENT READ

Judge Hildebrand excused the other talesmen rounded up last night after the clerk of courts read the indictment charging Irene with murder. A recess was taken until 1:30 p. m.

The blonde, showing no sign of emotion, stood up and faced the standing jury as the indictment, arraignment and plea of "not guilty" were read by the clerk.

She appeared relieved as the long grind of picking a jury was at last over.

SHERIFF SHIVERS

Irene shared the courtroom spotlight today with Sheriff Wright, of Maricopa County, Ariz., who appeared wearing a sombrero and a cartridge belt at his waist.

The sheriff, his wife and several witnesses arrived last night from Phoenix. He left the summerlike clime of the border state without an overcoat and shivered in the March blizzard that left a three-inch fall of snow over this district.

Sheriff Wright declined to discuss the capture of Irene and her sweetheart, Dague, near Phoenix two months ago.

ONE DISQUALIFIED

One juror was disqualified after a side bar conference last night because of having previously expressed an opinion in the case. He is E. C. Porter, Wayne Township contractor. He was ordered dismissed on motion of Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti by Judge Hildebrand after a conference, in which defense counsel, Kedgwin H. Powell, Thomas W. Dickey and Benjamin Jarrett, participated.

The Commonwealth alleged that Porter about three weeks ago arose to the defense of Irene at a Sunday School meeting in which Attorney Joseph Humphrey, teacher of the class in Elwood City, had suggested the topic for discussion instead of the usual class lesson. Porter, it was charged, declared that he thought Irene, because of her youth, should be given another chance.

The two state alienists, Drs. H. W. Mitchell, State Hospital for the Insane superintendent, of Warren, Pa., and Dr. C. C. Wholey, of Pittsburgh, returned to their places of watchful waiting near Irene again to observe her actions under the strain of court routine. They are prepared, it is understood, to testify to the defendant's high mental rating, should the defense enter a plea of insanity. No expression was forthcoming from either of the two specialists after yesterday's observations, but from their attitude it was taken to believe they were satisfied with events up to this time.

as a whole or in part to a national referendum.

It said the organization felt that the press, which has been in the past and should be now a moral and civic asset, ought, without regard to the personal opinions of owner and editor, to give fair representation of the views of law abiding people and the government, than to cintinue attacks upon the law.

It added that, in view of the disloyal and dangerous attitude of men and women of wealth and influence, law enforcement groups should be formed throughout the country.

UPHOLDS CONSTITUTION

The creed affirmed a belief in the Constitution and said, "We believe that prohibition of opium, alcohol and other habit-making drugs is a necessary protection in this machine age."

It expressed the firm belief that the Eighteenth Amendment, ratified by 46 of the 48 states, was binding on all and that the limit of one-half of 1 per cent on intoxicating liquors was a "safe" standard for children and those not inoculated with alcohol.

Further it aserted a belief that economic benefits of millions of dollars had resulted under prohibition and said it believed the "moral isues makes this law obligatory for the individual citizen and the duty of every church member" and added that the church should teach respect for the statute.

The creed said women who had "endured personal slavery through drunken husbands," were entitled to their personal liberty and that the law breakers must not be law makers."

While the creed was being made public, Representative L. C. Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri, was appearing before the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission with a plea for legalization of 2.75 beer, and the House was confronted with a report from the Christopherson committee proposing drastic modification of the Jones law.

"NO COMPROMISE" SLOGAN

The "woman's day" defense of prohibition was offered before the committee as an answer to the previous proposals of speakers for the nation's leading wet organizations to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and return liquor control to the states.

"No compromise" was the slogan of the women throughout their presentation.

"Drinking drys" were attacked by the woman.

They not only claimed the right to speak for 12,000,000 women belonging to organizations affiliafed with the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, but predicted they would enroll millions more to back strict enforcement.

Messages from prominent women in a dozen states were read before the speakers took the floor. Among them were messages from Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Mrs. Vic Donahey, wife of the former Ohio Governor, and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, of the New York Committee for Law Enforcement.

APPEAL LIQUOR BUYING CASE

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—The Department of Justice today carried to the Supreme Court a test case to determine whether the purchaser of intoxicating liquor is guilty of conspiracy.

The appeal was made from the recent decision of Federal Judge Morton, of Boston, in which he held that the purchase of liquor was not a crime.

The government already has pending before the court a case involving a conspiracy between a purchaser and a seller to transport intoxicating liquors.

The department said appeal of the Boston ruling was taken in view of the diversity of opinion of various judges on the question.

WOMAN LIQUOR 'LIFER' FREE

LANSING, Mich., March 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Etta Mae Miller, a victim of Michigan's former "life-for-liquor" law, was free today the first time in 14 months.

The 50-year-old mother and housewife, convicted here December 31, 1928, on a fourth liquor felony, returned to her home and her husband last night, free on $2,500 bond pending a new trial granted by the Supreme Court.

The last state Legislature removed liquor offenses from the classification of felonies under which the life sentence is imposed. Her sentence then was commuted to 7½ to 15 years.

office 800 also was obscured with strips of adhesive tape.

COUNTER PROPOSAL

The peace proposal of the regular strikers' committee, rejected by the Parmelee Company, demanded recognition of a strictly local union with a concession from the original 40 per cent commission demand of the men to 37½ per cent.

The company submitted a counter proposal, details of which were not made public.

"This will be submitted to the men at the first available opportunity," A. T. Siford, chairman of the striking drivers, announced.

MAYOR TO CALL MEET

Maurice Fromme, chairman of the original "back-to-work committee," which called on Mayor Charles H. Kline yesterday announced the opening of headquarters in the cab company's former offices in the Standard Life Building.

"All men who want to go back to work can enroll here," Fromme said. "We have 125 signers on a petition now. We are drivers who can't find out what the strike is all about from the strikers' committee, and we want to get back to work."

Leonard A. Mazer, counsel for the strikers, said that due to illness he is leaving tonight for a short rest in the mountains.

'POINT CONCEDED'

"The men have conceded one of their strong points," Mazer explained in a statement issued after the conference in the Mayor's office. "This committee was empowered to consider no proposition except 40 per cent and a closed shop."

His statement explained "the men have shown a disposition toward recession in their demands." The company, however, stood firm on the announced policy against unionism in turning down the men's offer.

Riot Hearings Tonight For 5 Striking Drivers

Warrants for the arrest of five striking drivers, Chester H. Waddle, Robert Blume, Frank Chille, Thomas E. Hoover and a striker named Beck, have been served by constables from the office of Margaret Morgan, Sewickley justice of the peace. They were issued on information charging inciting to riot sworn to by Fromme. Their hearings are set for tonight.

Fromme and Harry Levine, another member of his committee, waived hearings and posted bond for court trial on charges of false pretense. These warrants were issued on informations sworn to by the strikers' committee before Wylie Wickline, McKees Rocks justice of the peace. They are charged with having sold fake tickets to a strikers' benefit dance, February 12, in the Aldine ballroom.

BENEFIT DANCE THURSDAY

Frank Leon, of the Checker Cab Company, was held in $300 bond on a surety of the peace charge brought against him by Frank Chille, Leon is alleged to have threatened to "get" Chille.

The striking drivers will hold a benefit dance Thursday night at 823 Federal street.

Letter Says Union Doesn't Want Strikers

Members of the strikers' committee displayed printed circulars yesterday containing copies of letters from Henry G. Burger, international representative, and Daniel J. Tobin, general president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Both were addressed to C. A. Osgood, of 612 East North avenue, secretary of Local No. 249 of the union.

Tobin's letter advises Osgood that he "had no business to admit these taxicab drivers into your local union as this is a direct violation of your charter rights. It is not the policy of the International Union to admit men to membership while they are on strike."

Burger's letter instructs Osgood to turn $500 receipts over to Paul E. Toole, former chaiman, and A. T. Siford, present chairman of the strikers' committee."

The committeemen expressed belief that these circulars were mailed out by the Parmalee Transportation Company to break the morale of the strikers. They also charged Osgood with having "sold them out." Osgood could not be reached at his home last night.

British Delay Move On Russian Missions

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, was asked in the House of Commons today whether in view of religious persecution in Russia he would consider inviting the co-operation of all the powers represented in Moscow in making the simultaneous protest and effecting the simultaneous withdrawal of their missions in the event of this persecution continuing. He replied that at present he was not prepared to take any initiative on these lines.

The Illinois speakers were called upon in connection with the convention's consideration of that part of the report of the committee on officer's reports bearing upon the Illinois situation.

LEWIS LASHER REBELS

Their appearance followed a dramatic speech by International president John L. Lewis late yesterday in which he scored the "rump" convention in Congress at Springfield, Ill., and reviewed the international organization's actions in the disputes with officials of the Illinois organization.

For the first time in history, the United Mine Workers convention went on record as favoring Federal regulation of the coal industry, which was recommended in another section of the report of the committee of officer's reports.

Lewis scored Alexander Howat, of Kansas, who was elected president at the Springfield meeting. Howat wrote a letter to the international board on October 21, 1928 expresing loyalty to the international organization and then "took the first chance to drive a butcher knife in the back of his union," Lewis asserted.

FIGHT OVER REPORT

A lively fight developed as Pennsylvania delegates scored the report for its optimistic tone concerning anthracite conditions. Thomas F. Horan, of Ashland, Pa., said the anthracite delegates "would not stand for" assertions that "operators, the public and miners are co-operating to the fullest extent." He also denounced praise of James A. Gorman, referee of the anthracite board of conciliation, contained in the report. The report was unanimously adopted.

FORNEY STORY TOLD JURY

was Phillips have been Charlie Wolfe?"

"No," Forney answered. "I know Wolfe."

"DIDN'T PAY POLICE"

"Did you ever give any money to the police?"

"None except Christmas presents of $5 or $10 to the traffic patrolmen on the North Side."

"Did you give Inspector Faulkner (North Side police inspector) any presents?"

"No, sir."

"You made considerable money from these machines?"

"No. They (presumably Phillips) were getting it all. I entered into business with Phillips in 1926 on a 50-50 basis. Later the split was changed and I got 25 per cent and Phillips took the rest . . . I bought a property on the North Side for $30,000 from Attorney Meredith Marshall; I owned flats in Bellevue and I paid $58,000 for a farm on Thompson Run road, but they were all mortgaged.

"THEY ONLY SMILED"

"Ever have any dealings with Supt. Walsh or Assistant Supt. Coleman?"

"Don't know him," Forney answered.

"Where did you meet Charlie Wolfe?"

"At Eddie Klein's roadhouse."

"Did you ever see him and this man Phillips together?"

"I can't say that I did."

"Did you ever ask whether this fellow Phillips was in a position to give you protection?"

"Yes . . . I got a smile from everybody I asked . . . I asked a police lieutenant I knew—Clarence Timmons . . . He didn't say yes or no—just laughed . . ."

"MYSTERY MAN"

The mysterious Mr. Phillips was described by Forney as between 45 and 50 years old, slightly gray, about six feet tall, and "fairly heavy."

ADMISSION SURPRISE

Judge Patterson's decision to allow the grand jury testimony, usually secret, to be revealed, was a pleasant surprise to observers anxious to learn the inner workings of the slot-machine ring.

The judge, in making his decision after Forney's counsel, Hiram D. Hirsh, had objected strenuously, explained that he was motivated in the interest of public justice and because Forney, in becoming a fugitive from justice, had caused the long delay that possibly accounted for the many missing witnesses.

PROSECUTION'S LAST SHOT

Introduction of Forney's testimony was Haggerty's parting shot in his prosecution. Previously the case against Forney had been regarded as weak because of the missing witnesses and the faulty memories of those witnesses who had been found.

The federal indictment, which Forney mentioned, was for violation of the liquor laws. He pleaded guilty, served a six months' sentenced and promised to "tell all." Later, indicted in the county courts, he "skipped," and his bail was forfeited. He surrendered a year later.

STEEL MERGER PLAN TOTTERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 12.—(AP.)—Merger with the Bethlehem Steel Company was before directors of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company today, with all indications pointing to failure at the outset.

An all-day conference of millionaire steel leaders involved was held in Cleveland in what was considered an effort to overcome Ohio opposition to the consolidation, and although there was no announcement it was believed opponents of the merger had won.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, who has attempted to include the Youngstown company in the recently created Republic Steel Corporation, declined to make a statement, but his bearing indicated his interests had halted the merger.

Eaton's demeanor, the departure for New York of Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, and the length of the conference all seemingly bore out earlier assertions that it would be impossible at the present to obtain the necessary consent of two-thirds of the holders of Sheet and Tube's stock.

Whatever the decision reached at Cleveland, no final action was expected today.

Gandhi Heads Marchers Preaching 'Disobedience'

BOMBAY, India, March 12.—(AP.)—Launching his campaign of civil disobedience through which he hoped to force the British government to grant India its independence, Mahatma Gandhi and 70 volunteers today started from Ahmedabad on a two weeks' march to the Gulf of Cambay.

More than 100,000 natives cheered the Indian leader and mystic when he and his followers left the city early today determed to spread their dogma of firm but peaceful civil disobedience.

Hundreds of gifts were showered on the marchers as they began their long trek after much speechmaking and prayer. During their march, Gandhi and his followers will make speeches at about 100 towns whose residents, it is expected, will furnish them food and supplies.

Disorders developed at the beginning of the march and the police were forced to disperse large crowds.

One of the worst disorders occurred when a crowd of youths staged a demonstration in a busy street, smashing shop windows and attempting to pull down all visible Union Jacks.

Trolley Men Consider New Wage Scale

Consideration of demands to be presented the Pittsburgh Railways Company when the present two-year wage agreement expires April 30, marked a closed meeting of Division No. 85, Street Car Men's Union, in Serbian Hall, 3414 Fifth avenue, last night.

There was a rumor that sentiment favored a demand for an increase in wages. It was said that nothing could be made public until the demands have been presented to the company.

It was intimated that negotiations with the company probably would be necessary before an agreement could be reached.

P. J. McGrath, union secretary, at a meeting of the Catholic Conference of Industrial Relations here several weeks ago, made clear the position of union officials. He declared then that 65 per cent of the street cars here are one-man cars, and that within a short time this type of trolley will be in use exclusively on the Pittsburgh Railways lines. Objecting to this, with the consequent number of men the change throws out of employment, McGrath protested against the differential in rates given the men, the one-man operator getting only five cents an hour more than one employed on a two-man car, he said.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—The will of William Howard Taft was filed today for probate, although no valuation of the estate has yet been disclosed.

The will was executed June 3, 1925, and was modified in 1927 by two codicils. Under the original will, Yale University was given $10,000, to be added to the principal of the Alumni University Fund and credited to the class of 1878.

Wendell W. Mischler, Taft's secretary, was given $5,000, and the following specific bequests were made: Margaret McNamara, $1,000; Annie McNamara, $750; Thomas Halpin, $750.

With these exceptions, and save for his papers and copyrights, the former President left his remaining estate to "My dear wife, Helen H. Taft."

The widow also was named as executor, with the request that no bond be required of her, and that she should not be required to make an inventory of the estate.

The tomb of Taft will be marked for posterity with a memorial shaft befitting the high place he held in the heart of the American people.

The monument is to be selected by Mrs. Taft and their three children, who chose the sylvan nook in Arlington National Cemetery, where Taft was buried yesterday.

Simplicity is to be the dominant characteristic of the marker that will be imposing but far removed from the severe.

4 REMBRANDTS IN ART LOOT

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—Mystery today surrounded reported disappearance of 18 paintings which the owner of Carlton House Galleries here announced had been stolen from him.

Police asked to trace the pictures were told they included four Rembrandts, besides the work of Rubens, Van Dyke, Gainsborough and other famous painters.

FLORENCE, Italy, March 12.—(AP.)—A fourteenth century painting depicting the Virgin and Child, considered of great value, has been stolen from the Petrina Church at Montaione.

Three Prisoners Fail In Flight Via Water

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—(INS.)—Hoping to drift to liberty on a plank, three military prisoners made an ineffectual attempt to escape from Alcatraz Island last night. A mile from the island they became exhausted and called help. They were picked up by a prison launch. The prisoners were Howard Mulson, William Smith and Donald O. Rinard. They were to be released in 1938.

PARLEY AWAITS BRIAND VIEW

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service.

LONDON, March 12.—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's expected statement of the French position at the five-power naval conference in view of recent developments was eagerly awaited in conference circles today.

With the American delegation now flat-footedly out in the open in its determination not to commit the United States to participation in any consultative pact which would provide the security France demands in exchange for a reduction of her naval demands, it is nevertheless hardly expected that Briand will recede from his demands for such a pact.

However, it is understood that Briand and his colleagues have tentatively decided to make a small cut in their tonnage demands in view of the American attitude. They have decided not to include special ships in their total tonnage demands. This would automatically reduce their tonnage demands from 724,479 tons to about 695,000 tons by 1936.

ALBEE, THEATER MAGNATE, DIES

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Edward F. Albee, 72, pioneer showman, who, with the late B. F. Keith created and operated a trans-continental chain of vaudeville theaters, died here last night of a heart attack.

Plans were made today to take the body to New York tomorrow.

Beginning as a young man with P. T. Barnum, the circus magnate, Albee became an important power in the amusement world.

His association with Keith in 1883 in the presentation of a modest variety show in Boston led to the founding of the cross-country circuit of theaters which was merged last November in the Radio-Keith-Orpheum consolidation. Albee retired from active control of his enterprises at the time of the merger, after spending more than 50 years in the amusement business.

Mrs. Albee, the former Laura E. Smith, of Boston, and a son, Reed A. Albee, who were here at the time of Albee's death, and a daughter, Mrs. Ethel A. Lauder, survive.

Samuel M. Felton, Rail Leader, Dies

CHICAGO, March 12.—(AP.)—Samuel Morse Felton, chairman of the board of the Chicago, Great Western Railway, died last night. He was 87 years old.

Active in railroad circles since his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Felton was appointed director general of military railways during the World War. He was stricken with paralysis a month ago.

Brother Assumes Erlanger's Office

NEW YORK, March 12.—(INS.)—Assuming the managership of the gigantic theater chain founded by his brother, the late A. L. Erlanger, former Supreme Court Justice Mitchell L. Erlanger today took office as president of the Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, Inc. Plans were already being made, it is said, for the erection of a large theater in Chicago.

DOHENY BRIBE TRIAL BEGINS

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—The trial of Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil operator, charged with bribing Albert B. Fall, secretary of interior in the Harding cabinet, began today after Justice Hitz overruled Doheny's plea that to put him on trial for bribery would place him in double jeopardy.

Doheny and Fall were acquitted of a charge of conspiring to defraud the government of the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve. Doheny maintained that the question of his giving $100,000 to Fall in 1921 already had been decided by another jury. The government charges Doheny gave Fall the bribe for a lease to the reserve.

Fall was convicted last October of accepting the money as a bribe.

Doheny, in court, appeared cheerful and unconcerned. Frank J. Hogan, his counsel, said the oil man was convinced he would be acquitted.

The panel of 26 men and women from whom it was hoped a jury could be chosen was addressed by Justice Hitz, who told them that of his own motion he would lock the jury up and that the case might take "several weeks."

La Guardia Demands Quiz on U. S. Judge

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—Investigation of Judge Harry B. Anderson, of the Western Federal District of Tennessee, was proposed in the House today by Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York. La Guardia said he had received information accusing Judge Anderson of reducing bail of persons charged with violation of the narcotic laws, who then defaulted and failed to appear.

Ohio Park Law O.K.'d By Federal Court

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today held constitutional the Ohio Metropolitan Park District law in two taxpayers' suits directed against the Cleveland and Akron Metropolitan Park districts. The law was upheld by the State Supreme Court, although five of seven judges were of the opinion it was invalid.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over Eastern Ontario yesterday morning remained nearly stationary, while the far Northwest low advanced eastward rapidly and increased in intensity. The eastern disturbance is still over the upper St. Lawrence valley, lowest barometer reported, 29.24 inches, at Parry Sound. The western disturbance is centered over Manitoba, lowest barometer reported, 29.10 inches, at Winnipeg. The principal high pressure area is centered over the Gulf states.

As a result of the low pressure areas there is much cloudiness over the North, and snow squalls are in progress over the lower lakes, and over Western Pennsylvania. South of the Ohio River the skies are mostly clear. They are also clearing over Ohio and Indiana.

There was a slight fall in temperature east of the Mississippi River to freezing or slightly below. Over the northern plains the changes were towards rising, and in the far Northwest it is considerably colder.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising slowly. Stage at Franklin is 7.4 feet. Lock No. 4, 14.6; Pittsburgh, 16.3; Dam No. 4, 14.1; Dam No. 5, 13.5; Dam No. 9, 13.7, and Dam No. 13, 14.8. Light rainfall and melting snow will cause a further rise in the Pittsburgh district. About 18.0 feet may be expected at Pittsburgh Thursday morning.

GALLI-CURCI FEE HIT, TOUR OFF

PARIS, March 12.—(AP.)—Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, who retired recently as prima donna for the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, of New York, has canceled the remainder of her European concert tour and is sailing today for the United States.

In a statement published here the famous soprano assigned as reason for the cancellation criticism which had appeared in Budapest papers of what were considered exhorbitant fees extracted from their impoverished country.

Mme. Galli-Curci recently was hissed and booed in Budapest, where she sang Violetta in "La Traviata."

Mme. Galli-Curci said she considered her fees for European performances quite reasonable, explaining that they were only $2,200 a performance, or less than half of the American level.

Philanthropist Gets Award for Peace

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—Frederick Brown, philanthropist and director of the American Arbitration Association, has received the association's medal for commercial peace.

The medal was presented at a luncheon by Felix Warburg, chairman of the executive committee of the American Arbitration Association.

ELECTRIC RATE QUIZ BEGUN

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(AP.)—Instituting a complaint against rates of the Scranton Electric Company, the Public Service Commission today announced it was engaged in a general inquiry into electric rate structures of Pennsylvania utilities.

The double-barreled announcement came on the heels of criticism directed at the commission by former Gov. Gifford Pinchot and testimony concerning the Scranton company before the Federal Trade Commission last Wednesday. Pinchot, in announcing his candidacy for another term as governor, had previously charged the Pennsylvania commission with being the tool and "catspaw" of corporations.

The complaint of the commission, instituted on its own motion, charged the present tariff schedule of the company which has been in effect since August 1, 1928, is "unfair, unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory, unreasonably preferential" and "yields an unreasonable and excessive return upon the fair value of the prope of the respondent."

At the same time the commission said its other inquiry launched several months ago to study the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan of railroad consolidation with especial reference to its effect on Pennsylvania, "has advanced to its completing state." Dr. Howard C. Kidd, of the University of Pittsburgh, was retained by the commission to conduct the survey.

Britain Slashes Outlay for Army

LONDON, March 12.—(INS.)—British army estimates for 1930 revealed a reduction of £605,000 (about $3,000,000) from army expenditures in 1929 when they were made public today by Secretary of State for War Tom Shaw.

In 1929, £41,105,000 (about $205,000,000) was spent for the upkeep of the British army. The 1930 figure was placed at £40,500,000 (about $202,000,000.)

DREW MEETS ARMSTRONG

Judge James B. Drew, of Common Pleas Court, mentioned as a Superior Court candidate on the Vare-Davis-Brown ticket, conferred with County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong yesterday. Judge Drew, answering a query on his candidacy, replied, "I am considering it."

Western Pennsylvania supporters of the ticket, headed by James J. Davis for United States Senator and Francis Shunk Brown for governor, are urging the Philadelphia managers to unite on Judge Drew for one of the two nominations for Superior Court judge.

Armstrong, while refusing to announce where his support will fall in the May primaries, is expected to back the Davis-Brown ticket, as against the Joseph R. Grundy-Samuel S. Lewis combination, which is reputed to have the backing of the state organization.

SUPPORT FOR DAVIS

Armstrong conferred yesterday with numerous callers, including Dr. James P. Kerr, widely-known surgeon and neighbor of Armstrong. The latter was asked if he would support Secretary Davis for senator and cryptically replied, "I always believe with Gen. Grant that when everything else is equal, to go for your friend."

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, returning today from a vacation, said he had not decided which ticket to support.

Lieut. Gov. Arthur James, of Luzerne County, is receiving favorable consideration from framers of the Davis-Brown ticket as a candidate for justice of the Supreme Court, according to current report.

SHANNON MENTIONED

Brig. Gen. E. C. Shannon, of Columbiana County, was said to be out in front with the Davis-Brown crowd as a candidate for lieutenant governor. He served in France during the World War as colonel of the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry and has a large following among service men.

County Controller Robert G. Woodside, past national commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, also has been mentioned for the lieutenant governorship but has shown no inclination to seek the honor.

SIX FILE FOR HOUSE

HARRISBURG, March 12.—(INS.)—Four Republicans and two Democrats today filed nominating petitions for the House with the State Bureau of Elections.

The Republicans were Joseph B. Henderson, Connellsville, Second Fayette; Jesse R. Wike, Roaring Springs, Second Blair; Martin S. Clark, Matamoras, Pike County, and Joseph R. Lynch, First Allegheny.

Democrats filing were I. Dana Kahle, Knox, Clarion County, and S. K. Strosnider, Waynesburg, Greene County.

Pitt Ex-Student, Wed 12 Days, Sued for Divorce

He, a former Pitt student, and she, an actress, met at a party in Pittsburgh.

It was "love at first sight."

A few days later they were married in New York. That was on March 1.

Today, 12 days later, she sued for divorce, charging cruelty.

That is the story Frances Miller Brody tells in her divorce suit filed in Chicago.

Her husband is John Brody, Jr., former Pitt freshman, graduate of University of Pennsylvania, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brody, of 6331 Walnut street.

He was described as a Pittsburgh millionaire.

"That," his brother, Charles Brody, of Zanesville, O., told the Sun-Telegraph today, "is greatly exaggerated."

"We separated on March 7," the wife says. "On the third day of our marriage he beat and choked me while he was beastly drunk. He repeated this on March 7."

Before his marriage Brody was an agent for the Aetna Casualty and Insurance Company.

Another Byrd Expedition To Antarctic Likely

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, March 12.—(AP.)—The possibility that Rear Admiral Richard Byrd will take another expedition into the Antarctic was foreseen here today.

Admiral Byrd in an interview said:

"If I were to say what I am going to do next, my remarks would cause a sensation."

Although the intrepid explorer, who returned Monday after more than a year at the bottom of the world, during which he flew over the South Pole, declined to commit himself further, the trend of events here and feeling among his party indicate that he hopes to return to the Antarctic to make further explorations east of the Ross Sea.

Although most members of his expedition have left Dunedin on trips for fishing or hunting, Admiral Byrd is rushed with work here in an endeavor to start for home next Wednesday or Thursday. The City of New York is on the dry dock, and the steamer Eleanor Bolling goes on tomorrow for refitting.

When leaving the British warship Laburumum, after an inspection tour, Byrd received a 13-gun salute, his first admiral's salute since his promotion by his country.

Irene Tells of Flight With Dague

looking at my man sleep and saying to myself that, anyway, trouble would knit us together better than any marriage lines.

It's going to be hard to make people see it the way we do—that we're not thieves and desperate characters, but a couple of souls that got into a corner where the things we did were the only way out. It all dated back to when Glenn took the two Chrysalers from the Scott Motor Co. party in Pleasant Valley, W. Va. You see, Glenn worked for them and they held out some commissions Glenn thought were due, and he took the two cars from them instead of the money they he'd out.

Where Love Is Fatal

THAT got him in the position of being a car thief, though he wasn't. First it was hiding those cars, then it was being out of work because he couldn't get references and because he had deserted his wife and kids in Viola, W. Va., and then it was doing a couple of desperate things to get enough money to feed Dannie and me—and then it was the whole world hunting us across the earth.

Of course, it was his loving me in the first place. That's what a man and a woman aren't supposed to do—love when they aren't married. But you might as well tell a man not to jump when the molten steels runs over as tell Glenn and me not to love. God knows we tried to separate often enough, but it seems it was just like something we couldn't see pulling us together and we would have died apart.

As soon as Glenn could move the next day, we got out of Wheeling Island and went to a shack in the woods, up-country, that we knew about. We stayed in the shack two days and were happy.

Friends in Wheeling had got us clothes—trousers to replace those I cut off Glenn and men's clothes for me. From then on I was going to be a boy—Glenn's young brother. So, if they were hunting for a man and a blonde gun-girl," as the papers said, they'd pass us by.

Idyllic In The Woods

GLENN'S idea about just living on next to nothing and love in some place in a woods got us to planning on getting away to some place where we could do just that. We talked about California.

We got up our nerve and moved on the fourth day. We had the Pontiac with us, but that was a car we had got over in Toledo, O., the day after Christmas, when we got some money from a gas station there. So I figured they might be hunting for that Pontiac. We had it arranged for a friend on the Island to leave one of the Chryslers from the Scott Co. in a place in Parkersburg, W. Va., that we knew about.

It was New Year's Day when we crept out of the shack in the woods and dug the Pontiac out of the mess of branches and sticks we'd piled over it.

We drove down to Parkersburg and switched to the Chrysler all right, and then we headed West on that terrible trip right through roads watched by police at every crossing and town.

Editor's Note—Irene makes no mention here of an alleged crime perpetrated by Dague and herself at Charleston, W. Va. An attempt will be made to prove that the pair held up a gas station at this point and secured the small loot that financed their flight as far Louisville, Ky.

We traveled like people lost in a forest. We ducked all the main roads and most of the time we went by the sun. All we tried to do was keep going West and a little south. We went through Kentucky. We had to keep South because my boy's clothes were old and thin, and Glenn's overcoat wasn't very heavy. He kept making me wear it, saying he wasn't cold at all, but he'd shiver so, he could hardly steer.

Short Of Food Always

NIGHTS we slept in the car and kept as warm as we could by putting our arms around each other. We never had enough food and that made us colder still. We wanted to save all our money for gas and we wanted to economize so we wouldn't have to get any more money from gas stations, but we had to hold up a place just outside of Louisville. We needed money and got it—from another gas station.

All the time, going through towns, I would lie in the bottom of the car, so that it would look like a single man driving. When we bought food Glenn went alone, or I did, or sometimes we would give a hobo a lift and get him to buy food for us. But sometimes they took the money and didn't come back.

It was a Charleston paper told us about Corp. Brady Paul having died and Glenn said: "Now we're in for it, honey. They'll say it's murder and hunt us night and day." He wanted me to leave the car and let him go back and take the blame, but I said there was one thing worse than death, and that was leaving him, and he felt the same way.

"Anyway," I told him, "I'm happy now. I've lived with a man I didn't love, and now I have the man I love. All I want is for it to last a little while."

We said it would last as long as we were alive, and that's forever, even if it's two minutes.

He's Growing A Beard

WE feel the same now and are happy because we're in the same jail. Only Glenn feels low sometimes and writes he'll be an old man before he sees me again unless maybe they make us happy by trying us together. Glenn feels so bad about getting old that he wants to hurry and get it over. he's growing a beard. They let me see him a minute last week through a grating, and I put my fingers through and felt his beard. It's so soft and silky that it makes him seem younger than ever. I wrote him the next day:

"My darling: No matter how gray your hair gets or how old you get you will always be my own man. Honey, if you were old and couldn't work or couldn't do a thing, I would take care of you if I could just be with you. As long as you care to be mine, I will want you. When you don't care for me any more, I don't want to live.

"They say maybe we'll get life sentence and then sometimes they let them out when they're so old they might as well get out and die.

"So, my darling, if you get old and couldn't do anything and we had a chance to spend our last days together, would you turn that chance down just because you thought you were no good for me?

"I love you and want you more and more all the time."

Test Shows Nurses Like Jobs Best

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—A psychologist at Columbia University is asking persons of various occupations how much interest they would have in their jobs if they suddenly got $1,000,000. On partial returns nurses like their jobs best.

Sewickley Taxes Up Mill and Half

Sewickley taxpayers today were confronted by a tax increase of one and one-half mills. Borough Council having voted unanimously to increase the rate for 1930 to 16 mills at its meeting last night. Council adopted a resolution levying a 2 per cent tax on premiums of all foreign fire insurance companies, proceeds going into the firemen's disability fund.

A communication was received from the Duquesne Light Company asking permission to proceed with preliminary plans for a substation in the district.

Tacoma Re-Elects Mayor Who Resigned

TACOMA, Wash., March 12.—(AP)—Melvin G. Tennent, who resigned from the mayor's office a year ago, charging lack of cooperation in the Council, was re-elected to that office by a plurality of more than 5,000 in yesterday's election over Fred Shoemaker, legislator and one-time city councilman.

Be sure the label says BAKED

When you want baked beans, you want the taste of baked beans. You want the tender, dry mealiness of real baked beans—with the water dried out by hours of slow oven baking.

And you want a tomato sauce that is a tomato sauce—all the rich essence of ripe tomatoes, and piquant spices—made as only Heinz can make tomato sauce.

Heinz—bakes these beans in dry ovens. That's why they're all nutriment, all flavor. They taste like baked beans—because they are baked beans. That's why Heinz labels them oven-baked beans.

How you'd enjoy some tonight!

ACCUSE HUSTON OF POWER GAG

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(INS.)—Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was accused of trying to conceal information from the Senate Lobby Committee today when he appeared before the committee to explain his connection with the Muscle Shoals lobby which sought to turn the plant over to private interests.

The accusation was made by Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, the committee chairman, after Huston asserted he did not know where the records of contributions to the Tennessee River Improvement Association could now be found.

Huston was first treasurer and later president of the association, which led the fight against government operation of Muscle Shoals.

Testimony before the committee has been that the American Cyanamid Company, and the Union Carbide Company, which have been trying to get control of the billion dollar investment in Alabama, furnished the Tennessee River Improvement Association with funds.

Huston told the committee that newspaper reports that he might resign were "erroneous." He said he had discussed with President Hoover these reports and also "false information about my connection with Muscle Shoals." No details of the interview were given.

Power Firm Admits W. Va. Paper Stock

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(INS.)—Testimony to the effect the Appalachian Power Company, a subsidiary of the American Gas and Electric Company, holds 240 shares of preferred in the United Newspapers, Inc., of Wheeling, W. Va., which was taken in part payment for a debt, was presented to the Federal Trade Commission by H. M. Sawyer, vice president of the American company, at the resumption of hearings today on the financial structure of the American company.

He said the Appalachian company also held 200 shares of preferred stock in the Wheeling Intelligencer and the Wheeling News as collateral security for a debt and that it could not be voted.

All Fools' Day Puts Crimp in Census Job

ATLANTA, March 12.—(AP.)—Enumeration of the decennial federal census will start April 2 instead of April 1 because of the superstition of some persons regarding All Fools' Day, Dr. William M. Stuart, census director, told district supervisors from five southeastern states in a two-day school ending here today.

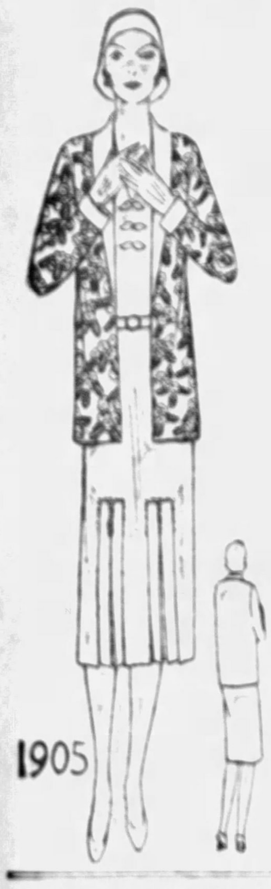
Stunning Rig Easily Made

Pattern 1905

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.



The last word in fashion circles is the sleeveless one-piece frock with contrasting short jacket. The model sketched today is exceptionally simple and extremely smart. Inserted pleats give grace to the skirt while tiny bows trim the bodice.

The jacket of Pattern 1905 is made of printed pique . . . the frock of white or a pastel shade. Equally smart fabrics for this ensemble are shantung, jersey, marocain and silk crepe. For immediate use a navy blue frock with coat of navy ground and chartreuse print would be charming.

Designed only for sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards fabric for coat and 3⅛ yards for frock and coat trimming, each 40 inches in width.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our PATTERN BOOK of NEW SPRING and SUMMER STYLES is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

ICE CONVENTION DINNER HELD

A banquet in the William Penn Hotel last night ended the first day's sessions of the twelfth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Ice Producers Association. Speakers were Capt. Thomas M. Rees, president of the Ice Publicity Association of Allegheny County; J. E. Bircher, of Philadelphia, and Harry Reber, of Reading, president of the state association.

Speaking on advertising at the afternoon session, Robert McKnight, advertising director of the National Association of Ice Industries, Chicago, predicted a profitable year for the ice industry, provided producers advertise intelligently.

"No enterprising ice company can afford to neglect newspaper advertising," he said. "Newspaper advertisers share in the prestige that newspapers enjoy in the community. Their advertisements form parts of the news of the day and are so looked upon by the public."

Other speakers at the day's sessions were A. Crawford Craig, New York, secretary of the Eastern Ice Association; A. J. Authenreith, Chicago, representing the Middle West Utilities Company; A. B. Hare, Columbia Ice Company, Pittsburgh, and Frank L. Duggan, assistant general manager of the Consolidated Ice Company, Pittsburgh.

M'DONALD WILL STAY AT POST

LONDON, March 12.—(AP.)—Although defeated by eight votes in the House of Commons on an amendment to its coal mines bill, the Labor government of J. Ramsay MacDonald will not resign.

The opinion was generally expressed in the newspapers, however, that there probably will be a general election immediately after the budget is disposed of. The government and its supporters were represented as getting tired of the growing tendency of the Conservative and Liberal parties to combine against its legislation.

The amendment to the coal mines bill, which Conservatives and Liberals passed over Mr. MacDonald's head last night, does not materially change the measure. Immediately after the division, count of 282 votes for the amendment and 274 against, the prime minister was asked by Stanley Baldwin, Conservative head, if he intended to go on with the bill.

Mr. MacDonald answered quickly:

"I am amazed at the question. Mr. Baldwin will have an opportunity two days from now to move his party's vote of censure. I shall be glad to accommodate him if he will make his vote of censure general, and we will accept the decision."

Indicted Preacher Fugitive in Still Case

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., March 12.—The Rev. Edward Auvil, of Farnum, former pastor of the Church of God at Richwood, who was indicted for operating a moonshine still in an abandoned coal mine near Farnum, has disappeared, according to action taken today by the Harrison County Criminal Court.

Forfeiture of the minister's bond was noted, and the judge ordered a capias issued for his arrest. Elmer Phillips and R. E. Bush, indicted in the same case, were released on recognizances until he can be found.

Convict Acquitted In Auburn Killing

AUBURN, March 12.—(INS.)—Max Becker, convict, was found not guilty of the murder of Principal Keeper George A. Durnford during the December riots at Auburn prison by a jury today.

MAYTAG HOLDS BANQUET

More than 300 Maytag salesmen were guests at a banquet last night given at Webster Hall by George E. Hartman, district manager of Maytag Washing Machine Company, of Newton, Ia.

Mr. Seiler, vice president of the Cramer-Krasselt Agency in Milwaukee, outlined the Maytag 1930 advertising program. Paul Scott, eastern branch manager for Maytag, complimented this district on its showing in 1929.

George E. Hartman was toastmaster and master of ceremonies.

Verona School Body To Elect Officers

Election of officers for the Parent-Teacher Association of Verona, will be held in the Verona High School auditorium, tomorrow night. The meeting will be followed by a social hour when moving pictures will be shown and refreshments served. Mrs. S. N. Walker, president of the association, will preside.

FIND NO CAUSE FOR PARALYSIS

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., March 12.—(AP.)—Neither diagnosis nor cause was given by Dr. E. L. Bishop, head of the Tennessee Health Department, after an investigation of the strange paralysis that has affected 130 persons in Northeast Tennessee.

Dr. Bishop said the symptoms of the malady resembled those of "multiple neuritis," but added that it was impossible as yet to determine whether "infection or chemical toxaemia" was the cause. Possibility of alcoholic origin was not mentioned in his statement.

Meeting with Dr. Bishop were Dr. W. J. Breeden and Dr. H. S. Mustard, of the State Health Department; Health officers of Washington, Carter and Unicoi Counties, and local physicians.

PHYSICIAN SUES HARRY THAW

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—A suit to recover $10,000 from Harry K. Thaw by Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, neurologist, for services over a 10-year period, was disclosed here in papers filed in Supreme Court.

Dr. Jelliffe alleged his services began with his testimony for Thaw when the latter was tried for the slaying of Stanford White, architect, and continued to 1917.

Thaw's attorneys filed a motion asking that the suit be transferred to Federal Court because Thaw lives in Pittsburgh, while the doctor resides in New York.

Man Who Duped Pair Of $90,000 Sought

NEW YORK, March 12.—(INS.)—Police searched today for a daring confidence man who duped two Wall street messengers into handing him $90,000 worth of securities when he posed as an employe of a brokerage firm to which the securities were addressed. The man met the messengers hatless and in the customary linen coat of brokerage firm employes and without difficulty had the securities turned over to him.

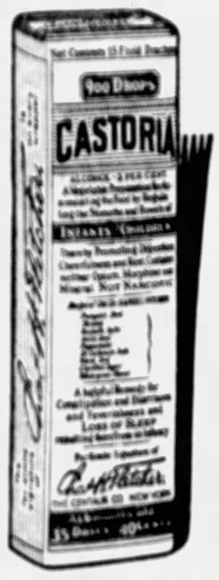
For any BABY



We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

N. SIDE REVIVAL CONTINUED

S. M. Gerow, of Wilmore, Ky., will continue his serial of gospel meetings this week in the Carnegie Hall, Federal and Ohio streets, North Side. The meetings are being held under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. The Gospel Messengers of Johnson City, N. Y., will furnish special music for the meetings.

S. M. Gerow

Following the gospel meetings the Annual Missionary Convention will be held in Carnegie Hall next week.

Vetoes Ordinance Asking Election On Movies

WHEELING, W. Va., March 12.—(AP.)—Mayor T. Y. Beckett has vetoed the ordinance providing for a special election to decide the Sunday motion picture issue in Wheeling. The council adopted the ordinance last week but it sustained the veto by a vote of 10 to 2.

Mayor Beckett said the ordinance as adopted did not conform with the city's charter. He said the church committee which petitioned for council to vote against Sunday movies had not formally requested a referendum.

Gov. Christianson Files for Senate

ST. PAUL, March 12.—(AP.)—Gov. Theodore Christianson filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate yesterday. Gov. Christianson will oppose Senator Thomas D. Schall in the primary election.

Lady Simon Lists 5 Million Slaves

NOTTINGHAM, England, March 12.—(AP.)—Lady Simon is authority for the statement that 5,000,000 human beings in the world are in slavery. She so informed the National Council of Evangelical Free Churches.

Lillian Gish Goes Back to N. Y. Stage

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—After 17 years Lillian Gish is returning to the New York stage in "Uncle Vanya." In her teens she played with Mary Pickford in "A Good Little Devil," then went into the movies.

"THEY SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES," says FANNIE BRICE

Star of Musical Comedy and the "Talkies"

"YOU will never need to make a 'Talkie' about Nestlé's Milk Chocolate Bars—they speak for themselves. Everywhere—they are a good part of a good show. Often, at rehearsals, when there is no time for meals, I can keep working for hours on the nourishment contained in a single Nestlé's Milk Chocolate Bar."

Millions of the smooth chocolate bars are eaten every week at the theatre, the "movies", and sporting events of every kind. The delicious, satisfying flavor of Nestlé's Milk Chocolate Bars comes from sweet, whole milk with all the cream left in — blended with the smoothest, finest chocolate.

Try one today; look for the clean, silvery wrapper. 5¢ and 10¢ . . . red-lettered for plain bars . . . blue-lettered for scrunchy almond bars.

At the Cross-Roads of Health SSS has meant a new day to many a person

A CLEAR SKIN comes from within

Lack of appetite, loss of strength, skin eruptions, that "tired feeling" and other human ills may be due to a lack of red-cells in your blood.

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

"My despair was so great I could have cried. The good cheer and merry happiness of others only mocked at my condition. I had begun to wonder why life could be so cruel. No appetite. No strength. Skin blemishes always embarrassed me. Aches and pains coursed through my body. I wanted to restore my health and live. What was I to do? . . . happily the day came and I found the right road to Health when a friend recommended S.S.S."

You may be one of the thousands with a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run-down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

Did you know that every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles? They are the tiny red particles which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to the cells of the body. Rich, red blood wards off disease. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

You owe it to yourself and friends to give S. S. S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs, gathered at the proper season of the year. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

LINK M'FADDEN IN OIL FRAUD

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—The Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court today upheld charges by Pat Marr, oil operator, that he was induced to exchange his stock in the Marr Oil Corporation for shares in the Southern States Oil Corporation, through false representations by his agents, Louis T. McFadden and Arthur Rottenberg.

McFadden is a representative from Pennsylvania and chairman of the House Committee on Banking.

The Appellate Division also upheld charges by Marr that his agents had received $25,000 in cash each and oil stock then worth about $250,000 to induce him to consent to the exchange in 1923.

The suit was brought by Marr against Joseph P. Tumulty and Joseph Glass as receivers of the Southern States Oil Corporation, the Middle States Oil Corporation and the Gulf States Oil and Refining Company, as well as the Unity Securities Corporation, a family concern, owned by former Governor Charles M. Haskell of Oklahoma, and Haskell, McFadden and Rottenberg.

Policeman Wounded By Bandits' Bullets

CHICAGO, March 12.—(INS.)—Policeman Patrick Mahon today is in critical condition from bullet wounds received in a revolver battle with two bandits.

Mahon surprised the pair as they were attempting to hold up the occupants of a parked automobile. Three bullets struck Mahon in the abdomen during the battle which followed.

A Combined Good-Will Event

Frank & Seder Pittsburgh, Detroit and Philadelphia Stores

$2,000,000 Stock of Wanted New Spring Merchandise at

EXTRAORDINARY SAVINGS

Never was an event so accurately timed to meet the needs of the public! Never have men and women been so anxious to get their money's worth of merchandise value for every dollar they spend. And never has this store, the leader in promoting economy, been so well equipped to offer wanted merchandise of quality and style at so much less than prevailing prices.

To carry out the spirit of National Sales Days, we organized the combined buying resources of the three Frank & Seder store, and invested in huge purchases of new Spring merchandise at concessions never dreamed possible in the month of March. These savings we are passing along to the public, and in addition, to absolutely assure lowest prices, we are, for these three days, reducing our regular low profit as well.

IL FIRM LOSES RATE FIGHT

HAMMOND, Ind., March 12 (U.P.)—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana was ruled against by Federal Judges Baltzell, Sparks and Slick in its claim for reparations against 49 railroads for alleged improper freight rates.

Had the judges opinion been in favor of the oil company, it would have meant that the roads would have had to return more than $30,000 in freight charges. Hearing on the claim was held in Federal District Court here several months ago.

The oil company alleged that railroads overcharged them in shipping petroleum products from St. Louis to the Chicago territory, which included many points in the Northern Indiana oil refining region.

Tells her friends how to get whiter washes

REALLY, dear, it's astonishing what a difference Rinso makes. I never rub or boil the wash any more. In these rich suds clothes soak whiter than I could scrub them.

"My clothes last much longer now, and Rinso is all I use—no other soap, no softener. Try it."

Great in washing machines

The makers of 38 washers endorse Rinso. Cup for cup, it gives twice as much sudsas puffed-up soaps. Get the BIG package.

LINDY'S MOTHER MAY LOSE JOB

DETROIT, March 12.—(AP.)—Following the lead of the City Council, which recently ordered about 1,700 aliens employed in various city departments discharged, the Board of Education is considering dismissing 786 teachers who are non-residents of Detroit.

Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, is one of those who would be discharged if the resolution before the Board of Education is passed.

Frank Cody, superintendent of schools, reported to the board that 294 employes of the Board of Education are not citizens of the United States. All but one, an exchange professor from Oxford University, teaching at Detroit City College, have filed declarations of intentions.

School Inspector Edward H. Williams, member of the Board who moved to oust aliens and non-residents, reiterated his demand, but the Board deferred action.

Mrs. Lindbergh, who teaches chemistry at Cass Technical High School, has been an employe of the board seven years. She lives at Grosse Pointe, a suburb. Most of the non-resident employes, Cody indicated, live in communities which are part of the metropolitan area of Detroit.

Bank Officials Held For $129,000 Deficit

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 12.—(AP.)—Emmet C. Cox, president, and Charles F. Fincher, cashier, of the First National Bank of Tallahassee, which failed about three weeks ago, were held here on warrants charging embezzlement of $129,000. The bank officials were arrested late yesterday by United States marshals, acting on instructions from the United States commissioner here.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

NEWS ABOUT HOLLYWOOD, BROADWAY AND LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Billie Dove Does Films So Fast She's Three Ahead of Herself

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 12.

BILLIE DOVE made a publik luncheon appearance 'tother day for the first time in umpty ump months. Billie has been making pictures so fast that in the present Klieg lull she discovers she is three ahead of herself. Three completed outlouds waiting to hit the silver sheet. Since January, 1929, she has traipsed in eight productions.

Which is to the female record what Dick Arlen's previous one was to the male. Whether or not Billie departs First National upon the completion of her next talky is problematical. Yet this department would gamble she does. And stars for Howard Hughes' Caddo outfit, with so many offerings to make a year. That's the panacea of every player who finds herself or himself, loaded with seven or more films a year.

Billie Dove.

Norma Shearer

NORMA TO BE GAY

"LET US BE GAY" with Norma Shearer. Um, teaser box-office. Norma goes to work this week. With Rod La Rocque her leading man. And Marie Dressler prominent in the cast. Also Sally Eilers. Direction Bob Leonard. Norma's making it tough for herself, with a stellar cast like that. Specially Marie Dressler. Marie has become the outstanding picture thief in the business. For my money, she stole "Anna Christie" right from under the closeups of Greta Garbo. Put the talky in her coat pocket and walked home with it. "Let Us Be Gay" is scheduled to be Miss Shearer's last flick for some time. Norma threatens "hardware" if I print the reason again, so, naturally, I shan't say a word about the future visitor to the Irving Thalbergs.

EDDIE (DIRECTOR) GOULDING was megaphoning Nancy Carroll and Philip Holmes et al in a scene for "The Devil's Holiday." Said scene representing a hotel in Kansas City or thereabouts. About this time, a well dressed man walked onto the set. He stood, watching the proceedings, interested.

Nancy Carroll

Eddie spotted him. Called his assistant over. Spoke to him. The assistant hurried to the well dressed man with:

"You're out of character for this Middle Western scene. Go over to the wardrobe and get them to fix you up."

The man laughed quietly. The guide with him blanched and sped to Goulding.

"Say, director, that guy isn't an extra. He's Prince Frederick Leopold, the ex-Kaiser's nephew!"

Eddie swallowed hard. But the prince, who is visiting Hollywood and getting eyfuls, turned out to be a good fellow. He enjoyed the mistake hugely. Later, Eddie and he had lunch.

This department suggests that all visiting royalty to studios be compelled to wear peonies in their button-holes and thereby save embarrassments.

THAT OLD "GAG!"

EONS AGO—maybe only weeks—this bureau ran a yarn about the producer who stated Shakespeare wasn't picture material because he had too many quotes in his plays. I never thought an actual illustration would come my way. But it has.

A certain exek spent an evening seeing the Stratford-on-Avon Players when they were here, recently, in Shakespearean repertoire. He chanced to catch "Hamlet." During the intermission, a friend asked him how he liked the performance.

"Oh, it's all right," casually, "but why did they have to use that old gag of 'Something rotten in Denmark'?"

And then came the smelling salts . . .

HUMAN OSTRICHES

THE human horse gag isn't new any more. But a coupla funsters bowing into a picture as trained ostriches is. Or have I been doing a Rip Van Winkle? At all events, Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey have laugh roles in Bebe Daniels next Singaloid, "Dixiana." The action begins in a circus. Enter a coupla ostriches pulling a wagon wherein sits an enormous egg. Bebe bursts through the egg. The ostriches perform to her instructions. They, too, share in the applause, and Bert and Bob's heads poke through the front of their disguise.

LEE TRACY says you might as well give your right name—the cops won't believe you anyway.

Baritone Hero

Lawrence Tibbett, opera baritone, sings the hero role in "The Rogue Song," color and music romance, which comes to the Aldine Monday.

ART OF SONG TAUGHT BY TALKIES, SAYS MR. TIBBETT

"The talking picture will enable the public to know, for the first time in history, all that there is in the art of song."

So declares Lawrence Tibbett of the Metropolitan Opera Company, hailed as the world's greatest living baritone. As the first major opera star to appear before the camera and microphone in a talking drama, he sees in the talkies the "Open Sesame" to a new school of song.

Tibbett is starring in "The Rogue Song," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-color drama, which comes to the Aldine Monday.

"The first test I made disclosed the possibilities of hundreds of little subleties in song which on the stage would be utterly lost," Tibbett stated in a recent interview. "In fact, the camera and microphone literally places the singer under the microscope which means that the most delicate inflections, lost when one has to sing across the orchestra pit and stage apron to an audience, are developed and reproduced. The dramatic actor, I think, finds much the same thing, but in song it is particularly marked. Audiences will hear singers at their best for the first time through talking pictures."

Tibbett's baritone voice in "The Rogue Song" is heard in songs ranging from grand opera caliber to simple love melodies. The music is by Herbert Stothart, with interpolations by Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow." "The Narrative" and "Once in the Georgian Hills," accompanied by a symphony orchestra, are of grand opera caliber, the latter being a fiery dramatic number that is an integral part of the plot itself.

Filmed entirely in color, "The Rogue Song" was directed by Lionel Barrymore.

MUSIC

SCHENLEY BALLROOM

PROGRAM.

Etudes Symphoniques . . . . . Schumann
Etude in E . . . . . Paganini-Liszt
Polonaise-Fantasie . . . . . Chopin
Interpolation of ten minutes
French Suite in E . . . . . Bach
Allemande, Courante, Sarabande, Minuet, Gigue.
Vecchio Minuet . . . . . Sgambati
Etude en forme de Valse . . . . Saint-Saens

Dallmeyer Russell played a piano recital before a fine audience in Schenley ballroom last night. The response was most encouraging, and those present must have felt that the soloist had planned his program wisely as to length.

At first sight the program promised more of great music than we really got. The Liszt etude is but superficial variations, and the Chopin Polonaise-Fantasie certainly one of the least worth while of that master's greater works. The eternally beautiful Schumann Symphonic Etudes, the sparkling and happy dances of the Bach Suite, and that delicate "Vecchio Minuet" of Sgambati were the real backbone of the evening's music.

J. Fred Lissfelt

There has been a decided change in Mr. Russell's manner since last heard. While the Schumann disclosed debatable tempo, and certain angularities in phrasing, there was also a far richer tone replacing his former incisive clarity. The latter quality, however, was not lacking entirely and stood him in good stead in the brilliant Liszt study as well as in the Saint-Saens valse. Of the French Suite, preferable were the sarabande and the minuet. The remaining dances tended somewhat towards the romantic. One could not imagine anything lovelier than his playing of the Egambati. A Moskowski study came as encore.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Gayety to Open With Picture Friday

"Hungarian Rhapsody," a film, which opens in the Gayety Friday evening, under the direction of the Cine-Music Company, is said to depict native Hungarian life. The plot revolves around a love affair of a young cavalry a farm superintendent. Lil Dagover has the leading feminine role and Willy Fritsch is the hero.

The Gayety Theater Orchestra, consisting of 50 Pittsburgh musicians, under the personal direction of Umberto Egizi, will play.

On the stage will be a symphonic jazz orchestra of 30 pieces, a special gypsy band, dancers and other attractions.

TO A LADY

MY vices are many and varied,
I lie and I smoke and I drink,
And lads who are wise I'm aware heed
Such failings and falter and think;
But year after year I am one man
Who scoffs at each righteous decree,
With manner as brusque as a gun man
I pursue what is pleasing to me.

Yet of late I've had yearnings for more ease,
The love I have spent I regret,
But I still like to tell truthless stories
And I relish a good cigaret;
Still it's time that I listened to reason,
I've been naught but a soulless young pup—
So, my dear, for the long Lenten season
I've decided it's you I'll give up!
—Big Chief Laugh-It-Off.

IN PLAIN TUKK

FANNIE BRICE was ankling up Broadway the other day and she looked very weary. "Gosh, you look plenty tired," we said, "where are you coming from?"

"From Brooklyn," replied Miss Brice, "where I made personal appearances with my new picture, 'Be Yourself,' and they've got me doing four shows a day!"

"Four shows a day?" we gasped.

"Yeah," said Fannie, "that's a new way they have of killing us Jews."

Fannie Brice

OF ALL SILLIES!

Robert C. Benchley, they will tell you, was dreaming about two Indians who fought over a Navajo blanket and finally went to court about it. One Indian, it appears, argued for an hour on why the blanket belonged to him, and just as the other Indian was called to the witness stand, Benchley's alarm clock went off and woke him up.

Benchley rubbed his eyes, looked at the clock, yawned and then said to himself: "It's early and I'm not due at the office for another hour, and I wouldn't miss that other Indian's testimony for anything!" And then he went back to sleep.

NIFTY

And Dorothy Herzog, whose first novel is christened "Some Like It Hot," describes a certain girl as the type of snob who always is too busy to meet herself coming or going."

GAB VERBATIM

IT is difficult to believe, we know, but, mind you, we heard it with our own huge ears in front of the Bond Building at Forty-sixth street, where the idle actors gather all day and talk shop. Said the first actor:

"Joe, things have been plenty tough for me. I haven't worked for a year, and if I don't get a five spot the wife and kids will starve today." The other actor handed him a 10 spot, saying: "Here, take this. I got a lucky break today. I'm leaving tonight to play 10 weeks around the Middle West."

"Ten weeks out in those dumps?" chirped the lay-off; "oh, boy, you sure have my sympathy."

SQUELCH

On Broadway when a bore takes hours getting to the point, they crush him with: "Aw, please skip the preface!"

BUT DON'T WE ALL?

I GAVE my heart
To a golden maid,
Who vowed her love
Would never fade.
I threw my life
On the turn of a smile,
And she got tired
After awhile.
Eli Ives Collins.

ADD RACKETS

HE gets $5,500 a week for his very funny act in big time vaudeville. Ever since he was This High, however, he has thought nothing of pirating this chap's stuff or that one's clever material. His credo is "Live and Let Lift," one presumes. At any rate, he is a great success as a headliner and he burgles his material.

You probably wonder how the victims permit him to get away with it. Well, it's like this. He can hit as hard as Carnera—so go ahead, start something. Put up a beef, a squawk or complain. Go ahead. And get your bridgework ruined.

Now, George White's greatest worry is that this thief will steal the funniest bit in "Flying High" as unfolded by the star, Bert Lahr, a scene which aroused the loudest and longest laughter ever heard. Oh, he probably has thefted it already, and the only reason his name isn't mentioned here is that by not mentioning any name we might trouble the consciences of the other 700 vaudeville pirates.

Or are we too optimistic?

NOW, THERE

"DEAR MR. WINCHELL," writes R. J. Stiehl, secretary to the assistant general counsel of the American Bankers' Association, "with reference to the controversy about stopping payment on a certified check, you might advise the wager-makers to refer the Mellon National Bank and the Chemical Bank and Trust Company to Opinions 43 et seq of Paton's Digest. These opinions are a treatise on 'Stopping Payment of Certified Checks.' Trusting that this information will further convince the wager-makers that both Mr. Martin and yourself were right in your views on the subject."

THE MORNING MAIL

"Kid: I suppose everybody connected in any way with show business sooner or later (maybe both) gets like Ziegfeld and begins sending telegrams and letters to the newspapers. What I want to say is I never knew that a play which ran nine weeks in present day Chicago grossed 120 Grand and netted its producers an average profit of $3,500 per week, was a flop! I won't even mention the title of the play I am talking about, but I will give you a reception in the Astor lobby if you can name two attractions that have done better in the Loop this season than 'Ju—e M—n, —R—g L—rd—r.'"

Oh, a— r—ght!

ALVIN WILL CONTINUE HERBERT FESTIVAL NEXT WEEK

Tomorrow morning seats go on sale for the second presentation in the Alvin of the Victor Herbert Festival, this attraction being Fritzi Scheff in "Mlle. Modiste." Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday. Miss Scheff is supported by a large cast, including the Albertina Rasch Ballet, with Marie Grimaldi as the premiere danseuse.

When "It Pays to Advertise," next week's offering of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, was produced on Broadway, the two leading characters were portrayed by Ruth Sheplay and Grant Mitchell. The same roles will be played here by Edith King and Harland Tucker.

"Hot Chocolates," Negro musical revue, will open in the Nixon on March 24.

VICE DRIVE NETS 24

Eighteen women and six men were seized in a roundup in the Hill district in the first blow struck at vice by Police Inspector Albert Bechtel recently created vice squad.

Today in Morals Court Magistrate Thomas P. Jones imposed fines upon all the defendants and in addition ordered the women held over for investigation.

The raiding squad last night swooped down upon the home of Ralph Moon of 1009 Webster avenue, and arrested Moon, three men and two women. The officers then raided a place at 1200 Colwell street and arrested Marguerite Saverne, three women and one man.

The third place raided was 75 Washington street, where Marguerite Sagarle, another woman and a man were taken into custody. Moon was fined $10 on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and the Saverne and Sagarle woman $25 on the same charge.

The vice squad later arrested 10 Negro women in Clark, Crawford, Logan and Pasture streets. They were among those fined and held over.

Sues for $50,000 In Death of Wife

Henry D. Rowan of Ingram asked $50,000 damages for the death of his wife, L. Rosalie Rowan, 50, in a suit filed against the Pittsburgh Railways Company in Common Pleas Court. The suit was filed for himself and on behalf of his daughter, Zelda, aged 20. Mrs. Rowan was instantly killed when an automobile in which she was riding was struck by a street car on West Carson street, January 11.

WHY NOT TAKE ARSENIC? IT IS MORE MERCIFUL

Hundreds of People in Pittsburgh Are Poisoning Themselves Every Day and Suffering All the Time.

WORLD'S TONIC MAN SAYS YOU CAN PICK THEM OUT ON THE STREET BY THEIR LOOKS.

"Yes," said the World's Tonic representative, "I mean what I say when I repeat that a lot of people in this town would be better off if they took a quick poison instead of permitting themselves to be poisoned every day. You can see them on the street, dragging themselves along in misery, some of them brave about it, but some clear down in despair.

"The pity of it is that their suffering is unnecessary. Stomachs that are too weak to retain their food, eyes that show how their need sleep, weary steps that tell the story—all of these are evidences of slow intestinal poisoning, not so slow in many cases either. These victims have let catarrh run on until the body is full of waste products and the blood is so foul that the poisons are not thrown off.

"Stomach, liver, kidneys—something gives way, and is in distress all the time. I'm sorry for these folks, for I have seen thousands in that condition who were speedily restored by this good working medicine. They have come in different stages of intestinal poisoning, and after they had taken one or two bottles of World's Tonic I hardly knew them when they came back, they were so much better.

"If the people of Pittsburgh who have catarrh had any idea how quickly they could gain, no time in getting this druggist and taking World's Tonic. World's Tonic is for sale by Boyce & Liggett's, [illegible] and all other good drug stores. (A-84)

Missionary Head To Visit Bellevue

The Rev. A. B. McCoy, superintendent of the Sunday School Missions of the Presbyterian Church with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., will speak at the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, Bellevue Presbyterian Church, at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the church social rooms. Auto Strikes Aged North Side Widow

Mrs. Margaret Norris, 72, an inmate of a widows' home at 1321 Sherman avenue, was in Presbyterian Hospital today suffering a probable fracture of the skull received when she was struck by an automobile. The accident occurred last night at West North and Sherman avenues. Annetta Heick of 111 South Ohio street, Avalon, who, police say, drove the machine, took the injured woman to the hospital.

LABOR GAINS IN MICHIGAN

LANSING, Mich., March 12 (AP).—Employment conditions in Michigan developed marked improvement in February, acording to a report by 385 industries to Eugene P. Brock, chairman of the State Commission of Labor and Industry.

The average number of men working last month was 7.1 per cent greater than in January and 3.4 per cent above December, 1929. Payroll totals mounted 28.9 per cent above those in Decmeber, indicating higher per capita scales, according to Brock.

Employment in the automobile industry showed an increase of 2.7 per cent for February over January.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Depending Upon the Form of the Invitation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have received an invitation to attend a shower to be given for a young couple who are to be married in the near future. Am I to acknowledge, stating that I will attend, and what should I say?

2. Is the gift I take to have a card inclosed in the package, or my name attached on the outside? V. A. P.

WHAT you say in acknowledging such an invitation, and in what form it should be written depends entirely on the form of the invitation. That is, if the invitation is written formally in the third person, we send our answer formally, in the third person. If, for instance, the invitation is in the form of a written note, you would acknowledge it, also writing a note. Say that you would love to come to the party, and mention the date, the day, the hour and the place. Then your hostess will know that you have "recorded" the invitation correctly.

2. It is better to inclose your card in the package.

The Building With Swinging Doors

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a young man enters a building, accompanied by a woman, I assume that he opens the door and allows her to enter first. But when there are swinging doors, who enters first? B. E. H.

WHEN there is a swinging door at an entrance the man steps behind the lady, to the right, and, waiting for her to enter one of the compartments, gives the door enough of a push so that it will be easy for the woman to continue the momentum. This is naturally correct, since it gives the gentleman an opportunity of being of the greatest service to the lady. And service is, fundamentally, the basis of rules of etiquette for the social forms between ladies and gentlemen.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade-Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

"NERVES" Never Bother Her NOW

"I have been taking your Effervescent Nervine Tablets now since November 1928 and certainly have improved a lot. I have not had a nervous spell since I started to take them and I have gained, from 97 to 113½ lbs. I am feeling and doing fine now."

Geraldine Stickle.

Countless thousands have found in Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablets grateful relief from nervous troubles. They are so handy and pleasant to take. Just drop a Dr. Miles' Effervescent NERVINE Tablet into a glass of water. You'll like the pleasant effervescent drink it makes. You'll be delighted with the way it relaxes tense "NERVES." This time-tested NERVINE formula is harmless. Now it is combined with bicarbonate of soda and citric acid in handy Effervescent Tablets. They soothe the nervous system, and tend to correct acidosis—a frequent cause of nervousness.

Relief or Your Money Back

Get a package of Dr. Miles' Effervescent Tablets at any drug store. Use them according to directions. If you are not satisfied with results your druggist will refund your money. At All Drug Stores. (DM)

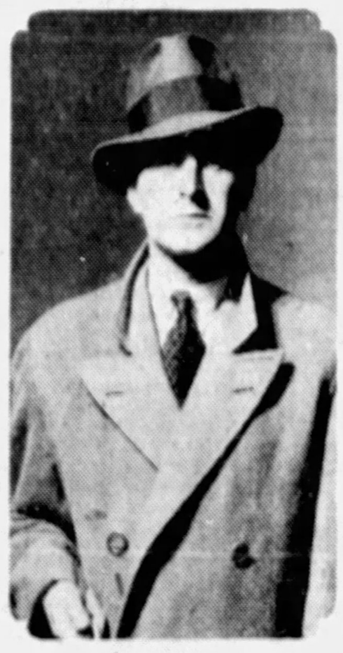
Theft of Diamond Bracelet Brings Suit For Slander

Lady Bettine Fayne Accuses Olivia Mansfeld, who Sues for Damages —Mayfair Hints at Jealousy

Olivia Mansfeld



Brett Arden

Lady Bettine

Mayfair has a new sensation, involving women of note. Olivia Mansfeld, only daughter of Sir Leith Mansfeld, yesterday amazed London society by bringing suit for slander against Lady Bettine Fayne, social arbiter. Lady Bettine has refused to retract her accusation that Miss Mansfeld stole from her a highly valued bracelet of diamonds and emeralds, said to be a gift to her from Brett Arden, the noted tennis player, who has been seen both in the mansion of Lady Bettine and in the tucked-away little studio of Miss Mansfeld . . . This is the theme of a new Cosmopolitan serial, "THE BRACELET," by Robert Hichens. We have told it as a news story because by so doing we show how human and close to life are the novels and stories Cosmopolitan publishes.

It is because of its Editor's art of mirroring so faithfully the drama of life that Cosmopolitan is of unfailing interest to people who live and think. Begin "THE BRACELET," in April Cosmopolitan, now on sale.

Shaw's Views on Booze

George Bernard Shaw rarely talks about American affairs. He has spoken now, however. Forcefully, brilliantly, he tells us what he thinks of America's fight to abolish booze. He gives us, too, his own idea of the way to get rid of drink. It is Cosmopolitan, of course, that prints this thought-provoking, talk-provoking article.

Irvin S. Cobb

"The Frenchman had Faith, the Italian had Hope, and the Spaniard had Charity"—yet they were after all a trio of murderers trying to bluff fate. In "Faith, Hope and Charity" Irvin S. Cobb has given us a story that ranks with his best work.

Louis Bromfield

in his new novel, "SHATTERED GLASS," has just raised the curtain on his drama of intrigue, adventure and romance—in the lives of a dozen interesting people of high and low degree in New York.

P. G. Wodehouse

whose inimitable characters appear every month in Cosmopolitan, presents this month an Irish water spaniel—an open-air flapper—Bertie—Tuppy—Jeeves—combined—they make a story full of chuckles.

Captain Blood

When Captain Blood comes in sight of a Spanish galleon loaded with treasure, there occurs as pretty a piece of sea fighting as has ever been put in a story by Rafael Sabatini.

E. Barrington

who interpreted "The Divine Lady" and "Glorious Apollo" understands modern people too. In "He Knew Women" she tells what happened to a gay deceiver.

These Too in April Cosmopolitan:

I Prophesy that George V Will Be the Last King of England

The Countess of Warwick descends from Oliver Cromwell. Speaking from her assured position in English court life, she keenly analyzes British life today. She not only tells you why she feels that King George V will be the last king of England—she also shows why the Prince of Wales would make an admirable First President.

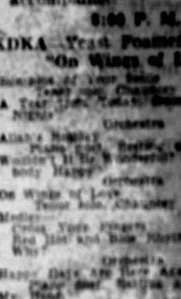
PURE BLOOD HEALTH



WHY DRUG THE STOMACH WHEN YOUR BLOOD CELLS CONTROL MOST ALL CHRONIC DISEASES?

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS affect not only one organ but have a corrective influence on every part of the body. One serum frequently gives relief. Chronic and obstinate diseases that have long resisted all forms of treatment readily yield to the action of BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS.

Call for free consultation, no matter what your ailment is. No doctor charges. Patients pay for the serum only. Successfully treating Anemia, Asthma, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Kidney and Stomach Trouble, High Blood Pressure, Neuritis, Catarrh of Ears, Nose and Throat, all Blood and Skin Diseases. Laboratory Examination, Blood, Free. Come and talk to the patients. Results are what you desire. 35,000 people have taken these serums at this Laboratory during just seven years.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

LISTENERS will go snooping with Walter Winchell tonight. As guest artist of the Van Heusen premiere on WJAS at 9, the popular New York columnist will take his audience into the many places he visits to gather material for his widely-read "On Broadway," which appears daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Walter is said to be "the best-informed man in America on everybody else's business."

Helen Nugent

Harking back to something that reminds us of old times, Henry M. Neely, "The Old Stager," will recreate the outstanding musical hits of "The Vagabond King," WJAS at 10. Helen Nugent, contralto, will be assisted by two newcomers, Marie Gerard, soprano, and Kenyon Conden, baritone.

Chauncey Parsons will sing "On Wings of Love" for the Yeast Foamers, KDKA at 8. Elliott Shaw, baritone, will give us the beautiful "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser" on the 8:30 Mobiloil concert over WCAE.

The unusual will be provided by KDKA at 11:30 in the Uniontown Bugle and Drum Corps.

Word is being passed about that WJAS will get 5,000 watts and a new wave length when managers of the station and the Federal Radio Commission go into a huddle April 16.

HOW IT'S DONE

Mrs. R. R. wants to know how the hookup was made for Amos and Andy when they appeared at KayDee. The program originated in the studios of WMAQ, Chicago, where Bill Hay gave the opening announcement while the phonograph sawed away with "The Perfect Song." As soon as he finished, an operator at NBC in New York gave KDKA the signal to go ahead with Amos and Andy. The line used ran from Pittsburgh to New York to Chicago. Other network stations were hooked in the same as on a party telephone line.

H. F. M.—You heard WGM at Jeannette.

WMAQ promises television broadcasts on a regular schedule within the next 60 days. 9WXAP on 6040 kilocycles will be the station.

* * *

A letter of indignation sent Elsie Lichenstuhl at KayDee asked that the pioneer take steps to have a certain village postmaster removed from office because he refused to honor a money order made out to "Miss Elsie," the name used by Miss Lichenstuhl in her broadcasts.

RED HOT MOOSIC

"Red" McCoy has a musical furnace in his home that picks up all WJAS programs transmitted over the antenna not more than 200 feet away. The freak reception is caused by induction of signals. "Red" first discovered the phenomenon when the phantom voice of someone singing "Turn on the Heat" emanated from the furnace door as he was about to throw in some coal. The program happened to be Jack Forrest entertainment from Moose Temple.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

IN THE last Marx Brothers show here Harpo literally stole the shirt from a fellow's back and now two Pittsburghers have stolen two street cars from their barns. We are all for this kind of stealing. It shows ingenuity and a ridiculous contempt for convention. We congratulate the "thieves" and we have hopes that the day is near when somebody will slip into a Jones & Laughlin plant and drive away in a high-powered locomotive.

A year or so ago when Charlie Mencken, brother of the writer, was living in the East End, a Pittsburgh reporter encouraged him to join the Rotary Club simply because Brother Henry isn't fond of Rotarians. Charlie's favorite author, incidentally, is Mark Twain, and his young daughter wants to be a writer.

TWINS, whom you can't tell apart, are Frances and Margaret Heckert, students in Carnegie Tech's drama school. When

Chester Wallace, head of the drama school, wants one, he asks the other, "Where's your sister?"

Norman Allderdice, president of the Traffic Club, faced the difficult task of introducing his father, Taylor Allderdice, as the toastmaster at the club's recent banquet. He solved the assignment ably by saying: "I hope he is as good a toastmaster as he is a father."

THERE is a joint skeleton in the past of Tom McMahon, of the Board of Assessors, and Harry Smith, of Liberty Showprint. Some 30 years ago, after performing with St. Bridgid's players, a local company of amateurs, they took to the road in "Damon and Pythias." They got as far as Uniontown where, in costume, their knees were frozen by the theater's cold. They quit the stage.

Ping Pong is becoming popular with adults in Pittsburgh. It's played on the same principles as tennis. You bang the ball at your opponent and if he doesn't bang it back you win. You can play the game on your dining room table, but it's hard on the furniture. The season for ping pong is winter.

PROBABLY the best picture to appear in a Pittsburgh newspaper in the last six months was that one of the fire at Stanwix street and Penn avenue photographed by Leo Harris, of the Sun-Telegraph. The Eastman Kodak Company, among others, is raving over the work.

The most embarrassed person we have ever seen was an attractive little Italian girl of 7 or 8 years. She was standing outside her father's tailor shop on Wylie avenue and her father, nearby, was enjoying the spectacle of a half-dozen mischievous Hill district youngsters who were singing to her, "I'm In Love With You, Honey."

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 12.

Say, these scientists and chemists are getting smart. They get some kind of a concoction called the "Black Light" and the prohibition authorities have already bought the exclusive right. If you have been drinking, they can give you a wig of their dope on top of yours, and immediately your innards loom up like a bulletin board.

It registers the brand of stuff you been drinking, the city it comes from, the color of the bootlegger's hair, and the price you paid. If it's in Oklahoma City, the Jamaica ginger will loom up like you was going to bake a cake. So if you see a dry officer coming, don't hide the bottle, but conceal your stomach.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Gang Promotes Business For Ice Cream Man

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER VII.

WHEREVER Algonquin was, there, also, was the hokey-pokey man. One day, however, despite the crowd, business depression fell upon him; too much salt in the ice cream had spoiled both his trade and his good temper. In the deep recess of his necessity, the happy inspiration was conceived, that if Q could be induced to buy, his business would revive. He offered Q two hokey-pokey sandwiches at the price of one. The ice cream was spread between two sweet crackers, and eaten in a messy, dripping kind of lump.

"But I haven't any money," Q said.

"Here y'are, anyway f'nothin'," the man offered.

Q refused, because his code forbade him accepting gifts from strangers.

"You get the boys t'buy, y'get yours free," the hokey-pokey man offered craftily.

Slats elbowed his way to Q, and told him about the salt. was indignant. "That's a mean trick!" Q said loudly.

"No, no, not thisa lot," the man explained. "I get more t'morro; y'get more boy promise t'buy; y'get yours free——"

That struck Q as being satisfactory; he saw he would be earning his hokey-pokey sandwiches. "If there is any salt in them—the slightest bit"—he said decisively, "I won't do business with you. You must see to that ——"

The Italian promised, and Q went into committee with the Gang, as to the best ways and means to drum up trade to the profit of us all. He was emphatic in stating that he would not consider doing it just for himself. The upshot of it was the adoption of a selling scheme under which each buyer received, along with his purchase from the hokey-pokey man, a piece of paper with a number on it. The next day, those who held certain numbers—the winning ones to be decided by Q himself—were to receive three sandwiches absolutely free. Q was to receive three, every day for his personal commission, and each member of the Gang two, for writing the numbers on slips of paper.

Big Business
Quentin Promotes Sale Of Ice Cream

This suggestion was put before the hokey-pokey man, who countered with the rival proposition that there to be only six winning numbers, and two sandwiches only, to be given each winner, Q to receive two, the Gang one. After considerable wrangling, we compromised upon these terms. Q shook hands with the Italian to ratify the agreement, and the plan went into effect the next day. The Gang undertook the dangerous and laborious job of writing the tickets on schoolpads during school hours, whenever a teacher was sufficiently occupied to permit of its being proceeded with.

The plan worked splendidly. Business boomed, for we informed the whole school—some 600 children—at morning recess, Q barking loudest and most effectively, eventually developing in his sales argument an historical and patriotic bit of propaganda, to the effect that "George Washington was the Father of his Country, and might easily have been the inventor of ice cream. . . ." This statement, asserted with the utmost gravity, was seriously considered by many, and led to the purchase of ice cream as an expression of high-minded patriotism.

Traffic Halted
School Principal Opposed To System

Q then went into a great silence, selecting the winning numbers, and manfully resisting all attempts to influence his decisions.

After three days of record sales, and the consumption of a quite satisfactory amount of ice cream, we were thoroughly disgusted by Murch putting a stop to our traffic, on the ground that he regarded it as a lottery, and, therefore, was opposed to it.

Q protested to him personally, saying in part: "You're boss as far as the curb, but not one inch over it. Absolutely not! We grant you the sidewalk, but certainly not the street, where the ice cream is. I shall ask Maj. Sylvester about it." (Richard Sylvester was the Superintendent of Police of the District of Columbia.) Murch, however, was adamant.

"Darned unfair!" Q said angrily. "Something ought to be done about you, really!"

It may have been about this time that Mrs. Roosevelt suddenly arrived at the school, in the White House carriage. Following the President's unexpected visit, this was a notable incident for our neighborhood, or for aristocratic Massachusetts avenue, for that matter, as the reins were handled by the first coachman. Presently, Mrs. Roosevelt was met by Mr. Murch, who hurried back for his hat, and departing with her engaged in a most earnest conversation as they rode through the streets of Washington.

Problems
Quentin's Position Cause Of Strange Circumstances

We were sure that some matter of discipline was involved; we hoped desperately, too, that something "was being done" about Murch. But knowing Q to be no tattle-tale, knowing, also, that it was utterly outside his code to complain to his mother or father, however sharp his disagreement with school authority, or bitter his anger against the principal, we were afraid the real subject of the conversation was the disciplining of Q.

Such it undoubtedly was; for soon afterwards Q remarked, with no apparent cause: "I know it's right that I should be treated like everybody else. I want that. But what's the matter with me? I am like everybody else. . . . But why do people have to keep telling me I should be? If Murch keeps it up, he'll make me different, and then he'll be sorry. . . ."

Quentin understood, vaguely, as did the rest of us, that there were various mystifying problems that were his, because he lived in the White House, and that were not ours because we did not. Without being able to compile a clear statement concerning any one of them, we puzzled considerably over Quentin, ourselves, and this problem; and we all profited, for the beginnings of logical thought were thus induced. . . . Q interrogated himself, as he had done about being "different," as TR himself might well have done at Q's age, had he possessed Q's splendid mental and physical vigor — which, we know, the President had to achieve slowly, painfully, by struggle. There was no doubt but that Q inherited great possessions. Then, his home environment—no family understood each other better—produced in Q, a little later, a most startlingly clear point of view, for one his age.

SCARF CLEARED IN FUND FRAUD

Charles S. Scarf, of 1012 Mirror street, former city treasury employe, charged with embezzlement of funds, was found not guilty in Criminal Court today when a sealed verdict was read to visiting Judge J. A. McLaughry, of Mercer County, who heard the case.

An information charging Scarf with juggling funds amounting to $12,183 in the city treasurer's office last year, had been lodged several months ago by the late Wallace Boreland, at that time city treasurer. The case was brought to trial yesterday and went to the jury a few hours later.

Evidence failed to disclose that Scarf had taken the amount, and no proof that the money was actually taken was offered by the prosecution.

Pioneer Kentucky Weaver Gives Exhibit Here

By PENELOPE REDD

"Size warp a little but not too much, so 'twon't be hateful," was one of the hundred details mentioned by Mrs. Riley Fox, the most famous of Kentucky mountain weavers and a character straight away out of Lucy Furman.

Penelope Redd

Mrs. Fox's loom is now set up on the fourth floor of Joseph Horne's, where she is giving daily demonstrations from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 12 noon to 3 p. m. through March 15.

Mrs. Fox has had weaving as her chief delight for almost 40 years. She learned, as a child from her grandmother to treadle the pedals with her small, bare toes.

She carded the wool. She hoed and picked the cotton, spun it and sized it with starch. She dyed the wool with maple, hickory and walnut bark, and with wild indigo. Then the ancestral loom was threaded and the gay shuttles flew merrily through.

FOLLOWS EARLY VOCATION

Within her span of life, Mrs. Fox has exercised the handicraft upon which she was as dependent as were the pioneer women in Elizabeth Maddox Roberts' saga, "The Great Meadow."

"Kivvers" represent the sole means of expression to the mountain woman. Twelve children, a husband who was "poorly," feeding visitors from the church, yet Mrs. Fox could always forget any serious or casual interruption when she once again set foot to treadle.

"You got to use mind as well as hand and foot in weaving," she emphasized. "Visiting folk brought me pictures to copy. I studied but could not count the pattern out. Took the picture to our oldest weaver but she said no like borders could be made on our looms.

One day when I was watching nine of the children down with measles, and none to help 'cause 58 Foxes in the valley was down too, the way to draw that pattern came to mind; and when I wove it every stitch came true."

Mrs. Fox and other weavers have been aided by an anonymous philanthropist. Himself a mountaineer, he went into the cotton mills, succeeded and then considered ways of helping his own people.

Strangely enough, his system closely resembles that of the Soviet government, inasmuch as he places the materials for weaving within the reach of all; provides community weaving houses where the work may be performed without domestic distraction, and he pays the weaver immediately when the coverlet is finished.

OUTPUT INCREASED

This system has increased the output of the settlements from an average of between 50 and 75 from all of the weavers to an annual increase of from 1,200 to 1,500 authentic, hand-woven coverlets.

Mrs. Allie Owenby, herself a mountain woman and a graduate of the school founded by the Pi Beta Phi Sorority, supervises these community weaving houses. She travels with Mrs. Fox, who was never beyond her own neighborhood until her journey to Boston last year.

The old Kentucky mountain patterns for coverlets which are woven of wool, and for counterpanes which are woven of cotton, like the folk songs and the folk dances of the district, are so well known that we need but call to mind the familiar redolence of "Pine Bloom," "Jefferson Garden," "Wheel of Fortune," "Whig Rose" and "Tennessee "lazing Star" or "Kentucky Log Cabin."

Appropriately enough an exhibit by our distinguished group of Pittsburgh weavers, who have been trained at the Carnegie Institute of Technology by Mrs. Roswell Johnson, also will be shown in conjunction with Mrs. Fox's demonstration.

BANDITS TAKE OFFICER'S GUN

Patrolman Frank Waite was sitting in a booth in a restaurant at 4100 Penn avenue early today drinking coffee.

So enjoyable was the warm beverage that Waite didn't see what was going on in the front of the restaurant.

There was plenty going on. Two bandits entered, pointing guns at Steve Dascalos, proprietor; Miss Jean Bubel, waitress, of 310 Sheridan avenue, and a customer. They took $47.

Then the robbers spotted Patrolman Waite in the booth. One of them stepped back, aimed a pistol at the officer, and said:

"I'll take your gun, please."

And he did.

The bandits escaped.

Half an hour earlier two men believed by police to be the same pair, held up the restaurant of Charles Niederst, at 632 East Ohio street, and escaped after robbing Niederst of $100 and taking $30 from the cash register.

BOULEVARD WORK TO BEGIN

Turtle Creek Span Also Let; Babcock Returns, Commissioners Hold Meet

With the return of County Commissioner E. V. Babcock from a southern trip today two important contracts were awarded at the first Commissioners' meeting held for more than a month. Commissioner C. C. McGovern attended, with Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong presiding.

A contract for the construction of the Allegheny River boulevard between Penn township and Verona borough, was awarded to the John F. Casey Company for $1,984,807. They were the lowest bidders. Work on that project will start when good weather sets in.

A contract for the super-structure for bridge No. 4, Moss Side boulevard, Turtle Creek, was awarded to the Independent Bridge Company for $144,944.85. They also were the lowest bidders. The electrical contract for that work went to the K. K. Wood Company for $6,530.

BOY WEEPS AT MOTHER'S TRIAL

Bursting into loud weeping while being cross examined during the trial of his mother for the murder of his common law stepfather, James Heffner, 9, Negro, broke down in Criminal Court and was allowed to retire without being put to further questioning.

The lad was put on the stand by Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Adair before visiting Judge Charles M. Culver, of Bradford County, as a climax in the trial of Mrs. Elizabeth Heffner, 32, Negress, for the slaying of James Forsyne, 36, her common law mate, at their home at 551 Lowell street December 9. The boy was in bed but wide awake, he said, when he saw his mother plunge the ice pick into his father's chest. It was still there when the police arrived.

The state closed its case yesterday and defense testimony is being heard today.

RAIDERS SEIZE RUM, HOLD 4

Four men were arrested by prohibition agents in raids on three clubs, a dwelling and a restaurant yesterday.

John Hackey, 58, was arrested, according to the agents, in a raid on a club at 1132 Metropolitan street, where small quantities of home brew, wine and whisky were reported seized.

Clubs at 227 North avenue, Millvale, where Morris Sullivan, 55, was arrested, and 127 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, yielded liquor, the raiders reported.

In the home of Philip Tiamoco, 45, of 4503 Chatsworth street, the agents reported finding a 100-gallon still, 25 gallons of moonshine and 18 barrels of mash. Tiamoco was released on his own recognizance.

Seven pints of gin confiscated in a raid on a lunch room at 503 Homewood avenue, resulted in the arrest of Louis Capone, agents said.

Charge Negro With Stabbing, Holdup

Charged with robbery and four other counts, James Solomon, 33, a Negro, of Port Perry, today was being held without bail in the Allegheny County jail following a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. S. R. Sharp, of East Pittsburgh, last night. Solomon, it was testified, stabbed Frank Smith, 28, another Negro, of Duquesne, 12 times Monday night, and was identified as the man who attempted to rob the grocery of Mrs. Steve Antolovic, Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, Sunday. East Pittsburgh police apprehended him yesterday.

EXTRA SERVICE PROPOSED FOR MT. LEBANON

Oriole Application Faces No Opposition; West Penn Protests Bridgeville Route

Application has been made by the Oriole Motor Coach Lines, Inc., to extend its route to Parker Drive and Cochran road, Mt. Lebanon, an added distance of two miles for a 15-cent fare.

Examiner W. E. Best, of the Public Service Commission, heard the testimony and no objection was offered for permission to give the added service. The company intends to operate the proposed branch line from Parker Drive over the old Washington Pike and through Independence street in Greentree to the Bankville road to Pittsburgh. There will be a 15 to 20 minute service.

The company is now operating a line of buses from Liberty avenue and Ferry street to Mt. Lebanon over the Banksville road.

APPLICATION OPPOSED

The West Penn Bus Company is opposing the application of Ezio Bigi to operate a through bus line from Bridgeville to Pittsburgh, over the Bower Hill road and through the Liberty Tubes by way of West Liberty avenue. The Pennsylvania Railroad, Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad, Pittsburgh Street Railways Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company are protestants. The West Penn bus line has applied for permission to operate a route from Avella to Pittsburgh by way of Bridgeville, Carnegie and the West End. The P. & W. THUGS SOUGHT AFTER FIVE HOLDUPS

Armed Bandits Get $700 and Rum in East End Store; Downtown Robber Escapes

Police today were searching for bandits who staged five holdups which netted them $837 last night.

Five armed men, their faces covered with handkerchiefs, entered the Walnut Pharmacy, 5541 Walnut street, and ordered H. G. Burnap, the proprietor, and a clerk to throw up their hands. The leader of the gang went to the two cash registers in the store and looted them of $700.

The two victims then were led into the back room, where the thugs took 12 pints of whisky and two gallons of alcohol.

Forty dollars was stolen from a cash register in the Russell cigar store, at 810 Liberty avenue, by a thug who threatened Sara Spiegle, of 226 South Millvale avenue, a clerk.

Samuel Van Horn, of 962 Lilac street, was confronted by three armed men while he was placing his automobile in a garage near his home. The trio robbed him of $7 and a watch valued at $50, and then drove off in his automobile.

Two armed men took $75 from a safe in the shoe store of Anthony Grigaitis, at 3545 Butler street.

Joseph Weintraub, a grocer, was robbed of $15 by two men who entered his store at 1720 Perrysville avenue, he reported to police.

A safe robbery in the office of the James W. Houston Company, wholesale grocers, at 1341 Liberty avenue, was frustrated when a pedestrian detected a man chopping off the handles of the vault and summoned Patrolman Edgar Sullivan, who ran to the rear of the building in time to see the man leap from a second-story window into Spring way. The patrolman was outdistanced after a chase of several squares.

CROSSLAND IN STATE RACE

Nomination petition blanks have been issued at the county commissioners' office for James E. Crossland, city clerk of McKeesport, to enter the primary as a candidate for the Legislature from the Ninth District in opposition to the incumbent, Representative John A. Rhodes.

Grossland said yesterday he did not take out the papers, but admitted knowledge of their circulation. It was generally agreed that he would have to make an independent run as the Republican organization was said to favor Rhodes.

Petitions have been circulated for two other candidates from the Ninth District, A. W. Gallagher and William E. Beck, Jr. William T. Norton, secretary of the McKeesport school board, who unsuccessfully opposed Mayor George S. Lyle in 1925, was said to be a prospective candidate for the Legislature.

Legislature nomination petitions were taken out also for James Hanley, Third District, and George A. Begg, Tenth. Papers were taken out for Helen R. Douglass as a candidate for member of the Republican State Committee from the Forty-fourth Senatorial District.

BEAUTY QUEEN TEXAS GIRL

MIAMI, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—A blond beauty from Fort Worth, Tex., 20-year-old Jeanett Eastment, last night donned the crown of "America's Sweetheart" as seven judges named her as the winner among 44 contestants in the first annual international Miami beauty pageant.

Alberta McKellopp, 17, of Los Angeles, bore the colors of California to a second place in the contest, with 18-year-old Margaret Ekdal, of Tampa, bringing the state of Florida into third place.

Miss Eastment, 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing 120 pounds, was crowned immediately after the selection with a gem-studded coronet, and was presented with a giant loving cup. She will be given $2,500 as first prize in the pageant.

Among the girls first selected from the 44 entrants was Evelyn Witt, Pennsylvania.

WOMAN DEFIES BANDITS, GUNS

Guns and holdup men have no terrors for Mrs. Anna Baird, 36, clerk in West Homestead pharmacy, 215 West Eighth avenue. When two bandits, with pistols, entered the store late last night, forced a customer, Prof. Daniel McLaughlin, teacher at Thaddeus Stevens School, West End, into a rear room, and ordered Mrs. Baird to follow him, she refused to move.

One bandit struck Mrs. Baird. She held her ground. Then, as the bandit started looting the cash register, Mrs. Baird dashed to the street.

"Help!" she cried to a man in an automobile in front of the store. The man, an accomplice of the bandits in the store, ordered her to keep quiet. Mrs. Baird's screams attracted Constable R. L. Tierney.

As he arrived, running, the two bandits in the store dashed out, leaped into the waiting auto and escaped. Constable Tierney fired five shots at the fleeing auto.

The robbers' loot totaled $10.

Mr. Woodlock said that it is just as easy to be prompt in payment of bills as it is to be honest. The Retail Credit Men's Association is sponsoring the Tuesday night radio talks in the interest of good credit.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Should a comely girl resent admiring glances from strangers who are not impertinent in their manner?

JESSIE WATSON, Carr Hotel, fat lady: "Not if the look is a clean one. From clean - looking men, a glance or two can do no harm. Any girl can tell when a man's being respectful. And respectful men look at pretty girls just the same as others."

Miss Watson

MISS DOT ZEILINGER, East End, model: "That all depends. If your're out dancing, she might resent it, unless it's a tag dance. But she resents glances from the street corner variety. Homely girls usually make a big fuss about things like that and rave on about being 'picked up.' But comely girls take their good luck as a matter of fact."

Miss Zeilinger

JOHNNY ECKHARDT, Jr., Miracle Theater, half boy: "No, it's natural for a man to look at a good-looking girl, admiringly. That's not a homely girl, now, I mean a really good looker. They should take it as a matter of course and not resent it, I think. Of course, I'm not a girl, so maybe I don't know."

J. Eckhart

MISS GEORGIANA JORDAN, Downtown, dance instructor. "Well, now, you see, it's this way. No girl want's to be bothered with the advances of a lot of loafers and drug store cowboys. She knows that no gentleman is hanging around corners trying to pick up strange girls. But there are all kinds of glances, and all kinds of men. The right kind of a glance in the right place from the right kind of man might be different. There are exceptions to the rule, you know."

Miss Jordan

DICK LEIBERT, Penn Theater, organist: "No, I don't think they should. Women's appearances would soon be disregarded if it weren't for the fact that men appreciate them. Most men regard women as the more beautiful side of life, spiritually as well as physically. To see an occasional flash of beauty is a happy contrast to the commonplace things in business, in the sordid round of everyday life."

Dick Leibert

MRS. A. KAMHALY, Mt. Washington, housewife: "I don't think so if they're not impertinent about it. I don't like men who pass remarks at girls, however. An admiring glance is a compliment from a gentleman. But save me from the man who tries to force himself on a woman who isn't interested in being picked up by a stranger."

PLAN TO SPEND $3,500,000 ON SPAN

Improvement on Lincoln Highway at Turtle Creek To Remove Obstructions

The county commissioners are expected to authorize within a few days the advertising of bids for the proposed George Washington Bridge on the Lincoln Highway over Turtle Creek. The bridge and the approaching highways are to be constructed at a cost of approximately $3,500,000. Half of the amount will be paid by the county and the remainder by the State Highway Department.

The combined road and bridge improvement effects a shortening of distance and will eliminate a long 10 per cent grade. The new cut-off will leave the present highway near the East McKeesport Borough line, extend through North Versailles Township, East Pittsburgh and North Braddock Boroughs and terminate near the intersection of Ardmore Boulevard and Electric avenue.

The improvement will cut the running time over the 2.8 miles stretch of highway from 25 minutes to 5 minutes, completely clearing the present railroad, street and railway obstructions. . . eliminates the bottle neck of Turtle Creek and East Pittsburgh streets. The span, which will be 1,700 feet long, is designed by the Bureau of Bridges of the County Department of Public Works. It will be the largest arch structure of this type in the country. The span will be 200 feet above the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and the Turtle Creek Valley.

DR. LEO BAUGHMAN, LOS ANGELES, CHECKING BALANCE AS HIS "BLUE STREAK" FAILS TO WEIGH AS MUCH AS ITS TROPHIES

MAN HIT BY CAB ASKS $50,000

A $50,000 damage suit was filed against the Yellow Cab Company in Common Pleas Court today by Attorney Leonard A. Mazer. In the bill of complaint Earl Chambers charges he was struck by a cab operated by a Yellow Cab Company agent January 25, at Eleventh street and Penn avenue.

The cab, it is charged, was being operated in the wrong direction in Penn avenue, a one-way street. The company was negligent in permitting operation of one of its vehicles by a driver unfamiliar with Pittsburgh's traffic ordinances, the bill claims. The bill avers Chambers is permanently injured as a result of the accident.

Lottery Suspect Is Held for Court

James Solomon, 35, of 55 Washington street, was held for court today charged with maintaining a lottery by Alderman George J. Anderson. County detectives, under Robert L. McMillen, led a raid in which clearing house pool record books were seized. The raid was staged on complaint filed with District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

Lone Bandit Robs Homestead Grocer

Turkish Cigaret Myth Exploded By Envoy Here

"Most Turkish cigarets are made of Greek tobacco," declared His Excellency, Haral Simpolous, Greek minister to the United States.

Visiting Pittsburgh to speak at a banquet in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of Greek independence, His Excellency proceeded to blast illusions about Turkish tobacco in his room in William Penn Hotel.

"Tobacco is the principal export from Greece to the United States. It is," he maintained, "probably the best tobacco smoked here." He handed his interviewers fragrant Turkish cigarets.

The minister was received at City-County Building by Mayor and Mrs. Kline. Later he was escorted about the city by Pittsburgh compatriots.

The banquet at which he is scheduled to speak tonight is to be staged by the Aristotle Chapter No. 24, Order of Aheppa.

TECH TO HEAR FRENCH VET

Students of Carnegie Tech were to hear a talk on "French Trade and Commerce" at 10:30 o'clock this morning. M. M. Garreau-Dombasle, commercial attache to the French embassy, was to give the talk.

M. Garreau-Dombasle has been active in French politics and diplomatic affairs for a number of years. A veteran of the World War, during which he was cited and decorated for bravery in action, he has been connected with commercial affairs in French service.

STREET CHANGE VOTED DOWN

The widening of Ralph avenue, from Lincoln to Teece avenues, was turned down by a unanimous vote of Bellevue council at their regular monthly meeting, held last night.

The thoroughfare, now a 50-foot street, an outlet to West View Borough, was designated to be widened to 60 feet. The widening length was to be more than 600 feet.

Councilmen rejected the improvement on basis that it would be an enormous expense to the taxpayers, and that it would not be a necessity at the present time.

Library Installs Magazine Index

A new index system for technical magazines has been installed in Carnegie Library's technology department. By means of the new cataloguing, the contents of 1800 leading technical magazines of the world are listed alphabetically by subject. It is said to offer Pittsburgh engineers a complete review of the technical press of the world within 10 days of publication.

Brotherhood Will Hear McInturff

The Rev. J. N. McInturff, pastor of the Calvary M. E. Church, North Side, will be the speaker at the annual banquet of the Men's Brotherhood of the West View M. E. Church, Friday night, in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration. The Ladies Aid Society will serve the dinner. C. A. McClin will be toastmaster. Several former pastors are expected to be present.

FREIGHT RATE RAISE STUDIED

More than 100 producers and consumers of manufactured iron and steel articles in this district were to meet today in the Chamber of Commerce to study the effects of the Interstate Commerce Commission's proposed increase in freight rates within the Pittsburgh industrial district. The new rates go into effect May 20 unless suspended in face of strong protests.

Donald O. Moore, manager of the traffic division of the local chamber, was to explain the new rate structure at the gathering to be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. According to Mr. Moore, the increase is designed to eliminate discrimination now shown between several steel producing districts and common markets. It is part of the commission's readjustment of rate structures made after a long study of conditions.

Memorial to Martin Sponsored by Judges

Judges of the Common Pleas and Orphans courts of Allegheny County have joined to provide a memorial collection of books in the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh in memory of Judge Richard W. Martin. These books will be purchased by the library and placed in the Pennsylvania room. Each book will carry a special book plate in honor of Judge Martin.

AIR STARS TALK AT LUNCHEON

Walter W. Hubbard, of New York, secretary of the Exchange Club Committee on Aviation, spoke yesterday at a special aviation luncheon of the local Exchange Club in the William Penn Hotel, as a feature of the aircraft show now being held here by the Aero Club of Pittsburgh. Hubbard spoke on the program of safety in aviation being sponsored by the national body of the club.

Other speakers were: Mrs. Louise Thaden; Louis T. Barry, president of the Aero Club; C. Bedell Monroe; Maj. Sydney J. Owen, of the State Committee on Aeronautics; Capt. William J. Austin, chairman of the show committee; Ray Krimm, director or the show, and Paul Brattain, Washington manager of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

DAVIS STRESSES OPPORTUNITIES

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP.)—Secretary of Labor Davis characterized the United States as a land of unexampled prosperity and opportunity, asserting that "30,000,000 people born on other shores have found it a land of opportunity, and I am one of those 30,000,000."

In a radio address under the auspices of the United States Flag Association, the labor secretary said "America is the first country on earth to have regard for the well-being of the common man."

"If you go back 300 years," he asserted, "you discover that there was not a powerful lord or king in Europe who lived as well as the type of worker who is becoming typical of America."

Business Boom Here Shown By Chamber Report

A general increase in business activity for the three months ending March 1, over the same period a year ago, it noted in a report issued by H. W. Correll, statistician of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. The reports howed that $7,860,642 in building permits had been issued by the city during the three months. This number represents an increase of 34.6 per cent above those issued for the same period a year ago.

Bank clearings for the last three months amounted to $2,219,515,740 and checks drawn on individual accounts in local banks in the same time totaled $2,918,178,132, representing a volume of business 25 per cent greater than the same period a year ago, Correll said.

OPPOSE MARKET HOUSE REMOVAL

The South Side Business Men's Association adopted a resolution last night protesting against the proposed removal of the South Side Market House.

It was pointed out that the market attracts people from the hilltops who patronize the other stores. It was also mentioned that if the market house is razed there will be no hall suitable for the basketball games and community affairs now held in the second floor of the building.

A committee was appointed to present the protest to Council. It is composed of President John C. Grau, John A. Jones, Lawrence Woshner, G. Wilbe, George Hansen, L. Schemm, J. Kolbak and Harry Zoller.

Removal of the market house is advocated by the South Side Advancement Association, which recommends that a park be established on the site.

Testimonial Fete Planned for Herron

President of Council John S. Herron will be honored at a testimonial dinner to be held jointly by the Homewood-Brushton Board of Trade and the Homewood Business Men's Association in the William Penn Hotel the night of April 29. Preliminary plans for the banquet were made at a meeting of the board of trade last night in the Homewood branch of the Carnegie Library.

Frank E. Shaughnessy, president of the board appointed a banquet committee. Dick Briney was named chairman and will be assisted by J. Scott Morgan and Harry I. Neaman.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Stage Group Plans Play March 25

WITH young spring and hoary winter playing hide-and-seek these March days, life is full of variety. When one wakes up in the morning, one may find a shy spring morning, or a sky filled with rollicking snowflakes.

And social life is just as varied as the weather. Weddings and entertainments for brides-to-be, benefits and amateur theatricals are the outstanding interests of society women spending late winter at home.

One of the most interesting of the theatrical events of the month will be the Stage and Play Society's production of Rello's Wild Oat by Claire Kummer on the evening of March 25 in the Carnegie Music Hall.

Large Cast

By the way, this performance will mark Mr. Donnelly's second appearance in Stage and Play productions this season, and his third performance with the group. Mr. Bassett will make his second appearance.

Mrs. H. Allen Macnesney is the stage manager, and Chester Wallace and James Macfarlane directors.

LAST night musically-inclined society women attended the Dallmeyer Russell concert in the Hotel Schenley ballroom. Among those I noticed was Mrs. James Edward Lewis, who wore a gown of tangerine crepe fashioned with a brief train, and a wrap of black velvet with a deep cape collar of ermine. I noticed Mrs. Brandon Smith, too, wearing deep ivory satin with a wide band of crepe in the same shade bordering the sweeping skirt. Her wrap was of turquoise velvet with a white fox collar.

THE days of March will be made more attractive by the many entertainments planned to honor Mary Cutler Lewis, daughter of the James Edward Lewises of Aylesboro avenue, whose marriage to Solon Armour Person, of Memphis, Tenn., will take place March 26 in the Lewis home.

Nuptial Parties

Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, Jr., will entertain with a bridge on Saturday for Mary and Phyllis Person will entertain that evening with a dinner dance in the Pittsburgh Country Club.

And on Wednesday, March 19, Mrs. William Howard Braun will give a luncheon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club for Mary Nan Bunton, will give a bridge luncheon on March 21 in her home and that evening Rhoda Gamble will give a buffet supper in her Oakmont home for the bridal party. On the first day Betty Charters, who'll be one of the bride-maids, will give a dinner dance in the Pittsburgh Country Club for the bridal party.

Federation to Answer Antis' Vote Request With Dry Rallies

MRS. JOHN A. FRICK, president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, an organization which has repeatedly urged laws favoring prohibition, has received a communication from the recently organized Pennsylvania Branch of the Association Opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment asking the clubwomen to join their organization and co-operate with them. The answer from the State Federation is a series of district luncheon meetings planned under auspices of the law observance committee to acquaint women with conditions, to arouse them from their indifference and to rally to the defense of the Snyder Act, which the anti-organization is seeking to repeal.

The southwestern district meeting will be held in the Congress of Clubs, Monday, March 24, with Mrs. Edward Franklin White, of Indianapolis, a former vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the first chairman of the law observance committee of the Federation, as speaker. Mrs. H. M. Kirk, of Moody avenue, New Castle, district chairman, is taking reservations for the luncheon, but reservations may also be made at the Congress clubhouse. Miss Gertrude MacKinney, of Butler, is state chairman of law observance.

STEINWAY

is almost a necessity

For the expression of the deeper things of life, the possession of a good piano is almost imperative. No piano is more splendidly fitted for such expression than the Steinway.

The Steinway is more than a piano. It is a friendly, sympathetic companion—always within reach, always ready to bring you the enchanting world of music. It is an instrument that through 75 years has won the praise of virtually every famous musician.

Yet the Steinway is not expensive. Viewed as an investment over the 30, 40, or even 50 years which will constitute its lifetime, the Steinway is truly economical. . . . Convenient payments will be arranged if you wish.

Prices $925 and up.

NATIONS OF THE WORLD CONTRIBUTE TO NEW MODE

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 12.—Spain takes its place again in the sartorial League of Nations that contributes so much to the success of the mode. The flaring skirt attached to a tight, snug yoke gives an effect that is distinctly Iberian, as does the bolero that is borrowed from the picturesque national costume of sometimes sunny Spain. Greece, too, is quite well represented in the sartorial league, but it is of course the Greece of other days when the costume consisted of graceful draperies banded at the bust and hips. France contributes the charms and demure details of the Empire period, the styles of which can be visualized in the high waist, long, full skirt and off-the-shoulder decolletage that distinguished that era. Another page out of the book of yesterday is suggested by the postillion cape that is to be found on some of the newest coats, while it is believed that many of the more formal afternoon dresses of next summer will be of the type immortalized by Kate Greenaway.

A FROCK showing distinctly Spanish influence in the afternoon mode from Redfern, sketched for this page. Of heavy black satin, it is trimmed with large appliqued flowers of white satin. An attached shoulder scarf is knotted in front and is trimmed with the same white flowers. Starting from a close yoke cut in points, the skirt flares with a wide circular line and reaches to the instep.

A COAT that is both practical and picturesque is the model from Thomas et Leon. It is of gray-blue homespun with an amusing low-placed cape buttoned at each shoulder with flat nickel buttons. The roll collar is very shallow and stands up at the sides and back. Appliqued bands trim the coat and the sleeves.

WILL DEDICATE TORONTO SHAFT

Plans for the dedication of a $100,000 monument at the June convention of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, in Toronto, commemorating 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada, were outlined today by Leo V. Youngworth, imperial potentate. He is in Pittsburgh to attend the spring ceremonial of Syria Temple tonight.

Governors of all states in the United States and Canadian provinces, government officials and leaders in affairs of the two countries will be invited to attend the Toronto convention, he said. Addresses will be broadcast to all parts of the world.

Youngworth came to Pittsburgh from Cumberland, Md., escorted by a delegation of Pittsburgh Shriners who occupied the private car of Superintendent S. E. Beck, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

The Show Boat Club To Reopen Tonight

The Show Boat Club, the old Flotilla Club renamed, will stage its formal opening tonight. Harry Spear, as master of ceremonies, heads the list of entertainers. He formerly was with the Loew's Publix and the Stanley-Warner chains. There will be seven acts, leading off with Tommy McFarland, Irish tenor. Two dance numbers are on the bill, featuring Rae Russell, a local girl, and the Caminos, dance team. Olga Restova, singer; the Carol Sisters, comediennes, and Marion Roland, blues singer, also appear. Dewey Bergman and his orchestra are featured. "Doc" Markowitz is manager of the club.

Ultimatum Issued On Town Hall Site

The North Side Board of Trade and the Homewood - Brushton Board of Trade last night passed resolutions calling upon county commissioners to "either select a site for the Town Hall or adequately explain why there should be any further delays."

HILL OUT FOR GOSSER'S JOB

L. L. Hill, assistant superintendent of mails in the division of mails, Pittsburgh Post Office, has become a candidate for the postmastership if it is vacated by Postmaster Gosser this summer.

Mr. Hill believes that the office should go to a man who has risen in the postal service and his own record has been cited by his supporters. He was born April 5, 1874, in the old Lawrenceville section, where his father, Robert A. Hill, was superintendent of Station B (now Arsenal Station) of the post office.

He entered the service in April, 1890, as a special delivery messenger, in 1891 becoming a clerk at Station B. In 1897 he was a clerk at Station A (now East Liberty Station) and in 1899 was made clerk in charge of the White Postal car, which operated over the street railways lines.

In 1901, Mr. Hill became superintendent of Wilkinsburg branch and in 1917 was made an assistant to the superintendent of mails in the division of mails. He was transferred to the division of carriers in 1921 and in 1923 transferred back to the division of mails.

CHICKIE

Jimmy Tells Chickie He'd Always Wait for Her

CHAPTER XXXI.

JIMMY was taller and hulkier than Barry. He always held her arm hard, keeping her back with him as he had the night Mary was married. He swung along happily now: "Gosh, Chickie—darn nice in you to come out on a minute's notice. Say, funny, isn't it, but you look to me like the same little kid you did six years ago."

"Jimmy — you brute! I thought I'd grown so perfectly gorgeous."

"You were always that. Say, remember the first time you wore a shirtwaist with a blue and white check skirt? Gosh, didn't you think you were the whole city then?"

"What makes you so reminiscent, Jimmy, old love? You'll have me weeping in another moment."

He grinned. "Haven't been stepping out so much lately, have you? Given the black fellow the gate? Tired of the gay life?" His fingers drove against her flesh.

She tossed her chin flippantly: "And I so young and fair, Jimmy! Now, honestly, you wouldn't want me to be weary so soon, would you?"

"Wouldn't I! Gosh, I'd roll along this street from one end to the other on my head! If you're not sick of it, you seem to be sticking pretty close to the family fireside."

"I take it, Mr. Jimmy Blake, you're keeping tab on me?"

"Darn right I am, Chickie! Glad you've quit the black one."

"Jake? You've heard a few things about him? Well—most of them aren't true. I know it, Jimmy. Jake's really a peach."

"You said it!" He's a peach on too darn many trees!"

They stopped outside the movie house to read the announcements, glance over the ads. They passed two or three and kept walking, looking in shop windows. Jimmy dallied along with her, amiable as a girl.

"Awfully nice in you to let me size up the bargains, Jimmy," Chickie pointed out hats in the innumerable millinery shops.

Jimmy Inquisitive

"Go in and try 'em on, if you like."

The night for the time of year was warm. Young girls, their arms laced about each other, went prancing in groups of three and four. Married couples, complacent, prosy, gazed about, not talking, absently pushing go-carts. Mothers, with three or four children at their heels, made frantic darts among a hundred automobiles.

"Say, Chickie, this is a nice, homey street, isn't it?"

"Oh, my, yes! Look at that kid there all but crushed to death by that machine."

"Anyway, it has a friendly feeling. Let's not bother with a show. How about a waffle or a sandwich?"

"Or ice cream? I want both—everything."

"And I want to tell you something pretty good, Chickie. Maybe I've got a gall—it's about myself."

When they were seated at a table in the candy store Chickie said:

"Well, hop to it! Don't keep me in suspense. Are you going to be married?"

He stared at her gloomily. "You'd be glad about it if I were, Chickie?"

"Oh, Jimmie—of course I'd be glad if you were going to be awfully happy."

He said quietly, "I'm not going to be married. I asked you something a little while ago, Chickie. You're not going out as much as you were."

"Oh, I'm giving my seventy-nine suitors a week off! And myself a chance to grab off some beauty sleep."

"You've narrowed the seventy-nine down to two, haven't you? And now it looks as though there's only one, Chickie—can't you tell your old Jimmy about it. I'd tell you. Are you engaged yet?"

Asks About Love

"No." She said it so softly, with her head lowered and the blood dashing into her cheeks.

Jimmy spread butter on the waffle, his dark eyes hard on her face. "You're in love, Chickie, aren't you? You love the Redhead?"

She forced her glance upward, her chin trembling, and said with an attempt at flippance: "What is love, Jimmy—you know—don't you?"

His face grew suddenly white, the boy's mouth, tender for all its strength, snapped: "That's not the kind of love for you to know, Chickie. Say—what do you think, I can go to Honolulu and take charge of a plant there if I want. If I stay here I'll be assistant superintendent. I'll have $300 a month, Chickie. That's not bad, is it? Going to buy a machine for mother. Aw, gee, Chickie, come through and tell me—why have you been home for this last week and more. Say I thought—oh, well—"

She clasped and unclasped her hands uneasily, fear for what he might say darting into her eyes.

He saw it and pushed the waffle from him: "Don't be afraid little kid. I'm not going to wish Jimmy on you." He laughed and slid over on the bench close to her, saying: "Chickie—does he love you as much as I do? Does that Redhead know how to love you enough?"

She answered, tears in her eyes: "Jimmy, you're an old angel."

And I live just down the block from another angel and if she ever wants to know what love is, tell her to blow around, will you, Chickie? She'll find it waiting for her—sure as God lives."

Jimmy's eyes, all black, his white excited face moved her strangely. She said, with a little odd pathos: "Jimmy, darling, would you like to see me come trailing my wings in the dust just so you could brush them off?"

Lord forbid, Chickie!" he grinned. "But if brush you ever need, I'll bet I know who'd give a lot to find it for you." He kept laughing. "Imagine you loving a fellow, Chickie? Say—well, hope he knows how lucky he is."

Sorry for Him

She felt sorry for Jimmy—dear Jimmy, that she'd loved all her life. She thought of him with a touching beauty, her eyes misted, but as a figure in the distance, the tall boy, with muscles of iron, digging the cave for them in the vacant lot, the mighty one, who set off double-headed dutchmen on the Fourth of July and laughed because they clapped their hands over their ears, screaming.

She didn't think of the Jimmy who sat next her now grinning, but a man's heart pleading and suffering in his eyes. The glory of her own love wrapped about her like a luminous, soft haze, setting her apart as one on a mountain top.

Jimmy was allowed to pass as Jake passed. With a dreamy sadness, sweet as remembered music, she watched them go. She wished to be alone—young priestess in the temple. She wanted to clear her life of all other interests. Sometimes she imagined Barry and herself standing above the world—just they—no breath, no thought, no light, except one through the other—moving so in radiance through eternity.

She told this to him slowly. He laughed: "Kiss me, you sweet, poetic thing. But don't let's fly to the clouds for a year or so. We've not seen the earth yet."

"A year or so, Barry? Why, I thought it was to be at least five or six before we could even think of it."

He colored, drawing a deep, startled breath: "Well—you grow literal indeed! I thought that perhaps on your lighted mountaintop all things would be given us. We wouldn't need to eat or earn or succeed. As it is—only your dungeon that you don't like a bit—yawns."

Long Wait Haunting

She said vaguely, trembling: "I wonder if it is so terrible, after all."

He threw her a sharp, dubious glance and whistled. He was silent for a long while.

This five or six-year wait was in the back of Chickie's mind, disturbing, like a small burr that sticks recurrently into the skin, managing, however, to elude detection. She caught herself pausing while she dressed, stopping abruptly in the middle of the street; or falling into a deep meditation in the midst of her typing. She saw the five or six years stretching out in dreary indefiniteness . . she felt a chill finger pressing down on her heart.

It was borne in on her fiercely, with a little fainting terror, one night when Barry came to take her for a ride. He had been working hard. Things hadn't gone right. He was tired. They sat in the car at the beach. He smoked, looking straight before him at the water.

A white moon rose coldly in a leaden sky. A small, delicate cloud fluttered out suddenly, casting this way and that, frightened like a child that is lost. Chickie traced it. She felt sad. She wanted Barry's arm about her. She wanted him to be looking down at her. Her eyes stole about his face, growing warm because he looked so strong and beautiful to her. She wondered why he didn't speak; why he didn't kiss her. With an impetuous yearning she moved her hand along his arm, twined her fingers under his.

"Oh, hello, dear," he said, pulling her to him.

It was pain that she took with a sharp, aching joy. She laughed, feeling her eyes wet. "Hey, there, Redhead! I love you too much."

She knew what Mary meant when she said: "When you love, you suffer—you want to suffer."

Half teasing now she asked: "Does it make thee glad, Barry, when I smile?"

"It do, indeed, ma'am."

"And broken-hearted when I am gloomy?"

"Ah—see the whole aorta going to smash!"

She smiled. She thought wistfully: "But that's the way it is with me."

Her mood rose to a sparkling gayety—even when he came to his window and grinned up at her. She couldn't hide the pleased flush staining her cheeks.

Janina became aware of this and used to watch with veiled amusement, sometimes dropping a note on Chickie's desk, other times jabbing her with her elbow and giving a knowing wink. She said one noon time: "So you're putting all your eggs in one basket, Chickie?"

"What do you mean, Janina dear? Something quite deep and subtle, I take it."

"You get me, kid, all right. After all my years of training, behold the fruit of my labors! Well, Red's a nice boy, but have you figured, baby, that by the time he has money enough to keep an expensive decoration like yourself you'll no longer be ornamental?"

"Why so cruel, Janina? My charms will grow with my years."

"You know it! They'll grow wrinkled and yellow, like everything else about us. A girl's a fool if she doesn't get herself planted in a beautiful jardinere while she still can grace it. You see, it gives one such a nice setting to wither away in. But who do you think is going to furnish handsome pottery for a plant that is already in the sere and yellow leaf?"

"Janina, I thought you were the great believer in love?"

"Chickie—fine talk. Use love—don't let it use you! That's the tragedy of women! Would the most reckless autoist drive a car down a steep grade unless he was sure of his brakes? But that's what this female sex does. They shout: "Here goes to glory!" Their hearts are the engines—the fools scorn to use their minds as the brake. They think it magnificent to plunge headlong. Well—that road goes over the bank nine times out of ten!"

Chickie laughed. "Grand smash-up—all lives lost. Odd, isn't it, Janina, dear, that the victims don't seem to realize the extent of their injuries? Seem to like their hurts, I know several."

"Lots of bandages in the world to hide our sores from prying eyes, baby. Bad enough to play the fool without shouting it from the housetops, Chickie, do you mean to tell me that a fellow like Jake has no attraction for you?"

Chickie winced—her face scarlet. She said flippantly: "Well, Janina, soap and water have a great attraction for me. Jake's so nice and clean always and so spirited, of course, I find him agreeable."

"That's honester than I expected." Janina crumbled the bread—forgetting Chickie for the moment. Finally she smiled: "Chickie, I believe Jake would marry you."

"And I believe that he shall not!"

"Don't tell me, Chickie, that you'd refuse Jake. If you like him enough to kiss him—oh, don't deny it! Put up any kind of a bluff to your own thoughts, but the girl doesn't live that wouldn't blush and like Jake's arm around her. I don't care how proud and pure she is! All made the same—all have a pulse in our wrists and too many in our hearts. You like Jake enough for that—marry him, and with all the divine luxuries of limo and servants, you'd be on your knees with rapture in three months."

"Plant even a very little love in a nice garden, and it grows. That's true. And the converse likewise holds. Set the most flourishing love you can find on the rock of poverty and it dies."

Chickie was always a little shaken when Janina tore at the fine silver garment she draped about life, and now especially about love. She saw herself whimsically as a dried-up stalk, its leaves brown and falling. She laughed.

She began to wonder if they might not scheme some way to hasten money and success. She began to save a little.

Then a delightful thing happened. She got a raise of $15 a month. She was now earning $125. In a year, if she put away $25 each month, that would give $300. Quite a stupendous sum to have all at once—enough to pay down on the living room furniture!

With a shy giggle she spoke of it to Barry. "I'm turning heiress, Mr. Red. Do you know that in a year I'll have $300?"

"And what, sweet one, will you do with it? Take a world tour or buy up the Kimberley diamond mines?"

She flushed and smiled. "I have other plans—original-like." Halting, not at all sure of herself, she went on: "Why, my dear, kind friend, I'm to save up. In four years I'll have $1,200. Isn't that staggering? So you see—why, two people can do quite a lot with vast riches like that."

His mouth drew straight and pale. She noticed that his hands on the steering wheel clenched, the knuckles shiny. She slid down a little in the seat. He said, without looking at her: "Chickie, you're not to dream of such a thing! You just enjoy every cent you earn. Four years—why, how do you know what may happen by then?"

She didn't know why, but the hot blood leaped through her veins—then it seemed to move slowly, creeping chill, round and round from her heart to her throat.

Short Men With Bald Heads Greatest of Lovers, Fay King Declares

ONE SEES COUNTLESS COUPLES OF WHICH THE LADY IS TALLEST — AND THEY ARE NOT A BIT COMIC!
SOME OF THE MOST ROMANTIC AND ATTRACTIVE COUPLES YOU SEE, ARE WEARING GLASSES!
MANY PERFECTLY FASCINATING MEN AND WOMEN ARE BALD OR FAT!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

WHY must all heroes on the stage and screen be tall and handsome with great manes of hair and rolling eyes?

Why are all fat men and women cast as comics? Why are only villain or minor roles given to a man who is short or bald?

Why are love scenes never played by young persons wearing glasses?

The history and romance of real life have proved that greatest heroes and conquerors have been short men.

Great lovers, fascinating to most desirable women, of their day have been bald.

Famous sirens have been very plump.

Why so much realism in sordid things and so little in true life?

Madge Gives Harry High Spots of Letter

"THAT fellow was christened wrong," Dicky grumbled, as his embracing arms released me at Harry Underwood's knock. "If I'd seen his godfather I'd have piped up, 'Not "Harry," but "Ubiquitous" Underwood is this lad's name.'"

I was still laughing when he opened the door for his friend's entrance.

"What's the big joke, Lady Fair?" Mr. Underwood demanded.

"Nothing your limited intellect could understand," Dicky told him loftily. "And may I ask, me good man, what you are doing away from your patient? Didn't I understand—"

"You didn't, because you couldn't — congenitally," Mr. Underwood retorted. "Now get back into your cage and peck at the cuttle bone to keep yourself from making a noise. I wouldn't chirp with my mate, and I've only a minute or two."

Dicky sobered instantly, for he realized, as I did, that Mr. Underwood's errand concerned the letter Helena Brixton had written to Lillian and which he had asked me to remember verbatim for him. Hastily he drew up chairs, but Mr. Underwood refused to sit down.

"If Noel should waken, Lil would be after me," he said, "and I don't want her to get next to this. How about it, Lady Fair, did you get it?"

"Yes, Lillian read it to me," I replied, "but it's a long one. I was going to type it and leave it with Dicky for you. A lot of it is inconsequential, but there are one or two points which will interest you."

"Suppose you give me those now, and then leave the letter for the Dicky Bird to give me after you've gone if I don't get a chance to see you alone."

"Brixton has left Owen in charge of his business in Toledo," I began "and has leased his house for four years, ostensibly the term of Ronald's sojourn at Yale. He has been in New York for several weeks, fixing up offices and selecting an apartment—she didn't give the address of either—but he asked his wife not to let us know because he was so busy."

"Humph!" The exclamation as Mr. Underwood gave it contained volumes. Then he gestured impatiently.

"Don't mind me. Go one."

"He has told his wife that he will be away all the Christmas holidays, and as she has planned to invite three school friends of Ronald's and two of Carolyn's for the Christmas vacation she has asked Lillian if she could find a country house near the farmhouse for her."

"And I suppose Lil fell for it," Mr. Underwood groaned, then made instant amends.

"But, of course, she couldn't do anything else," he said. "What's the plan? But first is there any other high spot?"

"I don't think so," I returned. "But you'll have the whole thing typed in the morning. Now I want your word of honor to destroy it as soon as you've studied it. I wouldn't particularly care to have Lillian see it."

He grinned at me companionably.

"She won't, but if she should I'll take all the blame. She knows you never could resist a request from me. Now tell me the plan, pronto. I must beat it back."

"I'm going to try to get The Larches for Mrs. Brixton," I said. "That's the only plan we have so far, except to get ready for a gay two weeks with all those college boys and prep school girls to entertain."

"The Larches!" Mr. Underwood ejaculated, and Dicky echoed his astonishment. "Well, I suppose it's the only thing at that, if you can get it. Personally I'd like to put all the Brixton's in a weighted box and tow the box out to sea and sink it. But unfortunately I don't possess the high justice, the middle and the low, around these parts, so I guess your plan is as good as any. At least they'll be under my eye, for you can bet this is one Christmas vacation when I hover around the home nest, or rather your home nest."

"Take it back!" Dicky I commanded in unison.

"All right," he assented. "Bless you, my children. But," he turned to me, "have you considered Noel in this plan? If he's ill—"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Half-Wives

NEVER was the world so full of half-wives as it is today.

You know what I mean. Women who are married—but not WORKING at it.

Women who have husbands, somewhere in the "offing," with whom they dine every other Saturday or on alternate Tuesdays, and whom they manage to forget the rest of the time.

You meet a snappy, efficient young business woman, who calls herself "Miss Smith," wears no wedding ring, and is guiltless of "that married look," and, behold you are shocked to discover that she already has her quota of husbands. One, current—and possibly one or two, ex-husbands.

The half-husband is a vague, nebulous creature, who appears at big parties and supper dances beside his glittering wife—and then fades out of the picture, and becomes just a memory.

Sometimes the half-wife started out that way; and sometimes she just GOT that way, by becoming more devoted to her business or profession than to matrimony. And sometimes her semi-widowhood had been forced on her by her husband's family, inefficiency or his weakness for blondes.

Usually, she lives in a smart little apartment, and keeps her husband parked, at a safe distance, in a bachelor flat. When not too busy, she runs over to his place, now and then, to freshen up the curtains or oversee the decorating—or just to show a friendly spirit.

It all sounds very romantic and adventurous—this playing at marriage. All the honors of matrimony—and none of the responsibilities or annoyances.

Nobody to get breakfast for mornings; nobody to be amused and picked up after and waited on, on holidays. Nobody to keep you waiting for the shower or the morning newspaper or the bathroom mirror! Nobody, to mar the serenity of your placid, carefree life! Nobody to tell you where to get OFF!

Oh yes, the half-wife does get a better chance—to work. And, the half-husband does get a better chance to play.

Still, I sometimes wonder just what they get out of it all. What is it all about? And where are they heading for?

After all, work and play are not all there is to life. They are very empty and flimsy things, unless you have an OBJECTIVE. Unless you know where you are GOING—and why!

Half a loaf may be better than none, but a half-husband is worse than none. Even a sod-widow or a divorcee is better off than a half-wife. For, at least, a sod-widow knows where her husband IS nights. And a divorcee doesn't care. They are both Orientated!

A husband and wife are like a pair of gloves. Neither one means much without the other. And a half-marriage is no marriage at all.

You can make an avocation of golf, love, art or saxophone-playing. But, marriage is a whole-time job—with a lot of overtime thrown in!

* * *

Take it (as is)—or leave it ALONE.

The White House Gang

written words, and that simply because, like as not, it might bubble up in an after-chuckle in relation to something he considered deliciously serious.

Even in 1905, when Q was but 8 years old, TR wrote in a letter to Kermit, ". . . The other day a reporter asked Quentin something about me; to which that affable and canny young gentleman responded, 'Yes, I see him sometimes; but I know nothing of his family life.'"

School, indeed, under these circumstances, might have been considered almost as an outside activity of Quentin's—one quite apart from his acquisition of real education. For this education, was of the spirit, where deep-down convictions were discovered and cultivated. The two very great and complementary personalities of his mother and father, gave Q suggestions which were at once powerful and gentle. Even the Gang was quickened by them—through Q. The best stimulation comes from concrete, consistent, easily-observable example; neither TR nor Mrs. Roosevelt was ever negative. Q possessed physical courage and a clear recognition of the rights of others; both these qualities were traits of his parents.

Q would not have been a human boy—he was entirely that—had he possessed many other virtues, or had he been immune to moments of abstraction, when he seemed to gaze vacantly into space. There was, however, this difference—he kept to himself at such times, as though he did not wish to take part in affairs unless he were able to make the fullest sort of contribution. This may have been why he painted, in white uneven characters, upon the door of his room at Sagamore Hill, the warning legend, "Door Locked."

Reading and Spelling

On top of all this, Q's reading was beginning to be as omnivorous as TR's. He digested much, from what he said about it, and got it into his blood. Words, phrases, uncanny bits of knowledge about places and things; and attitudes of mind resulted.

But when he reached the fifth grade, Q put his tongue in his cheek, and struggled manfully with the necessity of doing something about his spelling. From some of his ingenuous school papers, shown by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt to the Gang Chronicler, it may be gathered that his oral vocabulary, like that of all small boys, had raced far ahead of his slow, painfully-scrawled caligraphy:

White House,
Washington, D. Ca.,
May 16, 1907.

"Mr C P Taft:
roof rooves hoof hooves solar lunar stellar nectar Lunar means anything related to the moon Recite your lessons promptly, distinctly, and slowly. Donkeys, attorneys

Cordially yours
Quentin Roosevelt"

This "donkeys-attorneys" term was partly prophetic, although possibly intended as a jibe at the time. Charles P. Taft II has become an extremely able lawyer, following well—in personal and professional distinction—the footsteps of his father, ex-President William Howard Taft, late Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Thinking back to the Force School days, and knowing Charlie's steadiness of purpose, one sees that it is quite possible, even then, he may have decided upon his career. Certainly he displayed more concentration than any of his companions.

For the rest of us, study was hard, but experience easy; for example, there was a man, not regularly on the school payroll, who sometimes appeared as an extra and to help the janitor with the furnace work. He, of all men, certainly was not nameless; indeed, there were no names which had ever been heard or invented by boys, which were not applied to him, and he deserved them all. I have forgotten his real name. He must have been born an old man, with a broom in his hand; he never could have been a boy. Q hated him, in common with the rest of us—hated him so thoroughly, so vehemently, as to be sorry for him. "He's a mummy," he would say, "with an Adam's apple untanned." This may seem incomprehensible, still it was a complete description; to which I can add nothing, except to say that he wore a greasy cap.

Swathed in blue overalls, the mummy would come up from the regions of the boiler-room and croak, pointing accusing fingers at any boy he noticed, blaming him on principle, not from knowledge, for crimes committed or contemplated. Simply described, the mummy exemplified the conflict between careless youth and crabbed age—and he knew it. If, for example, he found a piece of chocolate wrapping, a cracker-box or an uneaten sandwich lying around, he would reach his ghastly, bony arm for the nearest boy, and shake him until bones rattled.

One such incident Q saw.

"Stop that!" he shouted. "You! You should be smashed for that!"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, March 13

AN eventful as well as an intriguing day is the augury read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. Old congestions may be broken up to make way for new undertakings, which may gain headway by strategic methods or secret understandings. Sign writings cautiously and safeguard the finances.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which new undertakings may be launched following upon the removal of tenacious obstacles. Intrigue and strategem hold sway, so sign papers cautiously and safeguards the funds.

A child born on this day should be clever and industrious, but may gain its ends by intrigue and subtlety. It should be trained in thrift and prudent handling of its funds.

Any one of many conditions may produce headaches. They might be classified into two distinct classes, as:

1. Headaches due to some organic disease, and

2. Headaches which are symptoms of some functional disturbances.

The tissue cells and nerves of the brain are affected by the blood stream, just as every part of the body is affected by it. Poisons set up in the system are carried by the blood stream to the brain.

The chief cause of headache is eye strain. Young children, the middle-aged and those well on in years all feel the bad effects of headaches at one time or another and usually from this cause.

With eye strain often comes a "nervous headache." School children may be sufferers from this sort of poor lighting systems in the schoolrooms. You should have the eyes of a child examined and have glasses fitted if necessary. Long continued eye strain brings serious trouble sometimes.

Many persons have eye strain and headaches from looking at moving pictures. Even nausea and vomiting may occur. Such persons should have their eyes examined and rest them until they are stronger.

Any disease which is pus-producing in the system, causing poisons to circulate through the blood stream, may bring with it severe headaches. Abscessed teeth, infected tonsils, diseased nasal sinuses or suppuration of the ear, ulcer of the stomach, infected kidneys, or bladder, an infected appendix and anaemia are productive of headaches.

If you have long-continued headaches you should see your doctor and have a thorough physical examination. It may be only the eyes, but this is in itself a most important factor. The eyes should be looked after and kept in the best of condition. There is no more sensitive organ than the delicate eye.

If it should be that you have pus formation in your system you surely want to eliminate that. Do not suffer from headaches week in and week out without doing something about it. There is always some cause for these painful ailments. Why suffer and perhaps have a worse condition by procrastination?

Have you tried, as a cure for your headache, a quiet, dark room in order that you may sleep it off? Nothing is better than refreshing sleep.

Right here I want to caution you about taking headache powders or drugs of any sort for these headaches. Take as few of them as you possibly can, and never without medical advice, for they are frequently habit-forming, and it is not wise to resort to them. Cold compresses on the head will also aid much in driving away the pain.

BARTELL QUITS HOLDOUT

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Hidden Baseball Values. | Hard to Oust Sankey.
Mays Makes Walker. | Task Confronts Conger.

WORTH SOMETIMES IS BELOW SURFACE

BASEBALL values do not always show on the surface or in the averages. Sometimes a man may appear to mean little to his team, as far as can be determined from paper indications. Keeping him on the payroll may look very much like a case of carrying excess baggage. And yet, underneath, that same individual, though lacking luster in a playing sense and falling far short of being a real asset on the field, may be quietly doing something for his club that is worth a whole lot more than it costs to retain him.

Bill Walker

Carl Mays, the veteran pitcher, who has passed out of the big show to become a member of the Portland team in the Pacific Coast League for the 1930 season, is the latest example. Mays was useful to the Giants last year only in relief roles. He was in 37 games but pitched only one complete contest in six months. But now it develops that in the meantime, though doing little starting work himself, Carl was making for the New York team another star pitcher who promises to be a mainstay for years.

THAT other pitcher is Bill Walker. The southpaw won only one-third of his games in 1928, when he was charged with six defeats against three victories and was nicked for 4.74 earned runs per nine innings. Last year he improved to such a great extent that he was the leading flinger of the National League in effectiveness, topping the list with an earned run average of 3.08 and winning 14 games against only seven defeats.

Walker himself is the authority for the statement that his improvement was due to nothing other than the advice and coaching he received from Mays. "On the bench, in the bull pen, or in our room at night, Mays talked to me almost constantly about pitching," Walker says. "He told me lots of things that might not mean anything to other persons, but which helped me more than I can say.

"MAYS studied my pitching form and style, detected my faults, pointed them out to me, and then hammered away at me until I either rid myself of them entirely or lessened them a great deal. One of the most important things he taught me was to relax and think during a game instead of bearing down blindly with everything I had every time I pitched a ball.

Carl Mays

"When you bear down all the time like that," he told me, "you are tightened up not only physically, but mentally. You don't see anything but the plate, and you don't think about anything but that. Slow up. Take your time. Study the hitter.

"HE ALSO told me to keep the score in my mind, as well as how many men there were on bases, and to stop and figure who was going to hit next. 'Take it easy.' I followed his advice as best I could. The result was that while I didn't strike out as many batters as in other years, I reduced the number of bases on balls and earned runs. When I was in the minors I counted it a bad year when I did not strike out at least 175 men, but I overlooked the fact that I was walking almost as many. Last year I struck out only 65, but I cut my bases on balls down to 57, and my earned run average was the lowest I ever made in any league.

"WHATEVER I did last year, and whatever I may do this year or in the years to come, you can credit largely to Mays. I wish I had met him a few years sooner. If I had it wouldn't have taken me so many seasons to work my way up to the majors and three years to make a spot for myself after I got the opening.

"And when I say that I'm not just patting myself on the back. I'm just trying to give Carl all that's coming to him, though I don't believe I could do that, even if I were to talk for a week. No one on the outside can possibly know how much he did to help me improve myself."

ALL modern baseball holdout stories have the same ending. Some may be drawn out longer than others, but eventually the holdout is found back in the fold, whether the player is Babe Ruth or a comparative rookie.

Dick Bartell

Every fan knows in advance from long experience what the outcome will be, so the action of Dick Bartell, who had demanded a $10,000 salary, in asking permission to go to the Pirate training camp in Paso Robles and in signing a contract there later today, caused no surprise among Pirate rooters.

BARTELL, probably acting upon the advice of others, may have waited a little too long for his own best interests in getting down to training. For in the meantime, a recruit in the person of Ben Sankey has gone a long way toward grabbing off the shortstop job for which Dick was originally considered first in line. There is no bunk about the stories of Sankey's brilliant showing. Reports from reliable sources in camp say the youngster is the goods beyond question, in a fielding way at least, and only yesterday Secretary Sam Watters received a personal letter from Vice President Sam Dreyfuss, in which the latter wrote, in reference to Sankey: "It looks as if we have picked up a real sensation."

IT MAY be no easy matter, therefore, for Bartell to jump in and win back the position he was once thought to have cinched. He'll have to do some tall ball playing to crowd Sankey out of the regular picture. Possibly it was a realization of that fact, as well as his natural fondness for baseball, that caused his change of front.

But at that, the indications that Bartell is as good as in line again are decidedly pleasing to every Pirate rooter. The peppery kid is popular and has the spirit that counts. With the advantage that he has in experience and possibly in hitting ability he cannot yet be counted out of the running for the shortstop vacancy. The team is benefited by having two qualified candidates instead of only one. Whether Dick is a regular or a reserve there is no denying that he means considerable help to the club, and the Bucs are just that much better off in having him back.

The Institutional League wound up a highly successful basketball season with Westinghouse and Heinz House clubs deadlocked for the lead, with 11 wins and 1 loss each. A play-off between these two clubs will be necessary to determine the champion.

In the Reserve Institutional League, the Hill Top Reserves are leading, with Heinz House Reserves close at their heels.

Cecil Barber Named Pro at Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 12.—Cecil Barber, professional of the Montour Heights club of Pittsburgh, will come to Youngstown this spring as pro at the Mahoning Valley Country Club. His selection over a large field of applicants was announced following a meeting of the club directors last night.

Barber is 37 years old and is regarded as an excellent tutor as well as a good tournament golfer.

By JESS CARVER

It's all over but the shoutin', and the shoutin' won't be long. They'll wind it up tonight, will the college basketballers, wind it up for another season in Pittsburgh as Pitt and Wash-Jeff put on a Big Four show in the Stadium.

Paul Zehfuss

As a special feature, or as special features, of tonight's game, the good burghers of Uniontown will honor Charley Hyatt, great star of the Panther quintet, and Lester Cohen, the veteran center, both of whom make their final local appearances in tonight's game. Paul Zehfuss, who has been Hyatt's forward running mate for three years, makes his adieu with Les and Charlie.

FANS ON PITT

The gallery bugs are riding the Panthers now, forgetting that a team able to win 22 out of 24 games, and campaign in the middle west and east as well as hereabouts, is no slouch of a ball club. How many of the tough Big Ten teams can you find on the schedule of this St. John's College? Give Syracuse and West Virginia all the credit in the world for beating Pitt, but don't be too tough on the Panthers.

Pitt knocked off the Presidents at Washington a couple of weeks ago, and unless the boys crack wide open, figure to repeat the victory. Should they lose, West Virginia will win the Big Four title.

PLAN GALA AFFAIR

Tonight's affair will be worth while attending. Civic Pittsburgh will be represented, there will be short talks by prominent Uniontownites, including Coach Eberhart, who was Charley's and Les high school mentor, and the Uniontown American Legion band will be present to render a bit of music. I suppose they'll present Les and Charley with some token or other . . . probably the other.

I know one thing, they'll all get a tough ball game from W. and J.

The results of the Eastern intercollegiates held in New York show that the East is stronger in track this year than it has been for some time. Pennsylvania, Harvard and New York University will be the three leading outdoor teams, but none of them looks strong enough to repel the track invasion from California.

Knute Rockne

Stanford, with Rothert, Krenz and Fleishhacker, will clean up in the shot put and discus, and, with the addition of Rintala, will score heavily in the javelin.

Smith should place well up in both the high and low hurdles. Dink Templeton's three broad jumpers should get in the money. Dyer in the sprints and Morrison in the quarter-mile should be well up in front.

Southern California does not appear quite so strong in a big meet, such as the I. C. 4-A, but, with Wykoff and Draper in the sprints, Welsh and Payne in the hurdles, Hall and Stewart in the shot and discus, Mortensen in the javelin and Van Osdel in the jumps, it will be a dangerous running mate for Stanford all the way through.

It looks as if the East will have to import the California climate and more California fruit before the eastern lads will be able to take the measure of the Coast boys in track and field.

TOMORROW—THE TREE THAT LIVES WITHOUT ROOTS

BUC INFIELDER SIGNS, DONS UNIFORM

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 12.—Baseball fever toppled Dick Bartell this morning. The young holdout infielder signed a Pirate contract for 1930 after a conference with Manager Jewel Ens and Vice President Sam Dreyfuss.

Dick Bartell

Neither the officials of the Pittsburgh Club nor Bartell would disclose the amount of the contract, but it is known that Bartell had to make a concession as regards the $10,000 he was reliably reported to be asking.

DEMANDS NOT MET

"We did not give him anything like that amount," said Dreyfuss, "but you can say that he received a big boost over his salary of last season and that his contract for this year is a very good one under the circumstances."

"I'm tickled and rarin' to go," shouted the peppery native son after he had affixed his name to the document.

Bartell would have been a disconsolate boy had he returned to Alameda today without being a member of his favorite ball club. It developed that Dick's dad had to be consulted when the Pittsburgh officials advised him they would not go a cent higher.

After hearing the ultimatum, Bartell called his father on the long distance telephone. Dick evidently advised his parent that the Pirates were making him a good offer and his dad "put him on his own." And that's all Richard needed to reach for the pan. He would rather play baseball than do anything else.

STILL A YOUNGSTER

Bartell, moreover, is just a kid and the Pittsburgh officials impressed on him that in the event of a big year he would not have to hold out to get a star's contract.

Dick, nevertheless, will make more money this year than a lot of players who have been in the "big show" for many seasons. It is believed he will draw down something like $7,000 for his year's work.

The ink scarcely dried on Dick's new contract when he was in battle togs. He took an active part in the morning workout.

A. B. C. Tourney Leaders Unchanged

CLEVELAND, March 12.—(AP.)—Leaders in the doubles, singles and all events of the American Bowling Congress tournament yesterday withstood the assaults of 64 pairs and 128 individuals, all of Cleveland. The best figure compiled in the two-men event was 1,173, this being hit out by A. Holiday and A. Zimmer. In the singles event a number of 600 series were hammered out, the leader in this respect being J. Knaack, his count being 636.

DOUBLE WINDUP AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two long-standing feuds are scheduled to be definitely settled in the new Duquesne Garden arena tonight when local rivals clash in the two 10-round feature bouts.

In the main bout, George Panka, of Homestead, meets Harry Williams, Negro heavyweight, of the North Side, with whom he has fought two 10-round draws in the Moose Temple. The other top number brings together Andy Andrucci, of the East End, and Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, who have boxed two six-round bouts in the Moose ring, with both decisions in favor of Smackey being protested by Andrucci and his admirers. The crowd booed the verdict almost five minutes at the end of their second bout, less than two weeks ago.

George Panka

In the second event, Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, meets Marty Mazzeo, of Cleveland. Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, and Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, box the opening six-rounder, completing one of the best-balanced cards of the season hereabouts.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Thomas, Negro bantamweight, of the Hill, and George Tomosky, of Wilmerding, will box the six-round opening bout on the Tom Maloy-Young Saylor return bout card at the Moose Temple Friday night. Charley Tarzan and Jackie Wilson are in the semi-final. Promoter Francis Flynn is seeking an opponent for Buck McTiernan of Rellevale, in his winding Friday night of next week. Buck's first bout since he was stopped by Mickey Holmes in the same ring and then went away for his health several months ago.

Vets and Rookies Pals In Baseball Now, Babe Says, Lauding Change

By BABE RUTH

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12.—I was sitting in the clubhouse the other day after practice, punching the bag with some of the veterans, when Dusty Cooke came up to me.

"Hey, Babe," he said, "Do me a favor, will you?"

I asked him what it was.

"Why, some of the boys want you to show us something about hitting," he replied. "We have a little argument about the best way to stand and the best type of swing, and we want you to show us."

I went out to the plate, and, with three different rookie pitchers working, I stayed for 30 minutes giving those young kids tips on hitting. I don't know whether I was able to teach them anything or not, but that isn't the point. The point I want to make is that young ball players today are a lot more ambitious than they used to be and a lot more serious about their work.

Babe Ruth

Twenty years ago, the rookies who came into the big leagues would no more ask one of the veterans for advice than they'd try to fly to China. And the old-timers wouldn't think of offering any help, either. In those days, it was every one for himself and the regulars were banded together to make it tough for any likely-looking youngster who came along. I can remember the days when young fellows would be chased away from the plate every time they even tried to get hitting practice, and every newcomer had to fight his way into the club.

Conditions Change for Better

Of course, the present-day system is a lot better. The reason for the improvement is that ball players are smarter today. The average big leaguer realizes that his career is limited and that it's up to him to grab all he can while the grabbing is good. Consequently, he wants to be with a winning team and when he sees some kid come along who looks good he tries to help him. He figures that developing three or four young fellows means money in his own pocket.

It used to be that there was a lot of clannishness in baseball. But that isn't true with most clubs anymore. And it's never true with a team that wins a pennant. Show me a pennant winner and I'll show you a club where every chap is pulling for every other one and where all the clannishness is gone. You can't win pennants when you have cliques on the ball club, and most players have come to realize that.

Another thing that has changed a lot during the years is training methods. When I broke into the league the trainer was just a sort of a fellow whose chief job was looking after the baggage and seeing that the uniforms and bats were packed. He didn't know anything about medicine or anatomy, and all he could do in case of injury was rub on a little liniment and put on a bandage. Today all clubs have specialized trainers—men who have studied the busi-

Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

NO. 9—AL BOOL, CATCHER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 12.—When Nebraska sends an athlete into the world he generally is big enough to take care of himself in any kind of competition. University of Pittsburgh football players of the past seven or eight years will attest to the fact that they grow them big in "Nebrasky," and for any other game you might wish to name that Cornhuskers stalk forth with Herculean tread. If they can't finesse you, they'll overpower you.

Al Bool

Dazzy Vance and Grover Alexander are brother Nebraskans, and now comes Catcher Al Bool to run somebody out of the job of first-string catcher on the Pittsburgh baseball nine.

His 200 pounds of bone and muscle making him a formidable figure, Albert knows something besides corn-huskin' and that sort of thing. He snaps a bat around like a buggy whip, and just the other day startled the natives of Paso Robles, as well as the other members of the Pittsburgh club, by flailing a rocket over the left field fence. The distance is about 40 feet farther than the same spot at Forbes Field, so you fans must know that Al is Old Man Powerhouse in person.

Bool is a country gentleman—the kind you read about in the city papers, but he thinks he can improve his future by remaining in baseball for a long spell. At 29, he finds himself fairly well set for a big league job after a lot of misfortunes.

Al has been in several of the top minor leagues for quite a few seasons; he even had a shot at the big show, but this was in Washington last year and he suffered an injury that hurt his chances. Sold outright to Baltimore, he had a chance to do what he long had craved—the job of working every day. The big fellow was the big punch man on the club and he thinks he can help the Buccos in the same manner if given the opportunity.

"Yes, I own about 80 acres of good farm land near Lincoln," said the powerful catcher. "I'm a married man and have a fine wife and a baby boy. So, you see, I have a big incentive. Of course, I can't work the farm and play ball because both are summer jobs, but I have a good hired man and I think I'm all set. Yes, I like the old farm, but the old game also is dear to me."

Bool, when in shape, owns a shotgun arm that keeps hostile baserunners hugging the bags.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

TORONTO, March 12.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs, playing their final game on local ice, defeated Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 2, in a fast, clean and interesting game here last night.

Before the third period started Ace Bailey was presented with a "most popular player on the team" trophy and it seemed to spur the ace up, for when play started he got two goals almost immediately. Primeau and Jackson combined to score the first goal in the second period. Pittsburgh counters came in the final session with Lowrey scoring one and Manners the second on Jarvis' pass.

The Pirates put on a tremendous last period spurt and in the dying moments of the affair held the Leafs penned up but couldn't score. Miller was the outstanding star of the game. The lineup:

Frankie Lane, of Sharpsburg, under the management of Mike Harding, of the North Side, is anxious to meet any of the local 126-pounders.

Allen Beatty, Negro welterweight of McKeesport, has a chance to enhance his reputation appreciably in his bout with Mickey Schmidt, of New Castle, at McKeesport tomorrow night. A victory over Mickey would place him right in the front rank locally.

A hitch has developed in the Archie Bell-Jackie Rodgers fight arranged for Motor Square Garden one week from next Monday night. Bell, a light fellow who can make 118 pounds, the bantamweight limit, insists on the weight being not more than 122 pounds, while Rodgers demands that it be 124. Unless Rodgers' managers agree to the lower figure the battle may fall through.

Kid Soho, of McKees Rocks, and Young Crowley, of West Newton, will be the principals in one of the bouts on the amateur boxing card under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 418 and 13th Pennsylvania A. U. in Schenley Hall, McKees Rocks, next Monday night.

Five members of the Homewood Progressive Club's amateur boxing team will participate in the next show of the club in the auditorium next Monday night. They are Joe Pitta, Bobby Barton, Johnny Mastermonio, Henry Lepore and Mike Lynch.

Tommy Loughran, resigned light-heavyweight champion, bears Jack Renault in the main bout at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night.

Dick Evans, of Youngstown, and Red Jaderberg, of Jamestown, N. Y., middleweights will box the semi-final to the Gilbert Rocco-Al Friedman bout at the New Castle Auditorium next Monday night. Frankie Lands, of New Castle, meets Pete Morse, of Jamestown, and Tilly Murphy opposes Tommy Arnold, both hailing from New Castle, in the six-round preliminaries.

K. O. Christner boxes George Cook in a 10-rounder at Youngstown tonight. Peter Palmer opens Angelo Carroll, Canton, opponent. K. O. Hook and Russell Powers engage Elmer Badger in six-round preliminaries, while Young Sapienza and Young Kimbel are booked for four rounds. Battling Eiki gets the 10-round route at Cliffs, O., and Kid Boy Bell takes on George Giacchino for 12 rounds in New York.

A team of six Pittsburgh district amateur boxers engages in the classes of the National junior tournament awarded to Grand Rapids, Mich., and getting under way tonight with the finals carded to-morrow night. They are: Tony Martino, McKeesport, flyweight; Eddie Hebner, Clairton, A. C., bantamweight; Charley Cervatta, Uniontown, and Al Becker, Willow Club, featherweights, and Adam Griffiths, Clairton, A. C., and Eddie Sage, McKeesport, heavyweights.

Louie O'Neill, who boxes Kiichiro Ueda, Japanese welterweight, at San Francisco tonight, is a brother of Frankie Nelson, Coast lightweight. O'Neill has scored 14 knockouts in his last 16 bouts.

Stowe, East Deer Win County Games

Stowe Township High School boys won over East Deer, 24 to 12, and the East Deer High girls nosed out Findley Township's sixtet, 17 to 15, in the semi-final round of the County Schools' junior scholastic title series, staged in Etna High school, last night.

HAZLETON FIVE BEATEN

PHILDELPHIA, March 12.—Hazelton High School, 1928, 1929 basketball champion of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, was eliminated from the 1930 race here last night.

The Hazelton quint was put out of the running by Allentown, which triumphed by the amazing score of 55-26.

ALLENTOWN CROWNED

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—(AP.)—The Allentown High School won the basketball championship of the Eastern Pennsylvania League last night by overwhelming Hazelton High, 55 to 26, at the Palestra in a playoff game for the title.

MEADVILLE BEATEN

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 12.—(AP.)—Erie East High School defeated Meadville, 26 to 21, here last night in the play-off to decide the winner in Section 3 of the N. W. P. I. A. L. The section is divided into two sections and the Erie school won the title in the Northern half and Meadville in the South.

COURT BACKS PETKIEWICZ

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—An injunction restraining the Amateur Athletic Union from interfering with the right of Stanislaw Petkiewicz, Polish middle distance star, to race in the Columbian mile at the Knights of Columbus track meet in Madison Square Garden tonight was issued yesterday by State Supreme Court Justice Alfred H. Townley.

President Gray of the K. of C. said that the injunction does away with any possibility of the A. A. U. interfering with any competitors or punishing them for racing against the Polish star.

Petkiewicz was barred from further competition in the United States by the A. A. U. yesterday at the request of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, governing body of international athletics. Petkiewicz, who competed for Latvia in the 1928 Olympic games, later became a resident of Poland.

Latvian authorities barred the runner permanently from competition in that country and asked the international body to make the ban universal.

Plenty of basketball entertainment is in store for the fans who attend the American Professional League contest between the Cleveland Rosenblums and the Paterson Crescents in the Duquesne University gymnasium tomorrow night.

J. J. Freund, Jr., local representative of the American Professional League, who is responsible for bringing the major league battle to Pittsburgh, has arranged three high-class sidelight events to entertain the early comers.

CHAMPS IN PRELIM

Champions of two sections of Western Pennsylvania come together in one of the prelims, the headliner bringing into action the I. K. S. Central League champions and the Monessen Knights of Pythias. Another contest that should appeal to the fans is that between the Trinity Tritans and Trinity Trimmers, two teams of youngsters, under the coaching of Vern Swartsfager. They meet between halves of the main game. St. Veronica's High, of Ambridge, opposes the local Central Catholic High freshies in the other.

Interest in the Paterson-Cleveland game, a contest that will have a big bearing on the outcome of the second half race, continues high in Western Pennsylvania, and a record crowd is expected to see the pro leaguers in action.

The Cleveland Rosenblums have recalled Cookie Cunningham, of the Toledo National League Club. The Rosies plan to keep Cookie in reserve. He will be used at center in event Joe Lapchick's knee does not respond to treatment. Cunningham, former Ohio State star, is reported a vastly improved player.

Due to the playing of the W. P. I. A. L. elimination game at the Stadium pavillion tomorrow night, the Rosies-Crescents contest will not get under way until 9:30.

The Homestead Ackermans will be out to tie the Veronas for the second half County League championship tonight when they meet the Goldensons at the Market House. In the West Penn League, the Y. M. H. A. is the attraction at Kingsley House. Real Estate Savings is at Westinghouse in the C. & I. League.

VERONAS TAKE LEAD

The J. J. Verona five took the lead in the County League last night by defeating the Goldensons, 32-21, at Columbus Temple. In another game, Fintex bumped the Duquesne Lafayettes, 37 to 31.

P. & L. E. tripped Dravo, 33 to 32, in the C. & I. League, and St. Wendelin's walloped St. Henry's, 61 to 47, in the Lyceum circuit.

Midland High Cops Beaver Falls Tourney

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., March 12.—Midland High won the Penn State Alumni Scholastic floor tournament by defeating New Brighton, 25-23, in the final here last night.

In the consolation final Beaver Falls came from behind to defeat Rochester, 30-20. William Speyerk, who ranked as high scorer in Section IV, circles the past season, won point scoring honors for the tournament with 36. The lineups:

SEMLERS WIN IN TOURNEY

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 12.—Jeannette Semlers and the New Kensington Y. M. C. A. quintet reached the semi-finals in the annual Westmoreland County independent basketball tournament last night by defeating the Pennsylvania Shoe five of Greensburg and the Greensburg Lucky Strike quintet, respectively.

The New Kensington-Lucky Strike game was closely fought and ended 34-31, while Semlers had no trouble defeating the Shoemen, 30-13.

Semi-finals will be played Friday night.

P. A. A. TAKES ON CLEVELAND MERMEN HERE

The crack Cleveland Swimming Club array, one of the most powerful aquatic hosts west of the Alleghenies, will invade the Pittsburgh Athletic Association tank Saturday evening for inter-urban combat with Gordon Mullen's speedy Winged Head troupe. The Forest Citizens, featuring such aces as Jimmy House of Yale, Dutch Unterberger, Ohio diving champion, and Job Cannon, former National junior 500-yard titleholder, will arrive loaded to trim the Red and Gray outfit in the latter's own pool, a feat accomplished so seldom as to be virtually without precedent.

The P. A. A. natators dropped a close 34-25 verdict to the Clevelanders in the Buckeye metropolis shortly before the holidays. The defeat was the lone setback suffered by the Pittsburgh crew in inter-city competition this winter, and was largely due to loss of the relay event in which the Mullenites were forced to make a last-minute substitution because of the absence of one of their regular sprint quartet.

York tonight to keep up the great record he has made against foreign foemen, in defeating Dr. Otto Peltzer, of Germany; Edvin Wide, of Sweden, and Eino Purje, of Finland.

For tonight, in the Columbian mile, Conger will measure strides with Dr. Paul Martin, of Switzerland, and may find it a tough job to win, inasmuch as he has been running six seconds behind his record and has lost to Martin three times at 1,000 yards, 1,320 yards and 1,500 meters. However, Conger generally rises to his heights in the mile, no matter how he may fare at shorter distances, and he will not go down without a struggle if he is beaten at all.

John D. Hertz

IN KEEPING Whichone and Beejum out of the Kentucky Derby, Harry Payne Whitney perhaps promoted by one of John D. Hertz's previous experiences, is being credited by racing men with a sporting motive separate from the announced reason that he desired to point them rather for later big races in the East. A future book is made on the Derby on the play-or-pay system. If you bet on a certain horse and he doesn't start you lose your money. If Whichone had been entered he would have been a top-heavy favorite, the majority of bets in the winter book would have been made on him, and then, in the event of his being unable to start, all this money would have been lost by the players. Whitney, doubting that Whichone could be made ready for such an early race as the Derby, may have saved the bettors from losses by declining to enter him.*

THE feelings of an owner placed in such a position are best described by what Hertz, owner of Reigh Count, confided to George Daley after his horse won the Kentucky Derby in 1928. "Spare me from ever again owning a Kentucky Derby favorite," he said. "The responsibility is too heavy and the worry too exhausting.

"I'll never forget the anxiety when a slight ailment three days before the race jeopardized Reigh Count's chances of starting, not so much because of my own possible disappointment, but because of the hundreds who had wagered on him in the winter books. Even the thrill of winning hardly was an offset."

Vets and Rookies Pals In Baseball Now, Babe Says, Lauding Change

ness of physical development and who are prepared to treat anything except serious disease or broken bones.

Trainers Are Specialists

In the old days, ball players got into condition the best way they could, without advice and without any system. The result was that every training camp had a high percentage of sore arms and torn muscles. Today there's little excuse for ever having a sore arm. Trainers know their stuff, and the player who pays attention to their advice won't have much trouble. The trainer for the Yankees, for instance, is a man who has been in the business of conditioning men for years. He knows osteopathy, chiropractry, massage and physical training from A to Z.

There's nothing more important to ball players, and this goes for kid sandlot players as well as big leaguers, than proper physical condition. In fact, proper training is a lot more important to kids and young players than it is to the veterans. The oldtimers' muscles have set, but the kids still are developing and improper training when they're young is likely to ruin their whole career.

A lot of people look on the trainer of a ball club as a sort of hanger-on who hasn't much of a job and deserves little credit. That's bunk. The trainer is a mighty important fellow, especially during the training season, when fellows are trying to get in shape for the long grind. And the Yankees are lucky in having a fellow who knows his business.

CONNIE MACK'S FIRST STORY APPEARS IN TOMORROW'S PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Going Thru Happiest Days of Her Life

"Why shouldn't I smile," says Mrs. Anna Nebeker, of 1449 East 77th St., Chicago, who is a well known Eastern Star, "when I finally found that I can be free from the trouble I suffered from a sour stomach, by simply taking that marvelously pleasant new medicine called Acidine. It has cleared up the rash on my skin, and I have more pep than I need, now."

Not more than one person in a hundred has a stomach so perfect that it needs no help to digest the starchy food, and sweets, which make stomachs sour. It's these excessive acids which thin the blood, lower your energy and cause skin rash. The first signs of too much acid are sick stomach, indigestion, burning sensation in throat, gassy belching. Try Acidine just once and you will see why more than two million people depend on it. Get it at any drug store.

*Extra period.

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Tomorrow—Duquesne vs. Scott, North Braddock.

Friday—New Kensington vs. Monessen. Uniontown winner.

Saturday—New Castle vs. winner of Friday's game.

March 18—Final game.

Uniontown edged into the select circle of quarter-finalists in the W. P. I. A. L. title elimination tourney at the Pitt Stadium last night, eliminating the tourney favorites, Monessen, in a second round, extra period battle by a 16-14 score. The winner will meet New Kensington, conquerors of Aliquippa Monday night, in the final game of the lower bracket Friday night.

The teams were tied no less than three times during last night's ball game. Uniontown stepped way to a 3-to-2 lead during the first period, when Harris counted from the court and Everhart from the foul line. Stevenson dropped one in for a two-pointer for Monessen.

In the second period, a goal by Janoski, crack Monessen center, gave the latter team a tie with the Uniontowners at the half. Ford, Negro forward star, counted from out on the floor to give the Section X champions two points after Janoski had scored from the foul line for Monessen.

MONESSEN SHOWS FORM

The third period got under way with Monessen showing the better form. Stevenson bagged a field goal, and Janoski counted again from the charity line. Everhart came back with a basket and Rankin dropped in a pair of fouls. Then Feldman flipped in a basket to put Monessen a point to the good, but this was offset when Harris fouled and the points converted.

Both quintets tallied four points in the final period. Ford and Everhart swished field goals through the hoop, while Currie registered his initial basket for Monessen and Janoski and Currie made tosses good at the foul line. When the gun boomed out the regular period of play, the boys were deadlocked at a dozen points each.

Monessen had a first chance to move ahead in the extra period. Janoski was fouled twice when he attempted a one-handed shot, but he missed both tries. Then Johnny Fike, crack Uniontown center, slipped under the hoop, took a pass from Rankin and hooked in a goal. It proved to be the winning shot of the game.

JANOSKI HIGH SCORER

Calotti, in the game for Monessen, was given another chance at the free toss line, but he too was unequal to the occasion, and before any more scoring could take place, the three-minute extra session was a thing of the past, and so was Monessen's chance to the league title.

Ford and Everhart for Uniontown, and Stevenson, for Monessen, each accounted for a pair of field goals, but Janoski, Monessen pivot man, was the high scorer of the game, sinking three out of five fouls and a field goal for five points.

A year ago, Uniontown was put out of the running in a third round game, while Monessen failed to reach the second round, losing by a 20-17 score to Homestead in the opening session. The lineup:

Uniontown—16.		Monessen—14.
Ford	F	Kotys
Everhart	F	Stevenson
Fike	C	Janoski
Harris	G	Currie
Rankin (C)	G	(C) Feldman

Substitutes: Monessen—Calotti. Field goals: Uniontown—Ford 2, Everhart 2, Fike, Harris. Monessen—Stevenson 2, Janoski, Currie, Feldman, Foule. Everhart 1 out of 1; Fike 0 out of 1; Harris 1 out of 3; Rankin 2 out of 2; Monessen—Janoski 3 out of 6, Currie 1 out of 3, Feldman 0 out of 1, Calotti 0 out of 1. Team fouls: Uniontown 4 out of 9, Monessen 4 out of 11. Referee—Walter Ware, Uniontown. Sykes Reed, Titus of perma—5 minutes.

SMITH, DUDLEY ELIMINATED

MIAMI, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Horton Smith, sensational golfing youngster, took a 36-hole drubbing yesterday as he and his partner, Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., were eliminated, 1 up, in quarter final play of the $5,000 international four-ball matches. Neil McIntyre, Indianapolis, sank a 12-foot putt for a birdie 4 on the lengthy thirty-sixth hole of Miami Country Club course to advance himself and Harry Hampton, Chicago, to semi-finals in spite of early predictions that Smith, recently signed at Craigston, N. Y., and Dudley would be finalists.

LANDIS MAKES RULING

CHICAGO, March 12.—(AP.)—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis has ordered the Washington Club of the American League to pay $3,000 to the Memphis, Tenn., club for the contract of Clarence Thomas, an incapacitated baseball player.

Washington sent Thomas to Memphis in 1927, but before he reported, the player became physically unable to play and was placed on the voluntarily-retired list. Memphis appealed to Commissioner Landis for return of the $3,000 paid for the player.

CLARION TOPS INDIANA

CLARION, Pa., March 12.—Clarion State Teachers College pulled the Indiana Teachers College from the league lead by a 23-20 score here last night.

BING MILLER MARRIED

PORT MYERS, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Edmund J. (Bing) Miller, Iowa farmer and star outfielder of the champion Philadelphia Athletics, was married last night to Miss Helen F. Bennett, of Philadelphia, and the couple today were embarked on a brief honeymoon trip.

Changing plans which had set the wedding for Sunday, the baseball star and Miss Bennett were married with a simple ceremony performed at St. Francis Xavier Church by the Rev. Father R. P. Brennan. Thirty teammates of Miller's, including Manager Connie Mack, were present.

RUTH SHOWS CLASS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12.—(AP.)—Assured of $160,000 for the next two years, Babe Ruth is devoting himself with great zest to the New York Yankees' spring training exhibition games.

The Babe was an outstanding figure in the Yanks' victory over the Reds yesterday, getting a long triple, a single and two walks besides making a one-hand catch while running backward for the fielding gem of the game.

REPLY FOR SHIRES

CHICAGO, March 12.—(INS.)—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, today was framing a reply to the letter from C. Arthur Shires, wandering first baseman, which contained an apology for past conduct and Shires' unsigned contract for 1930.

Comiskey refused to discuss the terms of the contract which Shires mailed back to the home office here from Dallas, Tex. "Shires' letter was a shock to me," said Comiskey. "It dodged all the important questions I had asked him. If he really wants to be reinstated it was a very weak plea. I have decided to give him one more chance."

GIANT STARS REPORT

SAN ANTONIO, March 12.—(AP.)—Big Bill Terry and Fred Lindstrom, big guns of the New York Giants' attack, finally have reported for work but both are somewhat the worse for wear. Lindstrom, who has not yet signed a contract, finished his first workout with a blister on his throwing hand while Terry didn't even wait for his first practice to complain of a sore thumb. He had it when he came to camp.

Jones Inspects His Baseball Holdings

DOUGLAS, Ga., March 12.—(AP.)—The Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Baseball Association have just been inspected by their vice president, Robert T. Jones, Jr., at their spring training camp at Douglas, Ga.

The Atlanta golfing barrister became part owner of the Crackers last fall when he and 11 other local businessmen bought the club.

He thinks he is going to enjoy being a baseball magnate.

SOUTH HILLS WINS

The South Hills swimming team defeated the natators of Perry High, 42 to 16, yesterday afternoon in the Perry pool. This was the fourth straight win for the Tunnel team.

CARNERA STOPS MONTGOMERY

MINNEAPOLIS, March 12.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera added his ninth knockout since invading the United States when Sully Montgomery, fell after one minute and 15 seconds of fighting in the second round here last night.

Several thousand Italian-Americans were in the crowd of more than 14,000 that saw the fight and rally after rally of cheers greeted the Alpine giant when he entered the ring and later after Montgomery had been counted out. Carnera weighed 275¾, while Montgomery scaled 220½.

Andy Shanks, Grand Rapids, Mich., heavyweight, knocked out Tim Derry, Minneapolis, in the fourth round of a preliminary.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drinks lots of good water—you can't drink too much, also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Sport Vignettes

Princeton and Columbia will meet in football next year for the first time in 27 years.....Those freshmen ought to be seniors by now.....The last time they played was in 1905.....That was when the Spanish-American was the "late war".....And airplanes were a fantastic dream.....And Babe Ruth's present-day salary paid off a whole team.....And they played the sort of basketball that Johnny Freund liked and still talks about.....And Teddy Roosevelt was a Big Shot.....And Pitt was WUP.....And eggs were cheap.....And Hector was a pup.....And fighters weren't business men.....Well, anyway, Princeton is getting back on the schedule of somebody it may be able to lick.....One good thing about the month of March, aside from its famous lion and lamb act, is that, while the baseballers are pastiming, neither the Red Sox nor Braves are yet in last place.....Jack Sharkey will train at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg, N. Y., for his bout with Max Schmeling in New York in June.....Maxie will make his headquarters at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., probably so they'll be able to ask after the fight is over, "Who's sick now?".....Jackie Rodgers, local Negro knockout sensation, leaves with his two silent managers, James (Red) Mason and Johnny Deutsch, for Chicago Friday morning to train for his bout with Archie Bell at Motor Square Garden a week from next Monday night.....If he pops over Bell, he will make his next start in one of the big Chicago arenas.....Believe it or not, but the world steadily grows better.....Another six-day bicycle race has bit the dust in New York and the nation still is on an "even keel".....There is a difference between an even keel and a round heel.....Ask Phil Scott, he knows.....Hype Igoe, New York fight expert, reports that he has sat with Damon Runyon, fellow scrivener, at the ringside at big battles and seen Damon blow two big sucker bets by the width of a gnat's whiskers.....At Toledo, Damon bet $100 to $3,500 that Jack Dempsey, the challenger, would knock out Jess Willard, the champion, in the first round.....Jess was down seven times in that session and was counted out, but the referee made them come up for the second round when he learned the bell had struck at the count of seven on the last knockdown.....At Miami, recently, Damon, taking a chance, because he believed no heavyweight had a right to be a 5-to-1 shot in a big bout, wagered $500 to $2,500 that Phil Scott would upset the dope and grab the duke over Jack Sharkey.....Everything, including fouls, was to count.....If the referee had given the fight to Phil on a foul instead of giving him a rest and ordering him to continue, Damon would have cashed in.....As it is, he is out $600 on his bets, whereas, with any sort of a break, he would have won $6,000 on the two fights.....Maybe Damon doesn't live right.....The height of something or other would be for Wilbert Robinson to claim the pennant for his badly-kicked-about Brooklyn Robins.....Maybe they could win, at that, if he could induce Runyon, the plunger, to bet against them.—HARRY KECK.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Break Rally — Local Market Steady

STOCKS SLIDE FAR BEFORE RALLYING

Scores Break 1 to 10 Points But Losses Are Reduced On Rebound; Sales Heavy

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP.)—The stock market ran into a storm of selling today on what appeared to be a record-breaking volume of business for the year. Scores of issues were carried down 1 to 10 points, half a dozen or so to their lowest prices of the year, before the reaction was checked at mid-day by a brisk recovery which materially reduced the early declines. Total sales crossed the 2,000,000 share mark before the end of the second hour, with the tape averaging nearly half an hour late.

While the reaction was widely regarded as a necessary correction of a temporarily top-heavy speculative position, the selling received considerable impetus from some unfavorable business developments.

STEEL OUTPUT CUT

Iron Age reported that operations for the steel industry had declined from 78 to 75 per cent, with little prospect that the rate would again exceed 80 per cent in the first half of the year; an increase of 29,719 tons was reported in the stocks of refined copper during March, and freight car loadings for the week ended March 1 were 79,102 cars below the same week of last year, and were the lowest of any corresponding week since 1922. One of the few bright spots in the situation was a decline of nearly 90,000 barrels in the daily average of crude oil production last week.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4 per cent, but the supply exceeded the demand, and the rate was dropped to 3½. Time money and commercial paper were unchanged. Wall street is confidently looking forward to a decrease in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate tomorrow.

WIDE LIST DROPS

Early selling embraced practically the entire list, but was most effective in the public utility, steel, electric equipment and chemical groups. U. S. Steel common sold down 3 points to 179½. Dow Jones reporting that operations of the corporation, which had been maintained at between 85 and 86 per cent of capacity for three weeks, had dropped to 82 per cent. Vanadium and Inland also sold off sharply, although the former fully recovered its losses by early afternoon.

Auburn Auto and Peoples Gas broke 10½ points and Air Reduction, Columbian Carbon, J. I. Case and Westinghouse sold down 6 to 7½ points before they met effective buying support. United States Industrial Alcohol sank 6¾ points to a new 1930 low at 105, but quickly snapped back above 107.

LOWEST SINCE 1927

Simmons Company was carried down nearly 5 points to 53¼, the lowest price since 1927. American and Foreign Power dropped 5 to a new low at 85.

Eastman Kodak, Keith-Albee Orpheum preferred, American Can, International Harvester, Johns Manville, DuPont and Coca Cola sold down 3 to 4½ points.

International Match preferred was bid up 4¼ points to 81, and Electric Power and Light 1⅝ to 77¼, both new peak prices for the year. American Republics and Atlantic Refining also reached new high ground.

Locomotive Shows Big Earnings Gain

NEW YORK, March 12.—The American Locomotive Company reports for the year ended December 31, consolidated net income of $6,851,300 after depreciation and federal taxes, equal, after preferred dividends, to $5.40 a share on 770,000 common shares outstanding, against $4,171,295, or $1.92 a share on the common in 1928.

The consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 1929, showed current assets of $38,771,225, against $49,174,592 as of December 31, 1928, and current liabilities of $4,495,121, against $4,211,729, leaving net working capital $34,276,104, against $44,962,853.

Cities Service Co. Gets Federal Light

NEW YORK, March 12.—The Cities Service Company has acquired control of the Federal Light and Traction Company. H. L. Doherty is to be chairman of the board of directors and E. N. Sanderson will continue as president.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 12.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 8 to 11 points today on covering together with some trade and commission house buying, which seemed to be prompted by relatively firm Liverpool cables. The advance to 15.55c for May and 14.75c for October, or about 10 to 20 points above recent low levels, brought in considerable realizing or reselling, however, and offerings became rather heavier after the lower opening of the wheat market.

Prices ranged back to just about yesterday's closing quotations by the end of the first half hour. Liverpool cables said there had been continental and Bombay buying, also covering in that market, and reported a moderate sale of cotton cloths to India and South America, but said that yarns were being pressed for sale. The service bureau of the New York Cotton Exchange estimates domestic consumption for February at 467,000 bales, compared with 517,000 in January and 594,000 in February last year.

LIVERPOOL, March 12.—Cotton—Spot in fair demand; prices higher; American strict good middling, 9.01; good middling, 8.81; strict middling, 8.56; middling, 8.06; strict low middling, 7.76; low middling, 7.21; strict good ordinary, 6.86; good ordinary, 6.28. Many Buildings Being Planned: Go Ahead Now!

By B. C. FORBES

ENCOURAGING! Buildings planned so far this year are almost double (188 per cent) what they were a year ago announces the Associated General Contractors of America. Also, "Engineering contract awards for this year up to February 7 were 60 per cent over last year."

Let every proposed piece of construction start at the earliest possible moment. Both men and material are now abundantly available at a cost little likely to be lowered after general activity gets into swing.

A NEW YORK bank consolidation is under consideration. I'm told which would cause nation-wide astonishment were it to go through. It would play a part in the rivalry for first place among America's biggest banks.

Nothing now has thus far developed in the Chase-National-Equitable Trust merger negotiations. Prospects for action are still called bright.

The management of a very old Philadelphia corporation wants to know: What is the effect on employe stockholders when a company lists its stock on the stock exchange?

Some of the directors fear that having the stock quoted daily would tend to turn employes into speculators and thus take their minds off their work, with unhappy consequences.

I don't believe anything of the kind would happen. Employe stock owners are no different from the rest of us in that we all like to see our holdings quoted in the newspapers. Only this week a well-to-do woman talking about her securities remarked to me:

"I am going to see because I hardly ever see it quoted."

In my humble opinion, employes like to see the name of their concern in print; they like to think that it attracts public attention. Also all of us like to think that it attracts public attention. Also all of us like to know just what we own is worth. Then, the advertising value of having a company's stock quoted in the newspapers all over the country is not to be overlooked. Anything and everything which helps to make a business concern known nationally gives it a better standing and enhances its credit, its ability to raise capital on favorable terms.

Employes given to gambling will gamble whether their stock is listed or unlisted.

So my reply is: "Go ahead and list your stock."

DR. SCHACHT, who has resigned from the presidency of the Reichsbank, has been the stormy petrel of German reparations. Stung, it is said, by the presidential bee, he has repeatedly acted spectacularly and obstreperously at international conferences on reparations. Finally other nationals became tired of humoring him. Therefore, able though Dr. Schact is, his kicking over the traces has caused more relief than concern in this country.

GENERAL MOTORS is going to launch another brand-new product. General Manager Arnold, of Delco-Light, Dayton, tells me:

"Active production has started in the factory of the Delco-Light Company on Delcogas, newest General Motors product. Delcogas is a self-contained mechanism which converts a liquid distilled from natural gas, back into a gas again for use in ranges, water heaters, radiant heaters and similar appliances exactly as gas from public utility main is used in the city.

"The market will be the small cities and towns now without city gas service, suburban sections where gas mains have not been laid, and the rural territories. The equipment may be installed in any home, regardless of location, and provides exactly the sort of gas used by city dwellers and at the average cost of city artificial gas."

This will interest General Motors' 225,000 stockholders—as well as home owners. It marks one more step towards furnishing rural home owners with city comforts and conveniences.

Also, it reflects the progressiveness and aggressiveness of General Motors executives.

PRESIDENT R. C. HOLMES, of the Texas Corporation, was quoted the other day as opposing the Federal Oil Conservation Board's recommendation that refineries shut down on Sundays. The fact is that his statement regarding difficulties attendant upon six-day operation appeared before the board's suggestion was made.

The oil industry's response to the six-day proposal has been lukewarm—cold rather.

WALL STREET declares that the stock market is honeycombed with short selling. That is bullish rather than bearish on the market's nearby outlook. It means that a lot of buying will have to be done to "cover." That the trend has been upward in face of inordinate bear pressure, indicates that the market possesses great inherent strength.

Although setbacks must be expected, the market's course still promises to be, in the main, upwards.

Westinghouse Reports Record Profits

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WESTINGHOUSE Electric and Manufacturing Company broke all records in sales billed, orders booked and earnings in 1929. The annual report made public today shows that last year exceeded 1928, the previous record year, in every respect.

Net profit for 1929 was $27,062,611 which was equivalent to $10.15 a share on the 2,666,315 shares of common and preferred stock. In 1928 net profit was $20,814,940 or $8.78 a share on 2,370,063 shares of stock outstanding at that time.

The 79,974 shares of cumulative preferred stock share equally with the common after each issue has received $3.50 a share in dividends in any year. Last December the two classes of stock were placed on a $5 annual dividend basis in comparison with a previous basis of $4 a year.

Bonds Retired

THE increase in the stock during 1929 was caused by offering holders of both classes rights to subscribe for one new share of common at $105 for each eight shares held. The funds received from this offering were used in the retirement of the entire funded debt consisting of $30,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds. The issue was called on March 1, 1929.

The company showed an increase in sales of $27,314,286 to a total for the year of $216,364,588. The present year was started under exceptionally favorable circumstances. Unfilled orders on January 1 were $62,025,399, an increase of $15,600,000 over the unfilled orders at the beginning of the preceding year.

Current Ratio Six To One

CURRENT assets of $136,104,758 were six times current liabilities at the close of the year. Cash of $22,354,339 exceeded all current liabilities of $22,074,827. The company also held United States Government securities and call loans of $5,997,687.

Cash and marketable securities stood at a lower figure than a year ago, this was due to the increased accounts receivable and larger inventories made necessary by the expansion in business volume and by a large increase in investments in associated companies.

Radio Business Segregated

THE investment account showed an increase of $17,900,000 practically all of which was in associated organizations engaged in the radio business. The capital stock of these organizations is owned by Westinghouse and other companies which have been associated with Westinghouse in these activities.

All the radio production of these organizations has been centralized in the newly formed RCA Victor Company, Inc., which has its principal plants at Camden, N. J. The manufacture of tubes has been turned over to RCA Radiotron Company, Inc. In spite of the fact that Westinghouse has withdrawn from the actual production of radio equipment, Westinghouse radio receiving sets will be placed on the market shortly. These will be made by RCA Victor Company, Inc.

Plants Adequate

ONLY minor changes in fixed charges took place during the year. The company is not planning to make any major additions to production facilities during 1930.

During the year surplus increased $29,729,690 to a total of $96,818,935. Of this increase $15,734,943 was from earnings and $13,994,747 represented the gain from the sale of additional stock at a premium.

Credit Men Meet At Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 12. Over 300 delegates are expected to attend the tri-state confgrence of the National Retail Credit Association, which opens today. Principal speakers include: C. Carrol Spear, National Surety Company, New York; Charles R. Egler, Cleveland; Prof. H. W. Cordell, Ohio State University, Columbus; Judge George H. Gessner, Youngstown; G. C. Driver, Cleveland; Floyd Miller, Pontiac, Mich.; F. C. Parker and H. G. Godfrey, Detroit.

CAR LOADINGS SHOW GAIN

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP).—Revenue freight loadings for the week ended March 1 were reported by the American Railway Association to have totaled 899,189 cars.

This was an increase of 70,299 cars above the preceding week, and a reduction of 79,012 cars below loadings for the corresponding week a year later.

Miscellaneous freight loadings for the week ended March 1 aggregated 359,862 cars a decrease of 9,266 cars below the corresponding week of 1929; loading of merchandise less than carload lot, 251,852, decrease 3,854; coal, 135,661, decrease 56,916; forest products, 61,783, decrease 2,221; ore, 8,771, decrease 1,911; coke, 10,303, decrease 3,781; grain and grain products, 45,103, decrease 1,402; livestock, 25,854, increase 339.

VALLEY STEEL TO IMPROVE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 12. That the last half of March will prove much better for the Mid-west steel trade than the first half, which is below the February average, is indicated now. Operations this week average below 70 per cent, compared with a 75 per cent average rate in February. However, automobile companies which have been holding back are expected to come into the market in a larger way before the month ends.

Expected improvement in steel pipe business in the spring will be a substantial help to such companies as Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel, which have ample tube capacity. Such production is important because it runs into heavy tonnage and supports other departments, such as steel plants.

The tinplate market is improving and approaching normalcy for this season of the year.

Pittsburgh Securities

The widespread publicity that follows activity in nationally known securities tends to detract from local issues, many of which are equally sound and yield profitable returns.

In addition to the higher net return resulting from tax exemption of most local securities, the investor has the advantage of being able to keep in close touch with the companies in which he invests.

We will be pleased to recommend Pittsburgh securities of merit or to mail a pamphlet describing selected bond and stock issues.

Expert and Active Supervision for Your Securities

Busy men of affairs frequently neglect to keep a finger on the pulse of their personal investments. Changes in underlying conditions often affect values. Constant, immediate and experienced advice is desirable.

BY committing your securities to the custodianship of this institution you employ in an advisory capacity the same judgment which prevails in the investment of the bank's funds.

Keen men often lose money by leaving their securities dormant in a safe deposit box, by delay in clipping coupons, exercising rights, neglect in surrendering called bonds, holding when conditions say sell, etc.

This does not happen when we are in charge. Our Statistical Department, with access to the latest and best knowledge from all authentic sources, will keep your list under constant surveillance.

You may act or not on its recommendation.

Or, you may delegate us to assume full charge of your investments—without affecting your right to act for yourself at any time.

The charge for this custodianship service is nominal. The arrangement enables you to have a pre-view of how this institution would function acting as Executor and Trustee of your will.

Pools Attempt to Stir Large Amount of Public Interest.

THE changing character of the market in recent sessions provides rather plain evidence of the resumption of operations by pool interests who had had little part in speculative activities since the break of last fall. At the moment it is apparent that stocks in which such operations ordinarily are conducted are crowding the recognized leaders for the position of prominence. Until now it has been the investment type of stocks that have been in the van of the market on its recovery from the low levels of last November. But apparently speculative groups, taking their cue from the prospect of easy money for a long period believe the time propitious for an attempt to encourage re-entry of the public into the market on a large scale. It is interesting, incidentally, to find that one of the most prominent of the middle western group who was active in the 1929 bull market, has been reported in town recently.

Though it would hardly seem the setting was proper for such fraudulent attempts, brokers have been warned since the beginning of the week to be on their guard for counterfeit stock certificates, and also for fictitious telegrams ordering the purchase of stocks. More success might have attended such operations a few months ago when the average house was "snowed under" in endeavoring to keep abreast of the market. But current relative quiet provides ample opportunity for the closest kind of scrutiny. This perhaps explains the failure of the counterfeit stock certificates to get by and likewise the ready detection of such fake buying orders as have appeared in time to prevent their execution.

THOSE who are bullish on the tobacco shares can see no good reason why strength in that quarter of the list should create any great measure of surprise. In such circles it is pointed out that the tobacco shares represent one issue whose prospects for the current year are bright beyond question. For two years, until last fall, the leading cigaret makers were at loggerheads. Price cutting and secret rebating were indulged in. Restoration of cigaret prices prevailing prior to the 1927 cut, and substantial economies that companies have put into force in the meantime, however, are held up as paving the way for an increase of approximately 20 per cent in the profits of these companies, even if the volume of business does not increase over 1929. But the tobacco industry has shown a steady measure of gain annually for many years and is expected to do the same this year.

The weekly consolidated bank statement reveals an increase of $96,000,000 in loans against securities marking the first upturn in such borrowings in some weeks. The expansion corresponds with the increase of $94,000,000 reported in collateral loans by the federal reserve for the same period and would seem to indicate a growing public participation in stock speculation. Similarly commercial borrowings turned up, expanding $25,000,000 for the first time in quite a while. Investments, however, were cut by $21,000,000 reflecting a drop of $35,000,000 in government bond holdings and an increase of $14,000,000 in other securities. Borrowings from the reserve were cut by $24,000,000.

SHORTENING of the trading period on the stock exchange yesterday, recess being taken after 12:30 p. m., out of respect to the memory of the late ex-President Taft, tended to complicate trading conditions somewhat. Evidently traders were inclined to attempt to get through an abnormally heavy volume of business in the two and one-half hour period. At any rate, the facilities of the institution were taxed far beyond their capacity to carry the load, the tape running almost half an hour late as the noon hour passed. The ticker had not hitherto fallen so far behind the actual market since the restoration of normal trading conditions following the abnormal situation that developed last fall.

At present Westinghouse Air Brake Company has 150 per cent more orders on its books than at the same time last year. Net profit for the present quarter probably will be substantially greater than in the final quarter of 1929, when 84 cents a share was earned and which represented the best quarter since the initial three months of 1927. Few companies in per cent cash to total resources are in better shape than Air Brake. Incidentally, the company now has patents down at $1, compared with $2,450,000 at the close of the preceding year.

Western Union Gets American Cable Co.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Western Union Telegraph Company has purchased the assets of the American Telegraph and Cable Company at $27 a share. American T. & C. has been comparatively inactive of late, selling at the stock market at $26.50 last week. Last year the stock ranged from $17 to $32.87. The company owns transAtlantic cables which have been leased for several years by Western Union.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Decline Sharply

NEW YORK, March 12.—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 88,600 barrels for the week ended March 8, totaling 2,535,350 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,873,950 barrels, a decrease of 27,000 barrels.

DAILY TRUE STORY

By [illegible] Beecher

ISOBEL FORRESTER'S aunt was just about frantic.

"Do you mean to tell me that you actually turned down a chance to become the wife of an English nobleman and a rich one at that!" the aunt demanded.

"Well, if saying 'No' to him five consecutive times is turning him down—"

"That's gratitude," moaned her aunt. "I bring you over here and arrange for you to meet Lord Herbenswood and he falls in love with you and he has a castle and—and everything—"

"Not everything, auntie; he's an awful sap. I wouldn't marry him if he owned the Bank of England and used the House of Parliament for a bungalow," said Isobel.

"A sap! The idea! He's shot lions in Africa—he's wonderful—he's—"

"He's all right for whoever wants him, auntie."

"But what—why?"

Isobel shrugged her beautiful shoulders.

She wouldn't tell her aunt any "whys." She would never tell anyone. But there was a very big "why." His name was Bertram. His friends secretly called him Bashful Bertram. He was in reality Professor Bertram Barrington, and as good looking as his name was euphonious.

Isobel wasn't worrying about her aunt. Auntie had not exactly brought Isobel over to England. It was Isobel who paid for the trip, as she could afford to do every month of her life. Auntie had maintained that Isobel, with her money and beauty, could find a great and titled husband.

Isobel had laughed. It might be fun landing a duke or lord or earl or some such matrimonial trifle.

That was before she met Professor Bertram Barrington at the museum.

He was in the department of prehistoric anthropology.

Amazed and Delighted

Isobel and Beth Maitland, an English girl Isobel met in New York a year before, were in the museum because Beth was to meet a young man there.

Isobel saw Prof. Barrington at a case, staring at one of those made-up scenes, all guess work of family life some millions of years ago.

"That's the answer to this maiden's prayer," thought Isobel.

"Who is he?" she whispered to Beth.

"The old fellow with the—"

"No, the tall young man with the nice fitting clothes."

Beth moved around for a better view.

The next moment she was shaking hands with him. Isobel was amazed and delighted. There was an introduction Beth thought it a great joke that she was introducing Isobel to one of her own countrymen.

In the conversation that followed it came out that Prof. Barrington was a brother of Mrs. Stanley Harrington and Isobel had known Mrs. Stanley Harrington when she was Flora Barrington, a senior at Wellesley when Isobel was a "frosh."

Isobel tried to be chatty. The professor seemed terribly embarrassed. Isobel wondered what the dickens made Beth giggle and turn red to keep from loud laughter—something was up.

Isobel chattered on and on. The Professor became more nervous and rather red in the face.

Suddenly Isobel began to get wise.

"Gosh," she thought—"he's actually afraid of me."

"Awfully interesting," said Isobel, indicating the exhibit of cave men and women.

"Except for one outstanding blunder," said Prof. Barrington, "in the celt that the man who is dressing the skin has."

"Celt?" Isobel asked. She thought that Celts were Irish, Scotch and Cornwallismen.

"The stone implement—it is polished—it is of the neolithic period, plainly—and this depicts the earlier palaeolithic period of man," explained Prof. Barrington. "I cannot understand how anyone could have made such a terrible mistake."

"Awfully interesting," lied Isobel.

Ravishing Smile

Barrington talked steadily about the Brixenham cave period, but seemed to become agitated and worried if Isobel edged too closely to him.

The young man Beth was waiting for came along and said, "Ho—ho—right on the spot, eh, Beth?"

Isobel wished Beth and her "Ho—ho" young man would leave her with the Professor, but this was impossible.

"Some time soon I'll see you and hear more about those adorable cave people, Professor," Isobel said.

She gave him an almost ravishing smile. At least it would have almost knocked the average young man for a love-goal.

But Professor Bertram Barrington was different. He was called "Bashful Bertram," solely because he was bashful.

He had made researches in the Amazon jungle and in wild Guinea and in other dangerous places. He didn't fear beasts and reptiles, but the poor chap had some sort of a fear of women.

He turned red and backed away when Isobel smiled.

Isobel intended to see him again.

Bertram Barrington was the first chap who had ever made Isobel Forrester admit that he was the answer to her prayer.

And he had to be girl-shy!

So Isobel was mighty glad that she had refused Lord Herbenswood five times. She'd refused him a million and five times if necessary, now that she had seen Professor Bertram Barrington.

Auntie was distressed because Isobel cut the stay in England so short.

This was because she had dragged from Professor Barrington the fact that he was going back home the next week. He had run over just to look at something in the museum before he finished a chapter in his newest book on prehistoric man.

Of course Isobel never knew that Flora Barrington had a brother. She wouldn't, being a freshie in college when Flora was a senior. She had met her after college and they had become friends, but as she Isobel knew Stanley Harrington, who had married Flora.

Queer how things worked out. Isobel invited Mrs. Stanley Harrington to her place on an island in Cassin Bay. She sent the invitation the day after she got back home.

Mrs. Harrington wrote that she couldn't make it, but she'd adore to have Isobel come to her own place up on the St. Lawrence.

Bertram Blushes

Isobel said "Whoops!" This was better yet. She might meet the Professor. She could find out a lot about him. Beth had only known him slightly and didn't even know if he were married.

The train took Isobel to the Harrington lodge on the St. Lawrence. If it hadn't Isobel would have walked.

She certainly looked in all directions for a glimpse of Bertram. It would be too much to expect him there.

But at dinner he was there!

Isobel seemed terribly surprised.

They discussed the meeting at the museum in London. Flora Harrington giggled.

Poor Bertram, it's a wonder he didn't bolt," she said.

Bertram turned painfully red and murmured something about his sister saying foolish things.

Isobel had plugged all she could in the short time on cave men.

Flora and her husband and two other guests sauntered away and left Isobel with Bertram. They did it solely as a joke on Isobel. They'd have a great laugh when they came back and hear Isobel bemoan the fates that left her with the bashful, almost tremblingly timid and tongue-tied Bertram.

"I was really interested in what you said in the museum—especially about those celts—it struck me as marvelous," said Isobel as Bertram seemed on the voyage of grabbing his hat and leaping through the library window, where they had had their coffee.

"Not, not at all, anyone—that is, anyone who had made any study, would have noticed that a polished celt was out of place in the palaeolithic period. They merely roughly chipped weapons and utensils then," Bertram explained.

Laugh on Them

When Flora and the others came back the laugh was on them.

Bashful Bertram was apparently holding Isobel spellbound by describing different flint objects in the case—scrapers, fish spears, axes and hammer stones.

Isobel's two weeks were nearly over. Bertram had talked often about prehistoric man, but when Isobel tried to lead him on about sports, dances, jazz, modern love and the like, he got nervous and excused himself.

"The handsome, big 'fraidcat," Isobel would mutter.

She managed to be alone in the library with Bertram on her last night there. She had told him so many times that he was wonderful that she was getting desperate for a new line.

Isobel thought that with luck she had it.

"Tell me about the family life of the cave people. I suppose that it's just a myth, the stories about their savage courtships."

Isobel gave Bertram her most entrancing smile.

"Oh, no. It has been handed down through the ages. They selected their mates, and the girls were supposed to be bashful, also the cave man had to assert his supreme authority, so he would chase the maiden whom he wished—ahem—of his choice—"

"The one he loved and wanted to mate with?" Isobel asked, gently.

Bertram nodded and got quite red and nervous.

"The cave man struck her with the club. Then she was his and no other man could have her," he finished.

Isobel stepped to the wall. She was desperate. She took down an ancient war club—not caveman, of course, but African. It would do. She handed it to Bashful Bertram and leaned her head over.

"All right, Bertram—but not too hard," she said.

Bashful Bertram stared at the club in his hand and at Isobel's lovely head.

"Are—are you making fun of me?" he asked.

"I'm trying to make you understand," Isobel whispered.

Bashful Bertram wasn't so dumb. Evidently he understood. His sister Flora nearly collapsed an hour later, when she came in and found Isobel in Bashful Bertram's lap, her arms about his neck, and Bertram kissing her just as though he had been necking ever since he was a kid.

THE QUESTION

Who was the only man you ever loved?

THE ANSWERS:

Lady Rutledge-on-Burrey, china painter: "What was that, young man? Heh! Heh! Heh! (Pardon me me while I fix my garter.) There now. (I wisht I had a safety pin.) Let me concentrate. (She suddenly writes name on slip of paper, tears it to bits, and runs as fast as ever she can, leaving only the echo of her deep, rich laughter.)

Little Bettie Bellevue, a nervous child of twelve: "Oh, when will you men learn to leave women alone to their devices? I hate you, Inquisitive Reporter! I hate you, I hate you! I hate you! You promise fame and riches? Pardon, while I smile behind my fan. You men are all alike. . .let me have a good look at your profile. There. As I thought—aquiline.

Amendment Would Make Vote Necessary for War

Wars are not fought by the statesmen and diplomats who bring them on, nor by the international bankers and other representatives of privileged interests who control the statesmen and the diplomats.

Wars are fought by the people.

Therefore, in the opinion of the Hearst newspapers, the people should have something to say about the wars they fight.

The Hearst newspapers believe that the time has come for a constitutional amendment taking it out of the power of anyone but the people to declare and wage an offensive war, or to form an entangling alliance with any foreign power or group of powers.

This country in 1917-18 had its fill of fighting for OTHER nations. It cost us forty thousand million dollars of money and 100,000 American lives. That was the price America paid for making the world safe for British and French imperialism. The average man thought that was enough to hold us for a good long time.

Now the people witness the spectacle of a part, if not a majority of the American delegation at the London naval conference trying to pledge us to take part in all future European [illegible] signing a "consultation pact" with England, Japan, France and Italy—a treaty obligating us, when any of them is threatened with war, to gather with them about the conference table and see what we shall all do about it. The excuse is that such a "pact" will enable them all to reduce their navies. Then we won't have to build ships and everyone will save money.

It does not take much intelligence to recognize this as an aggravated form of the League of Nations: a treaty by which we join the four great military and naval powers in fighting their wars and imposing our wills on the world.

This "pact," attached to a naval limitation treaty, may be brought home for the Senate to ratify. Then we shall see unloosed a stupendous tide of propaganda, financed by foreign nations, international bankers and soft-headed pacifists, and aided by all the resources of our foreign-minded metropolitan press, urging acceptance of the treaty.

Such propaganda nearly swept the Senate into agreeing to enter the League of Nations in 1919-20, though the people, when they got a chance to speak, repudiated the League by 7,000,000 votes in 1920 and 7,000,000 again in 1924. If the Senate had not by a narrow margin balked just at the last minute, the people would never have had an opportunity to vote on the matter. We should be in the League of Nations today.

We also make the statement that if the people, instead of the Senate, had voted on the proposition of sending our soldiers and sailors over to fight in the European war, the popular vote would have been three to one against the war.

The Hearst newspapers advocate an amendment to the Constitution making it impossible for the government, except after referendum vote of the people:

1. To declare or wage any war except in defense of the territories and possessions of the United States, and,

2. To form any alliance or agreement with any foreign nation or group of nations obligating the United States to participate in or confer on wars not having to do with the defense of the territories or possessions of the United States.

For the sake of the diplomats, statesmen, international bankers and others who WANT such wars, the amendment might authorize and encourage the deportation, at government expense, of such so-called Americans as want to participate in foreign wars of other nations.

"Happy Days Here Again" Is Good Song of Times

To quote a current popular song, "Happy Days Are Here Again," because all signs point to a continuance of the industrial revival, which has been steadily mounting since the first of the year.

Prosperity, like spring, has its signs and omens, some of them deceptive. A robin's appearance may not mean spring, but bursting buds are undeniable evidence. Likewise, an increase in unfilled orders for steel means that the market for that product has extended. That is the bursting buds on the mighty steel plant, meaning that its branches are ready to leaf, flower and fruit. The fruit will fall into the hands of many, from laborers to merchants.

The latest report on unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation, just issued, a stable business barometer, shows an increase for February over January, 1930, and over February of 1929.

Furthermore, other lines reflect similar stimulation, local building, for instance, showing expansion, new building and engineering contracts for February being 17 per cent in excess of the total for the previous month. The effect also is felt nationally, one of the results of which has been expansion of electric equipment business.

"Happy Days Are Here Again," Join the chorus.

The Dog Loses

Either Way.

Maurice Ford, 25-year-old resident of Long Beach, Cal., will spend 30 days in jail for killing his fiancee's pet dog.

"I'm glad I did it," says Mr. Ford, "My girl wouldn't kiss me, but she would smother that flea-bitten pooch with kisses. I told her I wouldn't share kisses with any pup."

If there is such a thing as justifiable canicide this would seem to be it. But you are sorry for the dog. He lost either way.

7—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
8—Development of river transportation.

The Lost Battalion

Drawn by Nelson Harding

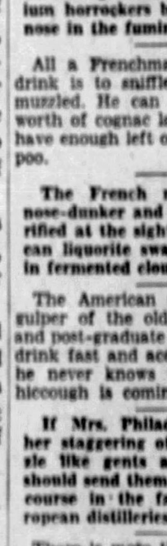
Since the Atlantic they have crossed,
Our diplomats, quite plainly lost,
Are getting neither there nor here
In such a murky atmosphere.

In blinding fog they grope around
Where pitfalls everywhere abound,
And with uncertain steps they roam
Far, far from their own folks at home.—N. H.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

In Quaker City

PHILADELPHIA society woman says she is bringing up her children to drink like ladies and gentlemen.



"Bugs" Baer

If that success is an experiment there are some slightly shop-worn orphans who would like to be adopted by that motherly bootlegger.

The Quaker City matron has answered the question without solving the situation. The trouble with our girls and boys is that they are all drinking like gentlemen.

We do not know how a gentleman should drink because we have never been one.

The proper method for drinking on the purple hooglies in England is to sip. Your English duke believes in a war on attrition and muzzles his brimming beaker until stalactites of sodium carbonate form upon his gloomy mustache.

Over in France the student of alcojeebies are as slow and as cautious as a bat waiting for twilight. They get their cognac in a large quarium and bring on that glorious wave of delirium horrockers by dunking the nose in the fuming bowl.

All a Frenchman does with a drink is to sniffle it until he is muzzled. He can make a dime's worth of cognac last an hour and have enough left over for a shampoo.

The French rummola is a nose-dunker and would be horrified at the sight of an American liquorite swamping himself in fermented cloudbursts.

The American gentleman is a gulper of the old school, college and post-graduate course. He must drink fast and accurately because he never knows where his next hiccough is coming from.

If Mrs. Philadelphia desires her staggering offspring to guzzle like gents and ladies she should send them for a finishing course in the fashionable European distilleries.

There is more than one way to marcel a cat. Alcohol is very final in its ultimate reprisals. You can earn your diploma from any life extension bureau by accumulating capillary tremors, cirrhosis of the liver and inflammation of the brake bands.

A lady and a gentleman with a duet of red noses automatically qualify for the social register and can belch in the best society.

If the Philadelphia primary schools are going to give practical lessons in bewildered chemistry all that we ask of time is to turn back in its flight and make us a boy again just for tonight.

Isn't It So?

The average man seems able to detect a rattle in his car quicker than he can one in his head.

A diplomat is a man who tries to avert things that never would be if there were no diplomats.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

By Herbert Kaufman

HIS entire career was consecrated to public service. For exactly half a century he invested his genius to community, not personal profit.

His legal acumen was always above private hire. He never accepted a corporation retainer nor arrayed his talents against the people.

Like Herbert Hoover, he was a capture, rather than a produce of politics.

The supreme bench appealed to him far more than the presidency. The haircloth shirts of the White House peculiarly itched his sensitive deliverate temperament.

And the turbulent and chaotic conditions which disturbed his incumbency, supplied more than his administration's due share of them.

He inherited a congress torn with revolt, rife with intrigue and irreconcilably split with dissension. The whip had fallen from the hand of Aldrich, and the gavel had been snatched from the fingers of Cannon.

NEW leaders were rising from the wreckage of old guard management. Strange shibboleths were sounding through the continent; states were clamoring for initiative and referendum. For election of senators by primary, for stronger curbs upon public utilities, for sequestration of the public domain, for parcels post and for ship subsidy.

Succeeding a spectacular jack-of-all-performances—overshadowed by the terrific personality of the voluble, picturesque, vehement, dramatic, self-advertising Roosevelt—forced upon the Chicago convention by the will of an irresistible machine, and encumbered with a compromise cabinet, William Howard Taft was not the man for THAT particular hour.

Cautious, with the conservatism of the born jurist, he was for ever delaying pressing decisions for a further examination of facts.

Acutely thin-skinned, the strategic assaults of the opposition constantly betrayed his susceptibility to criticism and invited the gadflies to sting all the harder.

A MAN of violent likes and distastes, he could not be brought to realize that goat-getting is an inalienable and traditional prerogative of the partisan press.

Time and again, he further embittered his taunters by untempered invectives against their professional diatribes. His plan to increase the postal rate on periodicals was consequently viewed as a gesture of reprisal and an attempt to bastinado free speech.

His early alliance with the unpopular Cannon and the Aldrich clique, added to his unequivocal support of Ballinger (the most venomously assailed of all cabinet officers, until Fall), tended to brand him as a stand-patter. His greatest handicap was the lack of a spokesman in the image of a Lemont, a Cortelyou or a Loeb, to emphasize this unrelenting prosecution of monopoly and his resistance to political pressure in Supreme Court appointments, as exemplified by the selection of Lurton and his elevation of White to the chief justiceship—both lifelong Democrats.

HIS magnificent endeavors for reciprocity and tariff reform, his scathing stand against Lorimerism, are other tapelines with which history will more justly measure his executive stature than contemporary bias was inclined to estimate it.

If he came into his own late, he nonetheless arrived with a flourish of trumpets, among which the New York Times, not the least of his Quondam hecklers, proclaimed, toward the end of his administration, "he has broken with the stupid, sordid, greedy, past, and turned the country on the path of sensible advance. The American people turn to him, not with merely negative approbation, but with positive admiration and high confidence in his leadership."

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

"YOU are," writes he reproachfully, "inconsistent. You say one thing one day and another the next. I never know where you stand."

In which case, brother, you have nothing on me! I, also, never know where I stand. And, what's more and worse, I don't care. For I don't want to stand anywhere. I want to keep moving!

As far as I can see, this present age has no use for anything but Movers. Time was when Stand-Patters won all the medals. Life changed little from one generation to another. A person could pick out a nice, respectable set of ideas for himself at 20 and use them right through until he was 90. Indeed, most people didn't even bother to select their own ideas. They just used the set their fathers or grandfathers had used, and nobody knew the difference.

It was a very comfortable state of society, and people who preserved that comfort, consistent people who stayed stationary and didn't wiggle, were highly esteemed. While, on the other hand, people who bounced about and tried to start something were naturally given the dog eye. Civilization is on the flit.

But those comfortable days are no more. The consistent person who thinks today what he thought last month and who follows the program which he followed five years ago, is no longer an asset to the community. He's a pest. He gets in everyone's way, including his own. He ties up traffic.

This is the era of 40-minute parking. By the time you've parked that long on one idea, the signals have changed, the traffic is moving and it's up to you to move with it. If you don't move, you're out of luck and the peeved spectators will speedily make you realize it.

Keep moving! Keep changing! This world in which you are living changes every hour. Its laws . . . its knowledge . . . its customs . . . its social attitudes are in flux. You do not need to accept all these new ideas and attitudes, but you should recognize them, study them and adapt your life to them. Unless you do keep adapting, you're not worth a hoot to yourself or anyone else. Consistency? Pooh! You might as well boast about wearing the same shirt steadily as boast about thinking the same thoughts steadily.

KEEP MOVING!
LIFE'S ZOOMING AHEAD . . .
ZOOM WITH IT!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

DOCTORS sometimes have a tough time getting their dough. One of 'em sent a bill to Mrs. A. Rears for $30 for taking care of Bessie when she had the measles.

Mrs. Rears called him up and raised a fuss.

"But it's reasonable enough," says the doc. "You see, I visited Bessie 10 times."

"Yes, but Bessie gave the measles to 10 other kids, and you owe us a commission on the nine of 'em that you got paid for taking care of."

Text for Today Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful: But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth He meditate day and night.—Psalms i:12.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

NOW until a century or so ago it was commonly believed that the world as we know it today had begun suddenly. It had been created, with man and all the species of beings, as we know them today. Great numbers of people, including most educated people, held to the view with great tenacity.

They had adjusted their moral and religious ideas to that view, and they did not realize that these ideas were not inseparably dependent upon it. All of us are prone to resist changes in our fundamental ideas.

H. G. Wells

We feel instinctively that it may mean a disturbance of our way of living and the abandonment and change of objectives; it is a threat to our peace of mind and our satisfaction with our lives. The idea of the earth's going round the sun was considered to be just as impious in its time of novelty as was the idea of Evolution by the Fundamentalist of the backward states today.

Then steadily and more and more abundantly came evidence to show that the existing forms of life were not all the forms of life, and that there had been a great variety of animals and plants which had passed away, a greater variety and multitude indeed than that which still exists.

The science of geology became a new region of intellectual activity, and in the study of the earth's crust the traces of a past infinitely longer than men had hitherto suspected were unfolded. Varied and wonderful as was the present spectacle of life, the series of faunas and floras that had preceded it and passed away was found to be more wonderful.

Life had a past, a stupendous past. So far from it being a thing of yesterday, the creation of a few thousand years ago, it had a history of enormous variety and infinite fascination.

We can still imagine something of the excitement of our grandfathers when the fantastic and marvellous dinosaurs, the vegetation of the coal measures, the flying dragons of the Mesozoic period were revealed to them. Continually now that once incredible catalogue is expanded.

Every year the palaeontologist, the seeker and student of fossils, adds fresh details to this history of living forms.

Faced with these marvels the Creationist at first denied and then, no longer able to deny, declared that these extinct forms of life had been created in the past, tried out for some unknown end, to be extinguished in favor of fresh creations.

They are but the prelude of these later creations. They had no clear rational relation to living things and living things had no clear relation to them.

But a bolder school of interpretation appeared. These ancient forms were not so strange and incredible as they seemed. Life had produced them on its way to its present state.

Generation by generation it had changed from the wonder it was to the wonder it is. There had been no Creation since the beginning of life.

Life had unfolded — or, to latinize unfold, it had been "evolved" — from some remote and very simple beginning.

What weighed with the Evolutionist is his denial of successive creations was this, that the abounding and continually accumulating record of past forms of life is not a disorderly multitude, not a confusion of inexplicable "wonders," but that it falls into shape, it has a plan, and every fresh discovery drops into place in that plan.

All of these forms fall into the scheme of a common tree of descent. That is the plan of it. If there was no other evidence to sustain it, we should still have to believe that Evolution has occurred on the strength of the plan of the fossil record alone.

Let us be very clear here. We are telling the reader in this chapter that this later view is the sound one, that Evolution has occurred.

But we are making no suggestion as yet as to how it has been brought about. We are simply declaring that life has come to its present variety through the modification year by year, and age by age, of simpler and less various ancestral species.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 12.—This column today was written by a life prisoner in one of New York's state prisons—a man whose name loomed big in headlines during his sensational trial a number of years ago. His observations are pertinent and follow:

It is almost a certainty I shall never see Broadway again, and although it was for many years the only world I knew I am rather glad. I am not referring to the physical Broadway of lights and gaiety, but the real Broadway that is a "state of consciousness."

In my rather brief hour I was a part of its sham, its insincere fellowship. It was my idea of heaven on earth. Not until my disaster swept away my fair weather friends as leaves of autumn are swept by the frosty winds did I realize the utter indifference of its spurious soul to misfortune.

This sounds like a whine, but isn't so intended. Should it serve as a warning to just one of the thousands as weak as myself it will fulfill a purpose. I came to Broadway with no particularly high ideals. But I was, as men go, fairly decent and I was truthful.

I finished up thoroughly dishonest and a liar. Cynics may say my end would have been the same wherever I was, but I do not believe so. The first lesson Broadway taught me was that false values have a cash potentiality. This has undone better men than I.

I began, like so many others, to pose as something I was not nor ever would be. The sailing was so smooth I became a living lie and what moral stamina I had was soon undermined. Being myself established no credit or made me welcome where I wished to go. But posing did.

The finale, of course, was inevitable. I became a despicable crook—and later the murderer of one who had been my friend. All the while I realized whither I was drifting but the Broadway stream runs swift. And there are few who stem its current.

* * *

I remember a relative of mine, a God-fearing gentleman, visiting me in the flush of those hectic days. His only comment upon starting for home was to call me by a favorite nickname of his and say: "You are not associating with the right kind of folks. Environment often does more harm than drink." I was inclined to indulge a secret sniff then, but in my long travail I have thought of what he said a thousand times. How true it was.

* * *

Indeed, it is not always drink that ruins so many men, and women, too, along Broadway. As often as not it is companionship the street offers. In my shoot down the toboggan there is not the memory of one restraining hand. Broadway follows the path of easy resistance. It is commonplace to say that so long as you have money it matters not who you are and that when you are broke Broadway is not interested. But nothing is truer.

* * *

I was tractable in those days and had there been loyal friends to plead with me against my wildness I would have listened and the story in all probability would be different. I drifted along with the pleasant tide until I was snagged—and disgraced.

* * *

I have spent as much as $500 a night—high spending for those days—entertaining my Broadway cronies. From the time of my arrest until now I have yet to receive word of sympathy or a personal visit from anyone of them. That is the indifference that typifies the Broadway heart—its utter coldness.

* * *

The only human beings who stood by me when my world tottered were two school day friends from my home town. The irony of it all is that I used to avoid them when they came to New York. In my foolish worldliness, they seemed simple minded yokels. They have continued to write me once a month while in prison my sole contact with the world outside.

* * *

Broadway, with the morals of a mink, lures by its sheer sickliness like the invalid who so often dominates an entire household of healthy people.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

AN OFFICE is not a place for visiting.

There may be times when nearly everyone in your department has his or her work completed but usually there are some few who still have duties to perform.

The place where you are employed is built for work and not for idle conversation.

Too often the line of talk carried on at such times is mere twaddle.

There is no degree of benefit to be derived from it.

It is a mixture of wise cracks, attempted bright repartee, recital of experiences of a very ordinary nature, but considered by those recounting them as quite unusual.

In that office or place of business when time is up there is always much that might be done if there was will to do it.

If you have finished your job and are free to go home why don't you move out or at least show those who have to work the courtesy of keeping quiet.

Under working conditions there is noise and roar of machinery and those who are employed get accustomed to that sort of hubbub.

But if the lull that follows is marred by a din of silly talkers it is impossible for an industrious overtime worker to do anything of a creative or particular nature.
